Rain-Soaked Marin Faces New Flooding

Third Storm Of Week, High Tide Bring Woes

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

The third major storm in a week slammed into Marin today, combining with an extremely high tide to bring extensive new flooding throughout the county.

Hundreds of homes faced destructive flooding as waters raged over the tops of dikes, forcing evacuation of homeowners in several areas to Red Cross centers.

Rising water on Highway 101 at Greenbrae threatened to close the freeway for the second time this week. With Shoreline Highway closed by slides in at least three places near Stinson Beach, the county was virtually severed across its middle by the floods. At 11 a.m., the freeway was down to one lane in each direction at Corte Madera.

Schools were closed, power lines snapped and new mudslides threatened as utility and public works crews struggled to ease the damage from the storm and tide.

Improved weather was forecast for tomorrow, but tides will abate only slightly through Saturday, thus more days of flooding appeared likely.

In an inadvertent irony, the Ross Valley Flood Control Zone advisory board held its regularly scheduled meeting at 9 a.m. at Corte Madera Town Hall.

The most severe flooding was in the South Novato Boulevard section of Novato, where some 100 residents were evacuated by boats manned by firemen and police. Low-lying areas of Larkspur especially Heather Gardens, also were reported under four feet of water.

Dikes in Tamalpais Valley were too low to stem the flood rushing down Coyote Creek, and water poured into residential areas.

Power failures up to four hours were reported throughout the county. Although major failures were corrected by midmorning, scores of areas remained without electricity. Winds atop Mount Tamalpais reached 85 miles an hour during the night.

School closings included Mewah Mountain, Tamalpais High School District's alternative school on Tamal Vista Boulevard in Corte Madera. It was closed for the second successive day, because flood water surrounding the school made use of its utilities too dangerous.

In Sausalito, Martin Luther King and Bayside schools were closed because flooding made it impossible for cars and buses to reach them. Cinnabar School north of Petaluma also was shut.

County health officials warned residents of West and North Marin to boil water coming from sources other than the Marin Municipal and North Marin County water districts. Water should be boiled for at least five minutes before using it for drinking, brushing teeth, washing foods that will be eaten raw and for rinsing eating utensils.

Sodden dikes collapsed in several areas. Others were being strengthened by sandbags. Hamilton Air Force Base crews worked through the night to sandbag a dike at the end of a runway.

In San Rafael, 28 maintenance men worked through the night to clear storm drains and channels to minimize flooding.

Public Works Director Norris M. Rawles reported his major concern was a potential slide in Glenwood on Lindenwood Court. Most of the eight families he urged to evacuate their home did so, he said.

He predicted the high tide due at about noon could mean power failures, and arranged for rerouting of traffic around Third Street and Grand Avenue.

In San Anselmo, Sir Francis Drake High School's parking lot was under about four feet of water this morning. Police reported that one youth nevertheless drove his sports car into the lot and found himself floating, then sinking. The auto was towed out.

Public works officials in Corte Madera were watching dikes on the shore on the bay, predicting that if tides crested the dikes again the Paradise Drive section of town would "go under."

A Tiburon slide was reported blocking Paradise Drive in the 2300 block.

Two northbound lanes of Highway 101 were blocked by a slide for about an hour during the morning.

Heavy flooding to homes along the beach in Stinson Beach was reported after high tide hit there shortly after 10 a.m. In Bolinas, Brighton Avenue was flooded, and there were slides on the cliffs below Ocean Parkway and Overlook Road.

State officials were due in Marin today to survey the damage from the week of storms. County officials estimated the damage before the third storm at $2 million, and declared the county a local disaster area and asked the government to provide low-interest loans to rebuild the damage.

In Novato, crews at Hamilton Air Force Base worked all night to sandbag a dike at the end of the runway.

Six low-sitting Air Force reserve aircraft, H-130s, were flown off the base and power equipment was moved from the area as a precaution.

North of Gnoss Field, a herd of cattle was stranded on an island as a stretch east of Highway 101 resembled a vast lake.

The heaviest rainfall was 3.1 inches reported in Fairfax for the 24 hours ending at 8 a.m. today. Other counts were 2.6 inches in San Rafael, 2.24 in Tamalpais Valley, 1.3 in Tiburon, 3.0 in Ross, 2.0 in Sausalito, 1.95 in Bolinas and 1.91 in Petaluma.

Kissinger Will Return To Paris

KEY BISCAYNE (UPI) — Presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger is returning to Paris Tuesday "for the purpose of completing" the text of a peace agreement with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho, the Florida White House announced today.

Kissinger will depart for Paris some time Monday morning as hopes mount for a Vietnam ceasefire in the near future.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler told reporters:

"We have a joint announcement between the United States and North Vietnam. Dr. Kissinger will resume private meetings with special adviser Le Duc Tho and minister Xuan Thuy on Jan. 23 for the purpose of completing the text of an agreement."

Ziegler also announced that Gen. Alexander M. Haig, Nixon's special emissary, conferring with Thai leaders in Bangkok today, will be returning to Saigon Saturday to consult again with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Haig conferred with Thieu for two days before continuing his rounds as a peace emissary, calling on leaders in Cambodia and Laos before going to Thailand.

(Meanwhile it was reported from Saigon that Thieu has approved the latest proposal "in principal," but has requested some changes. And a South Vietnamese official said in a radio broadcast in Paris that peace was "very close."

In Paris, U.S. and Vietnamese negotiators suspended indefinitely the weekly semipublic peace talks, but the U.S. said negotiations would continue. Also Washington and Hanoi technical experts still were meeting in Paris on the language of the protocols that will accompany any agreement.)

Ziegler did nothing to dampen speculation that a cease-fire might be declared soon in South Vietnam.

Asked about rumors of a cease-fire, Ziegler said, "There

Supervisors Back Peace Day Plans

The antiwar movement in Marin won support yesterday from the Marin County Board of Supervisors, which the day before deadlocked whether to declare Saturday as "peace day."

The stalemate was broken when Supervisor Michael Wornum, absent on Tuesday, cast his vote in support of peace day, saying his constituents "are sick to God of this goddamn war... and want their representatives to speak up."

On Tuesday, the matter was thrown into a deadlock when Supervisors Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and Robert A. Roumiguiere refused to approve the peace day request from the Christmas Eve peace committee.

The two supervisors labeled the request a "partisan move" to embarrass the President on Inauguration Day.

Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste, who supported the request, used his power as board chairman to postpone Tuesday's discussion to a special meeting yesterday.

Wornum, who already had promised the peace committee his support, said yesterday he felt obligated "to support what-

$9 Billion Budget Proposed By Reagan

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan today proposed the nation's biggest state budget, a $9.26 billion spending program offering generous pay raises for civil servants and ending in a fat $1.1 billion tax surplus. (See also budget stories, page 28.)

It was double the first budget Reagan proposed six years ago when he came to office as a fiscal conservative with a strict "squeeze, cut and trim" policy.

The proposed new budget Reagan sent the legislature for the 1973-74 fiscal year contains a 17 per cent increase for state colleges, 11.6 per cent boost for the University of California, salary raises averaging 13 per cent for 115,000 civil servants, $2.1 million for "save the environment" projects, $1.1 million to plan two prisons to replace ancient San Quentin and $950,000 to build a luxurious governor's mansion on a scenic river bluff.

But the two big items—the expenditures that shot the budget 20.5 per cent over current spending—were a 34 per cent, $559 million boost in local school aid and a 118 per cent, $530 million hike in property tax relief. Both programs, contained in the local aid portion of the budget Reagan proposed Tuesday, were mandated by the 1972 legislature under the governor's prodding.

Aside from these things, however, Reagan basically proposed a hold-the-line spending program with no new major programs.

"It would indeed be foolish to initiate vast new programs or levels of expenditures higher than absolutely necessary simply because for a short period in the span of government we have an operating surplus," Reagan said in his budget message. "Government should never take from the people more than absolutely necessary."

The budget total came to

Corona Guilty Of 25 Slayings

BULLETIN

FAIRFIELD, Calif. (UPI) — Juan V. Corona was convicted today of killing 25 farm workers.

Corona remained impassive during the 30 minutes it took the jury to report the 25 guilty verdicts reached after 46 hours of deliberation over seven days.

After deliberating for about two hours during the morning the jury asked the judge to reconvene the court.

College Trustees Vote For Redevelopment Suit

Trustees of the Marin Community College District last night voted unanimously to file suit in opposition to the City of San Rafael's controversy-ridden redevelopment plan. (Another college story, page 19.)

After an hour-long closed session with Marin County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney, Trustee Donald K. Felt moved that the board take the action in order to "preserve all rights of the district against the San Rafael Redevelopment Agency."

Trustees also resolved that the college administration continue its efforts to negotiate with the city regarding the plan, which permits the siphoning of future tax revenues from the college district and other taxing agencies.

In voicing its opposition, district trustees joined the Marin County Board of Supervisors, which Tuesday voted to file its second suit against the plan, which would provide for development of vacant lands in eastern San Rafael as well as major improvements to the Francisco Boulevard and downtown business districts.

The city has agreed to return some of the siphoned funds to the San Rafael School system. No such stipulation has been made regarding the college district, according to Supt. John A. Grasham.

Missouri Banker, His Family Are Executed

GRANDIN, Mo. (UPI) — A bank president, his wife and 16-year-old daughter were found bound to trees and shot to death in a woods yesterday, apparently the victims of extortionists. Shortly before, the president had entered his Bank of Grandin, told a bookkeeper he was wired with dynamite, and rushed out with $13,000.

Early today authorities arrested and began questioning two men. Police would only say the men were strangers in town who earlier had sought information about Grandin—a town of 250.

"We have some other suspects," a police spokesman said, "but we don't know how good they are."

Riley County Coroner Howard Jackson said the bodies of Robert Kitterman, 43, his wife, Bertha, 38, and daughter Roberta were found in woods near an abandon farm house in hilly, secluded country.

Kitterman and his wife had each been shot through the temple. Their daughter, who only yesterday had announced her engagement in the Prospect News in nearby Donovan, was shot in the back of the head.

Mrs. Kitterman and Roberta were tied to the same tree, while Kitterman was tied to another tree.

The tragic episode apparently began shortly after noon yesterday, when Kitterman stumbled into the bank and announced: "They have my wife and daughter."

Ralph Stanley, the bank's bookkeeper, told authorities the bank was closed for the lunch hour when Kitterman entered the bank, gathered money into a sack, and said he was wired with dynamite. He hurried out of the bank without saying anything else, Stanley said.

Authorities said a county school official who saw Kitterman leave the bank said Kitterman told him "my wife and daughter are being held hostage by some extortionists. Call the highway patrol."

Stanley told police Kitterman appeared very frightened and walked "stooped over" when he entered the bank and told him not to turn on any lights or electrical switches. He explained that he had dynamite wired to his chest.

Jackson said no dynamite was found on Kitterman's body, but he said he "doens't know why he (Kitterman) would say" he was wired with dynamite if he wasn't.

Sheriff Lewis Dawes said early today that "even though no dynamite was found on Kitterman's body," evidence indicated he had apparently had something tied to his body.

Jackson said he thought the bodies had been dead about 45 minutes when they were discovered by a state trooper.

Doctorates Good On Job Market

BERKELEY (UPI) — The job market has been good to doctoral-degree recipients at the University of California, according to a five-year study.

A spokesman for the graduate school said Wednesday that only 15 of the 3,209 graduates between 1967 and 1971 failed to find a job. Of the 15, the school's study said, eight considered themselves housewives.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Planning To Sue

HEIDELBERG, West Germany (UPI) — Chess champion Bobby Fischer's mother plans to sue the U.S. Secretary of the Army because of the treatment she allegedly received from American military police during an anti-war demonstration in Heidelberg yesterday.

Dr. Regina Fischer-Putnam, 59, said military police at an Army base dragged her by the arms and legs and threw her onto a sidewalk as she was distributing antiwar leaflets to American soldiers.

A U.S. military spokesman at Army headquarters in Heidelberg said he was unaware of any incident involving Dr. Fischer-Putnam.

Hits War Powers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Legislation to limit presidential war powers by requiring congressional approval of any U.S. military action was reintroduced in the Senate today with the hope that it would prevent "future Vietnams."

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., author of the War Powers act which the Senate passed last April, 68-16, said the measure may be Congress' last chance to reassert its constitutional power to declare war.

Wrath Over Controls

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Edward Heath's announcement of controls on pay and prices for at least three years stirred the wrath of organized labor today but government officials said Heath was confident he enjoys the general support of the country.

Health announced a 60-day extension of an existing total freeze on pay and prices Wednesday at an hour-long news conference. He said government controls will continue for the rest of this year with voluntary controls for at least three years.

Will Roll Again

NEW YORK (UPI) — The blue and silver trains of the Long Island Rail Road, the "Route of the Dashing Commuter," will roll again Saturday for the first time since a strike by non-operating employes began seven weeks ago.

Peter J. Brennan, President Nixon's secretary of labor-designate, announced Wednesday that he had worked out a 90-day "truce" in the deadlocked Long Island Rail Road strike during which a three-member panel will probe the issues in the walkout.

New IRA Policy?

BELFAST (UPI) — Police sources said today the "tradition-style" wounding of five men in Northern Ireland in the past two days may signal the start of a punishment campaign by extremists of the Irish Republican Army.

The sources said they suspect the five attacks against civilians Tuesday and Wednesday were provoked by an increase in the number of Roman Catholics willing to inform on the IRA.

All of the woundings followed a pattern — the men live in Catholic areas and were shot in one leg or foot by gunmen who called at their homes or stopped them on streets in Lurgan, Armagh, Londonderry and Belfast.

Services Board To Eye Firing Of Executive

The dismissal of Daniel Winters, executive director of the Marin City Community Services District, will be considered at a hearing before the district board at 8 p.m. today in the Manzanita Center.

Last month district directors asked for Winters's resignation, then agreed to take steps to fire him when he declined to quit.

Winters told the Independent-Journal he will ask that the hearing be open to the public.

The executive director has been under fire for his performance in the $11,680-a-year post for the past several months and was suspended from his duties in November, then reinstated and placed on 90 days' probation.

GOP Caucus Chairman To Test Mills' Leadership

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Republican senators have lined up behind GOP caucus chairman John L. Harmer of Glendale as their candidate to oust President Pro Tem James R. Mills, D-San Diego.

Harmer told newsmen Wednesday his fellow Republicans decided in a private meeting to back him in a showdown against Mills. GOP floor leader Fred Marler Jr. of Redding once had been the choice.

Harmer said he had 21 "committed" votes in favor of him replacing Mills, who was elected pro tem in January 1971.

The Senate is split 19-19 between Democrats and Republicans. It requires 21 votes to remove Mills.

Harmer said a vote on the matter would not be sought until Democrats have time to "gracefully" defect from Mills. However, he said delaying a vote on the leadership question could result in erosion of his support.

Air War Over South Steps Up

Saigon (UPI) — U.S. warplanes hit suspected Communist targets in South Vietnam late Wednesday and early today in their heaviest such strikes in more than two months, pounding targets around Saigon and destroying two North Vietnamese tanks near the Demilitarized Zone.

Eighty-three jets struck targets near Saigon.

U.S. jets were reported to have destroyed the tanks Wednesday between Quang Tri, which is 404 miles north of Saigon, and the Communist-held mouth of the Cua Viet river, nine miles to the north, UPI Correspondent Barney Seibert reported.

Seibert said that in a battle Wednesday southeast of Quang Tri, South Vietnamese marines reported killing 69 North Vietnamese at a cost of five killed and five wounded.

In fighting five miles north of Quang Tri the marines reported killing 45 North Vietnamese.

Seibert reported that four Communist 122mm rockets hit the Phu Bai airfield, 382 miles north of Saigon, today but caused neither casualties nor damage."

The U.S. military command said much of the action by U.S. aircraft was in support of South Vietnamese ground troops engaged in a major battle near Saigon.

Jet fighter-bombers flew 335 one-plane strikes in all of South Vietnam, the most since 352 sorties reported on Nov. 9, said the command, which reported 83 jet strikes within 40 miles of the capital.

Most of the jets, the command said, strafed and bombed between Tri Tam, 35 miles northwest of Saigon, and a rubber plantation five miles further north which often is used as a Communist infiltration route from Cambodia.

In fighting Wednesday between Tri Tam and the French-owned Michelin rubber plantation, military sources said, South Vietnamese ground troops lost 10 men killed and more than 30 wounded.

U.S. B52s have flown 62 missions—each mission was about three planes—during the past week there in an effort to break up a suspected Communist buildup that could threaten Saigon. Ten more missions were flown today.

Churchmen Will Explore 'Other Novato' On Sunday

Novato, a middle-income suburban community, is a city where the "poor are largey hidden," Rev. Eugene Quinones of Our Lady of Loretto Church said yesterday.

He was speaking at a meeting of the Novato Ministerial Fellowship which has designated Sunday as "discover the Other Novato Sunday."

The churchmen will bring the story of the "Other Novato," described as "the one not advertised in real estate booklets," to their congregations.

Rev. Steven L. Darling, pastor of United Methodist Church, described it as "an attempt to see behind affluence."

"There are more than 1,000 persons in Novato who receive public assistance of some kind; they may be disabled blind aged, food stamp recipients or recipients of aid to families with dependent children," Father Quinones said.

Fellowship members talked of people shopping after midnight with food stamps so others wouldn't know, of bored housewives seeking a way to invest their time, the lack of activities for youth and those living at the brink of financial disaster

Some residents are living up to the edge of their income and "a serious illness, divorce of job shift" would create hardship, Father Quinones said.

He said life in a suburban community was highly mobile, lacked a sense of community and a place where people tended to concentrate on their own private matters.

"Novato has small poverty pockets, but for the mostpart, poorfamilies are intermixed among those who have adequate incomes," he said.

"Besides financial problems, many families face tearing experiences. There are almost 500 single-parent households. Over 1,100 widowed, divorced or separated women live in Novato," Father Quinones said. Yet "there are few social service agencies serving Novato that are based in town," he added.

In 1972, 399 children received Aid to Families with Dependent Children and in addition, 250 families received food stamps only, he said.

Drunken Driver Arrests Set State Record

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The California Highway Patrol reports it arrested a record 95,667 drunken drivers in 1972, a 17 per cent increase over the previous high set in 1971.

Total arrests on all charges by the Patrol during 1972 totaled 2.07 million, down 14 per cent from the previous year, the CHP reported Wednesday.

Patrol Commissioner Walter Pudinski attributed the increase in drunken driving arrests to an intensive enforcement program by officers during the last six months of the year.

Court Prohibits Discrimination In Support Pay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court, on a 7-2 vote, has barred states from discriminating against illegitimate children when awarding child support payments from their natural fathers.

In ruling on a Texas test case, the court said illegitimate offspring are entitled to the same payments as legitimate children.

Texas and Wyoming are the only states which do not require a father to support legitimate and illegitimate children in the same fashion.

But The Shoe Did Not Fit

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — The shoe didn't fit — so Alvin Earl Barrow is in the clear.

Barrow, 23, Sacramento, was arrested last fall on charges of snatching a woman's purse, containing $146, and fleeing. He was apprehended in the neighborhood later with $150 in his pocket and four witnesses identified him as the culprit.

But the purse-snatcher lost a shoe while being chased after the crime and a Cinderella-like courtroom scene cleared Barrow.

"I personally attempted to place the shoe on his foot," said Deputy District Attorney Tom Stevens. "I was unable to even get the front portion of his foot into the size 6 shoe." Barrow said he wears a size 10 ½ to 11.

Jack G. Nixon First To File For Council

Jack G. Nixon, chairman of the Marin County Planning Commission, today became the first candidate to file for election to the San Rafael City Council April 17.

The 40-year-old Nixon, who has said the key issue facing San Rafael is long-range planning, submitted petitions an hour after filing opened in city hall at 8:30 a.m.

Thomas R. O'Toole, a San Rafael planning commissioner who narrowly missed election to the council in 1971, was also issued nomination papers this morning but had not filed the petitions of candidacy by 11 a.m. The petitions require five signatures.

The pair is expected to be joined by a host of others in the race. The terms of Councilman Lawrence E. Mulryan and the late Harry A. Barbier expire.

Mulryan, appointed to the council when Fred C. Robbins was appointed city attorney, plans to seek a full term and is already organizing his campaign. He is expected to announce his candidacy at a rally at the Whistlestop in San Rafael on Jan. 26.

Others expected to make a bid for election to the council include Richard C. Fox, a research chemist, and Dr. Gar C. May, a San Rafael optometrist.

Albert J. Boro, a San Rafael planning commissioner, and Carl J. (Red) Brown, athletic director at Sir Francis Drake High School, San Anselmo, also have expressed an interest in running.

Edwina Codoni, longtime San Rafael educator who earlier had become the first to announce her candidacy, said today she will not seek a council seat.

Miss Codoni said she doubted she could work with a council "that couldn't even decide who to appoint" to the vacancy created by the death of Harry A. Barbier. The scrappy educator, who will retire from the San Rafael school system after a long career this June, also decared she wanted to spend more time with relatives.

Filing will close Feb. 8.

New Snow For Skiing

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — If you don't mind wind-blown snow and poor visibility, skiing conditions at Northern and Central California mountain resorts are quite good today.

Most areas have up to two feet of new snow from the current storm, but many resorts reported heavy snowfall and gusty winds this morning.

Traveller's warnings are in effect for the Siskiyous and the Sierras. Driving conditions are hazardous; chains were required this morning on Interstate 80, Highway 50, and many other mountain roads.

Snow depths and conditions, are reported at 10 a.m. by the California State Automobile Association:

Interstate 80: Sugar Bowl, 120-156 inches, packed and powder, windy and snowing; Tahoe Donner, 48 inches, fair; Soda Springs, 84 inches, good, windy and snowing.

Highway 89: Squaw Valley, 12 inches of new snow, packed and powder, windy and snowing; Alpine Meadows, 72-120 inches, fair, some powder, poor visibility; Tahoe Ski Bowl, 30-48 inches, fair to good, windy.

Highway 50: Heavenly Valley, 30-72 inches, fair to good, packed and powder; Sierra Ski Ranch, 94-104 inches, fair to good, windy and snowing.

Highway 4: Bear Valley, 94-113 inches, good, powder, windy and snowing.

Highway 108: Dodge Ridge, 54-60 inches, good, snowing.

PEACE

has been an awful lot of speculation along that line. I am not prepared to address that speculation, even if it is right or it is wrong."

"But I will tell you that Dr. Kissinger is returning to Paris for the purpose of completing the text of an agreement."

The joint announcement appeared to indicate that Kissinger was returning to Paris to initial a peace treaty ending the longest war in American history.

But Ziegler declined to discuss any of the contents of the agreement.

"As we have said," he told reporters, "We've made progress in the talks. We also have an agreement not to comment until a final agreement is reached."

This is the first time that the presidential spokesman has ever used the term "agreement" in discussing the secret peace negotiations that go back to Aug. 4, 1969. Kissinger returned from Paris early Sunday morning and engaged in marathon consultations with Nixon before returning to Washington.

The President was returning to Washington tonight for the festivities of his second inauguration. Throughout his six days at the Florida White House, Nixon has remained out of the public eye, and only through Ziegler has let it be known that he had been conferring by phone with Kissinger in Washington.

The President also has received several cables from Haig during the general's Southeast Asian mission.

ever little effort we can (to end the war)... and Inauguration Day is a good day to get the message across."

Arrigoni, who has supported peace efforts in the past, reiterated his earlier arguments adding, however, that one of those (Richard Sloan) in the audience the day before "professing his allegiance to America" had painted a swastika on the American flag last year.

"I don't support the actions of people like that," Arrigoni added.

A woman in the audience protested that the board even consider the "peace day" request under the "canopy of county government."

She said the board should confine itself to county business.

On a motion by Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini, seconded by Wornum, the request was approved on a 3-2 vote, Roumiguiere and Arrigoni dissenting.

"Overkill" Charge On Security

A Mill Valley housewife protested yesterday what she considers "overkill" in security at the Marin Hall of Justice during what officials call "sensitive trials."

Jan Mountjoy registered her complaint as county supervisors met with superior court judges to discuss a recommendation that Civic Center security be reduced further.

Mrs. Mountjoy told the officials she felt threatened and harassed by the elaborate security precautions set up whenever a trial with political overtones takes place.

On Monday, Mrs. Mountjoy said, she attended the Justice-Gibson murder trial and was subjected to two searches — one a body search and the other by metal detector, plus a photo-taking session after producing identification.

"This is a definite case of overkill," she said, questioning what happens to the photos once taken.

The board said it will consider her complaint Tuesday when the matter of security reduction comes to a vote.

County Administrator John F. Barrows has recommended the county's security force be cut from 15 to nine.

Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos protected the cut, saying security of the courts floor is at a minimum now. He drew support from the judges.

Patrolman Praised For Ticketing Bus

NEW YORK (UPI) — Julio Valentin, a zealous parking enforcement officer, slapped a $25 ticket for illegal parking on a bus in downtown Manhattan Wednesday and got praised by Mayor John V. Lindsay for his action.

The mayor, emerging from a luncheon in the Merrill-Lynch building in the Wall Street, took the ticket off the bus he had chartered to cart press executives around on a tour of the city and said "I think it's great. I wish I was here to congratulate him."

Problem Tunnel To Finally Open

DENVER (UPI) — A highway tunnel under the Continental Divide near Loveland Pass which took four years to build and was continually beset by problems, opens to traffic March 1, its builders announced Wednesday.

Three men were killed during construction of the Eisenhower Memorial Tunnel and 100 other workers were injured.

Warning On Well Water In Novato

Flooding of privately owned wells in the Novato area has caused contamination of the water so it is not safe for domestic use, Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, county health officer, said today.

And Dr. Albrecht also recommended that Bolinas residents boil water used for drinking, cooking and brushing teeth, at least until further notice.

Approximately 500 private wells are listed at Novato homes which also have connections with North Marin Water District lines. Wherever possible, Dr. Albrecht said, homeowners should use only the supply from the water district.

If a dwelling has no connection to a water district line and must use well water, she continued, the water should be boiled for at least five minutes before it is used for any of the following purposes:

Drinking, brushing teeth, washing fruits or vegetables that are eaten raw and as the final rinse water for eating utensils that are washed by hand.

Even though a well has not been flooded directly, she warned, it is probable that groundwater in the Novato area is contaminated.

The health department's division of environmental control will check on the quality of the groundwater and inform Novato residents when well water is safe again, she said.

Dr. Albrecht asked that residents not request individual water analysis at this time.

The Bolinas Community Public Utility District, meanwhile, has been forced to pump water into the town from ponds north of Bolinas in the wake of storm damage to its major transmission lines from Arroyo Honda Dam last week.

Dr. Albrecht said the emergency water sources "appear to be quite muddy" and said tests yesterday by the health department indicate that hand chlorinating of the water by the district is "not adequate to kill bacteria."

The health officer said she did not know how long the residents would have to boil their water.

Fire Damage Is $35,000

A blaze which started in a family room caused $35,000 damage last night to a San Anselmo home.

Firemen said the blaze broke out shortly before 8 p.m. in the Thomas Zeigler residence, 910 Butterfield Avenue. A short in a light was blamed.

No injuries were reported as the fire gutted the family room and an adjacent room, causing smoke and heat damage throughout the home as well.

Zeigler and his family fled from the flames.

Juvenile Commission At Full Strength

The Marin County Juvenile Delinquency Prevention Commission has grown to full strength with appointment of three new members by the county board of supervisors.

Appointed were Heidi Osterlye of San Rafael, Rodger Aronoff of Tiburon and John Leipsic of Kentfield.

According to Joseph Doherty of the probation department, the commission Tuesday continued with discussions on its direction of 1973 and what areas of juvenile delinquency to study.

BUDGET

$9,258,835,583, surpassing current spending by $1.57 oillion.

It was $337 million higher than Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's proposed new budget for New York.

It represented $446 for every man, woman and child in California.

"This is a very large budget," acknowledged Reagan.

Not only was the budget balanced, but it projected an unprecedented year-ending revenue surplus of $1.1 billion— a 11.8 per cent overtax representing $53.90 for every man, woman and child in the nation's most populous state.

Reagan promised legislation to "return to the taxpayers substantially all of the excess." He is leaning toward an income tax cut but also considering a delay in a sales tax hike scheduled for June 1.

Most of the surplus—$852 million—is being stockpiled this fiscal year. Another $267 million will be accumulated next year. Its origin was attributed to a booming economy, welfare savings, federal revenue sharing, fewer — than expected expenditures and an income tax withholding windfall.

Newsmen were cautioned that $50 million of the surplus probably will be needed to finance appropriation bills sure to be passed by the legislature with Reagan's blessings. Another $85-to-150 million will be required to fund the half-year cost of a federal welfare act expected to take effect next Jan. 1.

Under Reagan's budget, the biggest share of the taxpayer's dollar —37.9 cents—would be spent for education. Health and welfare would claim 24.4 cents and property tax relief 10.9 cents. These three broad categories would eat up more than 73 cents.

The tax dollar would be raised primarily from the sales tax, 33.5 cents, and personal income taxes, 24.3 cents. Fuel taxes would furnish 12.5 cents and bank and corporation taxes 11.1 cents.

Reagan said the $226 million he proposed for state employe salary increases "fullfills our obligation" to place government workers on a par with their private enterprise counterparts. Of the total, $160.5 million was earmarked for civil servants, $34.3 million for the state colleges and $30.7 million for the University of California.

Civil servants pay hikes would average about 13 per cent, but range up to 20 per cent or more depending upon present "inequities." Salaries of state college instructors would increase by 7.5 per cent and UC faculty members by 5.4 per cent.

The California State Employes Association heralded "a new era in good faith relations" with Reagan.

Arraigned On Assault Count

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Herbert R. Miller, 49, former Cotati planning commissioner, was arraigned yesterday in Sonoma County Superior Court on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Judge John Moskowitz scheduled Miller to enter a plea Jan. 24 and continued bail at $1,000.

Miller, a private investigator, was arrested Oct. 20 on suspicion of firing a gun at a 16-year-old Petaluma girl during an auto chase on Highway 101, south of Cotati.

Miller said he chased the girl out of the parking lot of Holt's Marine in Rohnert Park because he thought a burglary attempt had been made. Police said the girl was merely chatting with a girl friend in the lot.

Mailliard's Office Is Picketed

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Eight Marin citizens yesterday picketed the office of Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, in an appeal for him to vote for a pending congressional cutoff of funds for the war in Vietnam.

A member of the congressman's staff told the delegation from the Christmas Eve Peace Committee that Mailliard and 14 other Republican congressman have appealed to Nixon not to resume the bombing of North Vietnam.

The delegation picketed during the noon hour in front of the Federal Building, at 450 Golden Gate Avenue, then met briefly with Mailliard's staff, reported Meyer M. Baylin of Mill Valley.

Baylin said more pickets had been expected, but some apparently were delayed by flooding on Highway 101 at Corte Madera.

Action Deferred On Sausalito Apartment Plan

The Sausalito Planning Commission took no action last night on a conditional use permit application for a 117-unit apartment development, continuing a public hearing on the project until its Feb. 7 meeting.

Chairman Robert L. Nissen said approximately 30 residents who live below the site of the development, proposed by Dan Coleman Associates for the intersection of Rodeo Avenue and Highway 101, appeared to protest the plans. Most of those who objected said they would like to see the 11-acre hill site remain in open space, Nissen said.

The project plans call for a mix of one, two and three-bedroom units, with parking spaces for 234 cars, or two per unit.

Welfare Cheat Sent To Prison

A high-living, pregnant former topless dancer, who said she wanted to go to state prison, got her wish yesterday in Marin Superior Court.

Lia Culcleasure Stahrlite, 22, of Hayward, had been serving a nine months' county jail term for welfare fraud. She pleaded guilty last month to fraudulently obtaining welfare funds and to perjury in Marin County, at the same time as she was also getting welfare in two other counties.

Yesterday she told Superior Court Judge David Menary she feared she might face prison terms from the other counties, and her jail time in Marin would not count toward any sentences she might receive.

She also gave the court a letter in which she declared that her time in county jail left her with "acute feelings of boredom and hostility" but without receiving any training to enable her to make a living once she regained freedom.

She added that if her child were born while she was in jail, she would be unable to see it; arrangements could be made to do so in state prison.

Judge Menary obliged, sending her to the state Women's Correctional Facility at Corona after revoking a probationary term of five years given at the time of sentencing last month.

Probation reports described the woman — also known as Alice Bertie Stephenson — as living luxuriously through "one of the most successful welfare fraud operations in some time." The investigators estimated she enjoyed an income of more than $20,000 last year, including her welfare payments in Marin, Alameda and San Francisco counties.

Outburst By Woman Disrupts An Office

A 50-year-old woman became violent in the Marin County Clerk's Office yesterday, fracturing a deputy clerk's wrist and damaging a typewriter and other equipment, sheriff's deputies said.

The woman, identified as Lavonne Joan Allen of 22 Council Crest Drive, Corte Madera, was taken to the Marin Community Mental Health Center for examination, according to Sheriff's Sgt. Weldon Travis, head of the Marin Civic Center security patrol.

County Clerk George H. Gnoss said the woman entered the clerk's office about 7:50 a.m., asking to see a deputy working in the probate section. Gnoss was not in the office.

Other workers said the woman began shouting and cursing. Before security guards arrived, she flung a heavy date stamping machine at clerk Jerome Caran, breaking his wrist, pushed a typewriter off the counter and smashed it, flung a large rack of rubber stamps over the counter, scattered files and repeatedly bashed the counter with a dating machine.

Travis said the woman struggled at length with the deputies.

The injured clerk was treated at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael and sent home.

Tiburon Lot Plea Rejected

A request to subdivide a large, steep lot at 1825-35 Centro West in Tiburon has been rejected by the Tiburon Board of Adjustment.

Owner Phillippe Mutrux had asked for the lot split at the board's Monday meeting. He had sought to subdivide a 31,300 square foot parcel into two smaller lots, according to Jean Ellingsen, city building and planning secretary.

Mrs. Ellingsen said city regulations require that lots in hilly areas — like Centro West — must be at least 20,000 square feet. She said several neighbors of Mutrux's appeared at the hearing to protest the split.

In other business, the board granted a use permit to Fred Knight to permit him to keep a horse on a 1.2-acre lot at 615-16 Ridge Road.

Man Injured In Auto Crash

A Concord man was injured in a two-car accident yesterday at 6 p.m. in the 2700 block of Lakeville Street, Petaluma.

Police said his car was struck from the side when an auto driven by Maria L. Webber, 27, of 1327 San Rafael Drive, Petaluma, entered the street from a driveway. She was treated at Hillcrest for a neck injury.

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland Symphony Orchestra has appointed three assistant conductors, including a woman, Joyce Johnson, its principal trumpet.

The others, announced Tuesday by conductor Harold Farberman, are Milton H. Williams, director of vocal music at the University of California in Berkeley, and Yair Strauss, conductor of the Young People's Symphony in Berkeley.

Transit Accord

DAMASCUS (UPI) — Syria and Iraq today reached agreement on transit fees to be paid by Iraq for the passage of its crude oil through Syria to the Mediterranean, official sources said. No details were available.

Policemen Ordered To High Court

Two San Anselmo police officers and a companion were bound over to Marin Superior Court yesterday on burglary charges following a closed preliminary hearing in municipal court.

Judge David R. Baty ordered Sgt. Edwin Souza Silvia, reserve officer Eugene Charles Saporetti and the third man, Warren Charles Osborne of Fairfax, to appear in superior court Feb. 8.

The three were arrested by San Anselmo police on Dec. 11, and charged with burglary of nine television sets valued at $1,223 from a Sears-Roebuck catalogue store in San Anselmo.

Silvia, 38, is a veteran of nine years on the police force, Saporetti, 24, joined the force a year ago, according to Police Chief Raymond R. Buchignani.

The three men were free on their own recognizance today after being rebooked into Marin County Jail and released.

No Booze, Drugs Discovered In Sniper Autopsy

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Sniper Mark Essex was neither drunk nor drugged during his deadly gunbattle with police Jan. 7, a coroner's report shows.

Dr. Carl T. Rabin, Orleans Parish coroner, issued an autopsy report Wednesday that said there were no traces of alcohol or morphine in Essex's body.

Essex, 23, was shot to death by police on the roof of the downtown Howard Johnson's Motel after a day-long seige in which six other persons were killed.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States would like China to participate in a meeting of the 25-nation disarmament committee in Geneva beginning Feb. 20.

"We have indicated we would welcome the People's Republic of China in participating in the arms negotiations and maintain an open and flexible attitude as to how to accomplish this," State Department spokesman Charles W. Bray said Wednesday.

Bray said no formal invitation had been extended by the United States, however.

HELPING HAND FROM FIREMEN

Dispute Flares Over Resignation Request

City Mgr. William H. Cunningham has asked for the resignation of Mill Valley librarian Alberta Hankenson and the request has triggered a dispute between the city attorney and the chairman of the library board.

Chairman Waultraud Hecht contends the city manager has no right to fire Miss Hankenson from her $14,076-a-year post since libraries operate under the state education code, which gives the library board hiring and firing power over its employees.

Libraries are under the education code, according to Mrs. Hecht, "in order to remove them, to some extent, from the political pressures of local government."

City Atty. Leland H. Jordan, on the other hand, believes Cunningham has properly asked for the librarian's resignation.

He cited a case in which an appellate court ruled that the City of Ukiah had the right to establish a civil service commission which included library employees.

"If this decision is carried to its logical conclusion, it means the state law which permits a city to establish a city manager system also gives that manager power to dismiss and employ library employees," Jordan said.

But the city attorney admitted the question of city manager control over library workers has never been determined in the courts and said it might take a court action to settle the Mill Valley situation.

Cunningham refused to comment on the matter and would not even say if he had asked for the resignation.

Miss Hankenson, however, told the Independent-Journal the city manager had asked her to resign last week, but declined to give the reasons for the move.

She did say she would not resign "unless the library board asks me to or the board is willing to take Mr. Jordan's recommendations. I was hired by the board and I think only the board has the right to fire me," she said.

Cunningham's action apparently resulted from a continuing dispute over finances between the library and city manager. In the past several months Cunningham has asked the library to find new methods to reduce its costs.

Miss Hankenson, 39, was selected librarian in May of 1970, chosen from 19 other candidates to replace Dorothy Thomas, who had retired from the post she held for many years.

Before coming to Mill Valley, Miss Hankenson was head librarian of the Castro Valley branch of the Alameda County Library.

Northridge Plan Sections Endorsed

A joint meeting of Larkspur's City Council, Planning Commission and Park and Recreation Commission last night endorsed sections of the Northridge open space plan that conform to the city's similar plan.

But city officials delayed endorsement of the remainder of the Northridge plan — paid for by the cities of Mill Valley, Corte Madera and Larkspur, and the county and the Marin Conservation League — until its general plan is updated.

The basic differences between the new plan, and Larkspur's own interim open space plan adopted in June last year, are of size and concept. The new plan, prepared by county planning consultant Brian G. Whittenkeller, includes all of Little King Mountain down as far as Magnolia Avenue, and much of lower Baltimore Canyon. The city's doesn't.

Larkspur Planning Director Arthur N. Stout said it was decided that remaining Northridge open space areas will be considered when the city adopts an open space element in its revised general plan, scheduled for completion by July 1.

Long discussion over the two plans centered both on the areas to be preserved, and on how they can be acquired, said Stout.

Whittenkeller's plan has suggested that controlled cluster housing with surrounding open space would be a method of saving open space.

But the city's own open space plan, prepared by the firm of Abergast and Newton, proposes retaining the land in undeveloped conservation.

LONDON (AP) — Minutes before a circus show was due to be staged at a concert hall, all the lights in the auditorium went out. Frantic electricians located the fault. A chimpanzee had thrown the master switch.

Allotment Board Asks Simpler Judging Rules

Petaluma's Development Allotment Board recommended last night that voting procedures be simplified for next year's panel.

The board was appointed to recommend to the city council which of 16 developments should be permitted in 1973-74 under a building limitation of 500 residential units per year.

Members agreed a voting system on developers' applications was too complicated for laymen to understand and asked planning staff members to revise the form next year to reflect less professional terminology.

They also recommended that plans presented by developers be given in one form. This year presentations ranged from gaudy displays with slides and color brochures to simple crayon drawings.

The board agreed that 17 members is a good figure for the board, bur recommended that three alternates be appointed in case not all members carry out their assignments.

In the rating system, the board recommended that school facilities be given more importance in voting. They also said that votes should be split for elementary and secondary schools, since developments may vary in their effects.

The board also recommended that school district superintendents be furnished with more detailed information on plans so they may send the board better reports on the effects developments will have on their schools.

Board chairman Carleton Reinaldo will present recommendations to the city council Jan. 29 at 4 p.m. The council then will hear appeals from developers who received low ratings from the board.

WET ANGUISH

The frustration of his stalled van on a Southern Marin street was too much for this unidentified man. Clasping his forehead, and standing calf-deep in flood water, his mood summed up the soggy situation throughout much of Marin. (See story page 1, pictures pages 1, 6 and 11.)

Carrot Approach Hit On Open Space Funds

The Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission yesterday rebuffed a new effort by county planning officials to use open space money as a "stick and carrot device" for adoption of the proposed countywide general plan. The move was branded by commission chairman Albert J. Boro as an attempt to "mix oil and water," using the new Marin Regional Park District "as a wedge to get cities to adopt the countywide general plan."

The stick and carrot idea was suggested by Sol Silver, chief of advanced county planning, who last month was harshly criticized by the same commission for proposing open space funds be allocated only to cities that adopt low and moderate-income housing policies.

Silver told the commission yesterday the planning department had withdrawn that recommendation and instead recommended that cities which have adopted the countywide plan be given special consideration when open space money is distributed.

(Despite Silver's comments that the planning department had "withdrawn" its first recommendation, yesterday's proposal amounts to the same thing. Adoption of the countywide plan means adoption of low and moderate-income housing policies.)

Silver drew support only from commissioner Polly Smith, who said the regional park district, approved by voters in November to purchase open space lands, is an inseparable part of the countywide plan.

However, Boro and other commissioners responded that voters in November approved only a park district. The campaign for its approval did not link it with the controversial plan, Boro said.

Silver said that unless cities adopt the plan — including its "open space element" — the regional park district will be in for hard times.

A city in favor of development could zone lands for development, thus pushing up their cost to the park district, he explained.

Commissioner Merritt A. Robinson noted, however, that the park district plans to use the "open space element" as a guide on which lands should be purchased.

Robinson, who said he agreed with many of the goals of the countywide plan, joined Boro in opposing a direct tie with the park district.

The discussion came as the commission considered — and adopted — general guidelines for operation of the park district and how open space lands will be acquired.

Open space acquisition techniques include: Outright purchase of lands; purchase of scenic easements; land use (zoning) procedures to promote cluster development; scenic and open space contracts (giving tax benefits), and acceptance of land dedications.

The general guidelines were passed on to the county board of supervisors, which acts as the board of directors for the park district.

Reed Union Trustees To Seek Opinions On Goals

Trustees of the Reed Union School District have decided to invite parents and other interested persons to take another look at the district's general goals and objectives, adopted two years ago by the board.

At their Tuesday meeting, trustees set a public discussion on the goals for 7:30 p.m., Jan. 30 in the Del Mar School library, according to Supt. Ralph D. Giovanniello.

"We hope to review the goals and objectives we have now, see if they are still relevant and encourage people to recommend any changes they think should be made," the superintendent said.

The Reed Union School District board also:

PROGRAM — Heard a report on the district's three-year-old skill building program for 16 fifth and sixth grade students who have learning difficulties. Polly Erion, head of the program, told the board it had been extremely successful in helping the youngsters to building reading and math skills.

GUIDELINE — Adopted a job description outlining the superintendent's duties.

CLOSED SESSION — Met in closed session for approximately 40 minutes to discuss pending litigation, but took no action following the session.

AGREEMENT — Signed a practice teaching agreement authorizing Lone Mountain College in San Francisco to provide the district with one student teacher for the current school year.

Skeleton Said That Of Woman

The headless skeleton found on Mount Tamalpais Jan. 6 is that of a young woman, dead one to three years, coroner's investigator Keith C. Craig said today.

Craig said a team of experts from the College of Marin, Novato Prehistory Museum and private archaeologists had determined that the skeleton was not male, as earlier had been thought.

The experts said the woman was about 5 feet, 8 inches tall and between 18 and 20 years old when she died.

The missing skull has not been found, nor has any cause of death been determined, Craig reported. A college student found the bones strewn widely in a gully near the Mountain Theater.

Marin County Fails To Recognize Role

An unusual relationship exists between Marin County and its cities. Over the years, it has not been a happy one. Currently, the friction is greater than usual.

Traditionally in the United States, county government is "caretaker government." As colonization moved west across the continent, settlers were quick to organize cities. Counties came along, in most cases, with state government. The new state would be divided into counties to provide some local governmental control in the open spaces between the cities. (Alaska is an exception; it has never had any counties.)

The great expansion of government in the last few decades has given counties additional responsibilities in public health, welfare and other fields.

THE TRADITION that only by incorporating as a city could a community provide itself with streets, police and fire protection, etc., has been largely destroyed in California by passage of laws permitting all sorts of special districts to provide the kinds of services which only cities provide in many states.

Marin has its share — or more than its share — of such special districts. It has nearly 100 of them, each with its own tax rate and some kind of governing body.

At the same time these special districts were proliferating, however, Marin County embarked gradually on a policy of trying to provide city services out of county funds. This has led to much of the conflict — cities objecting to their residents having to pay taxes for structural fire fighting in the unincorporated areas, for instance.

SOMEHOW, with this constant expansion of the county's role, the idea has grown up here that the county is the principal government, with the cities merely its subdivisions.

The latest result of this switching of positions is seen in the proposed countywide plan.

During the past decade, all of Marin's cities except Ross have produced their own general plans. The county, however, never has produced a general plan for the unincorporated area — although the board of supervisors has been nagging the planning department for one ever since Mary Summers was planning director.

Finally, the county has come up with a general plan. But it is not a general plan for the unincorporated area. It is a plan for the whole county — and goes far beyond the usual general plan. The cities now are being asked to scrap their plans and adopt that proposed by the "higher level of government" at the Civic Center.

APPARENTLY it never occurred to county officials that the county's responsibility was to produce a general plan for the unincorporated area which would mesh with and supplement those already adopted by the cities.

Thus, we have a wasteful, time-consuming exercise in misspent governmental activity. There is scant possibility that all 11 cities will adopt the gradiose proposals of the countywide plan. So it is fated to become a useless monument to "big brotherism."

How much would have been saved, and how much might have been accomplished, if the county had recognized at the outset that it governs only the unincorporated territory!

Those Early Bird Candidates Pose Moral, Legal Questions

By EARL G. WATERS

The unprecedented early hustings of numerous aspirants to public office, particularly those seeking statewide office, have raised some serious questions of propriety as well as of the adequacy of the state's electioneering and campaign reporting laws.

Technically, one does not become a candidate until he has filed the necessary papers with the county clerk. The time for such filing is set by law and precedes the actual election date by only a few weeks.

In the past those who looked forward to running for an office usually withheld formal declarations until shortly before the official filing time.

But the new trend seems to be to throw all caution to the winds and jump into a race months ahead of the time for filing. Congressman Jerry Waldie declared himself a candidate for governor early last year, almost two years in advance of filing time.

Speaker Robert Moretti tipped his hand publicly by bragging he has built a war chest of $250,000 to run for governor. State Controller Houston Flournoy announced a $150-a-plate fund-raising dinner to finance a statewide campaign. He is not yet formally a candidate for anything although he indicated he is thinking of running for governor.

What makes all this become a sticky issue is the methods used by some to gather in the money.

Califonria election laws require a candidate to file a report of his expenditures and sources of funds. But until one becomes an official candidate there is no requirement for such filing.

In the past campaign funds were generally raised and handled by a committee. The candidate carefully refrained from any direct involvement with either activity.

Of late some aspirants seem to have personally taken over the solicitation and handling of funds.

A LEGISLATIVE counsel opinion holds that a person is legally a candidate when "he commences a systematic endeavor to obtain nomination or election to office." However "for state reporting purposes" the definitions "do not include an indication of exactly when a person becomes a candidate."

"There is no legal limitation as to when contributions . . . may be given or received . . . Assuming . . . that these contributions are in aid of the candidate's . . . election . . . they must be reported."

Apparently, however, money collected for a campaign that does not materialize need not be reported.

Aside from the ethics of such a case, there is a question of taxation.

"An individual contribution made to a person prior to his filing as a candidate . . . is taxable to the donor under both state and federal gift tax laws. . ."

Further, ". . . if political campaign contributions are put to personal use . . . they are reportable income . . ." under both federal and state laws.

"Golly! Gee whiz, fellows! I didn't know we had so many prerogatives."

They've developed a new street-paving material made out of broken glass. This proves that the road to success is paved with good inventions.

Pundits are always quoting the man in the street; and General Motors keeps trying to sell him an auto.

Considering the strength of today's auto bumpers, no wonder the man in the street is frequently up in the air.

The guy who wants to live on Easy Street may find it's impossible to get there from where he's at.

More Fish Wanted In District Lakes

I would like an answer as a senior citizen: Why in the summer time the (Marin Municipal Water District) lakes are too low and too warm to plant fish? In the winter the water is too high and too cold? There is not a shortage of fish in the hatcheries. We pay for a license, also a permit, for what? I don't think Mr. Seeger has been to the lakes in years. The roads are terrible — nothing but ruts and deep holes.

The steps going to Lagunitas are unsafe for the older folks, even a hand rail would be of help. It would seem the MMWD would have the manpower and materials to take care of these things. So what is the answer? The Department of Fish and Game can stock lakes in North Marin, what about putting some fish in the lakes where most of us old people go fishing and where most of our lakes are?

Keep The 'Kewpie Doll' Figures Of 'Love Is'

More comments on "Love Is".

First: To Helmi — You say, "the figures are 'anatomically incorrect'."

True, true, my dear, but have you ever studied Picasso's figures and animals? Neither are they, but surely no one would argue that he is not an artist of considerable stature, nor that his pictures do not project his messages. . .

Second: As to Marion's statement that these comical, lovable little "kewpie doll" figures (she must be too young to remember those) stumbling their way through the experiences of young marrieds with their first baby, thoroughly in love and enjoying it, in any way "borders on the pornographic," is simply beyond my comprehension. Fie on you, Marion!

This woman begs to differ with the opinions of both Helmi and Marion. To me, these saucy little cartoons are a bright spot in the day — I look for them first thing when I open the paper.

So, please, girls, let us of those who enjoy continue to enjoy. . .

To the artist: Just keep them coming! Please.

Jail More Equitable Drunken Driver Penalty

The original intent of parking meters was to give merchants a better customer turnover, and would rotate the available areas in front of their stores or places of business. A small fee for parking was reasonable to cover the servicing of the meters. This position has completely disappeared; the meters are now a revenue producing device. The penalty fees have also been greatly increased, again (opinion) not to motivate the parking rotation but to reap more profit. . .

Drunk driving violations (I have never had one, yet) — I read in our Marin papers that the penalty is around $300. Three hundred dollars to a $400 or $500 a month wage earner is a painful amount. . . to a $2,000 or $3,300 wage earner it probably doesn't hurt at all.

This system hardly seems effective (opinion). I suggest investigating a system of first offense, one week in jail; second offense, three weeks in jail; third offense, three months in jail.

The above system, I believe, would be a more fair and equitable penalty. It would hurt the high-income violator equally with the low income violator. . .

Attempt To Curb Civic Center Recalled

Indeed sir, you are quite adept at a U turn.

Your editorial of Jan. 8 mentions "the multi-million dollar Civic Center that was built without any approving vote of the people . . . "

During the building of that $80 million (just a stab) county seat, John Streiff attempted to arouse public action toward a sane fiscal approach to the fortune making boondoggle. John and his following were far too late with far too little to halt the money grubbers in their victorious onslaught to acquire taxpayers' resources.

The grubbers were ably and effectively assisted by Mr. Brown's Independent-Journal which editorially stated that John's group was pursuing a "red herring."

Was it Confucious or Aesop who said "the chickens have come home to roost"?

Article Captures Character, Work

I want to thank the I-J for running the article about me in the Jan. 6 issue of Marin Magazine. Since this was another first for me, I must confess I was slightly concerned how the finished piece would read. I shouldn't have been.

Mr. Don Keown and Mr. Alfred Arn did an excellent job of combining their talents to create this article of the real Sherry Ford and not some sterile personality. I'm sure I wasn't an easy subject to capture because of my leaping thought process and wide range of work.

Mr. Keown tuned in on the key phrases and attitudes that might have gone unnoticed by someone else. Mr. Arn is the first photographer who's been able to take my work and show the detail and scope in an artistic way.

My compliments to these two men, and to you for having them on the I-J staff.

March Of Dimes Not Advocating Abortion

Contrary to theimplication of a recent letter, the March of Dimes does not advise or advocate therapeutic abortion.

Our avowed goal is the prevention and treatment of birth defects, not births. To reach this goal we fund extensive programs of research, patient care and education, among them some genetic counseling programs.

Genetic counseling is a medical service which gives parents and parents-to-be facts about the possible outcome of planned or present pregnancies. It also attempts to deal with past problems such as the birth of a defective child. The March of Dimes funds a number of genetic counseling clinics in the belief that they provide a much-needed service which would not otherwise be available.

Patients are generally referred to the clinic by their own physicians because of an obvious, immediate need. Participation in the counseling on the part of the parents is purely voluntary as are their decision as to how to use the information gained from the counseling. In addition, we believe that their decisions should not be directed by anyone else . . .

I trust that the people of Marin will continue to respond as generously as they have in the past in helping us to meet the problem of birth defects prevention and treatment — the goal of the National Foundation — March of Dimes.

Mexico Seeking To Diffuse Its Ticking Population Bomb

MEXICO CITY — Beneath the solid economic progress the neighbor to the south of the United States has made in recent decades is a time bomb ticking inexorably on. The net population increase of 3.3 per cent, one of the highest in the world, means a doubling every 20 years, with a projected total of 130 million by the end of the century. The present population is about 54 million.

Evidence of the threat of this explosion was a recent statement signed by 80 Roman Catholic bishops which, in effect, supported the government program of birth control. That program is an emergency drive to try to get the rate of increase down as rapidly as possible.

Beginning with the first of the year, the government opened 18 family planning clinics, 10 in Mexico City. Personnel to staff them have been training for many months. International Planned Parenthood has 52 clinics in operation.

A program much wider in scope is being initiated by the Mexican Social Security Agency. Hospitals all over the country are introducing family planning and providing varied means of birth control free of charge. The hope is that a nationwide system will quickly take hold.

THE STATEMENT by the Catholic bishops was cautiously phrased to avoid any seeming conflict with Pope Paul's encyclical of 1968, Humanae Vitae (of human life), reiterating the church's opposition to any form of artificial contraception. The bishops called their message a "new pastoral orientation" to Humanae Vitae.

While repeating the church's position that only the rhythm method of birth control is sanctioned, they expressed theirsupport for "the role of authorities. . .to invite responsibility, information and facilitate access to medical services" for family planning.

Humanae Vitae has been one of the most controversial of the many encyclicals promulgated by the present Pope.Strong opposition has come from liberal hierarchies in the Netherlands and elsewhere. The Mexican bishops noted that many families have children without being able to provide them with food, housing, clothing, health, love, understanding or education.

THE PRESENT POLICY of the Mexican government on family planning is a radical departure. As recently as last March the official position was that Mexico needed all the increase to carry out the goals of social and economic revolution. Then abruptly President Luis Echeverria Alvarez said this had been a mistake and it was essential to try to stop the flood of new births by direct government intervention.

One reason was the concern of the labor unions over the rapid rise in unemployment. With surplus labor flooding into the market, much of it unskilled and with little education, the wage level is increasingly depressed except for the small, highly skilled trades in their own tightly held unions.

The people explosion in Mexico extends also throughout Latin America. A tidal wave of births is erasing social and economic progress in virtually every country. The over-all rate of increase for Central America is 3.2 per cent, higher than in most Asian nations. The rate is 3.4 per cent a year for the Dominican Republic, Colombia, Ecuador, Venezuela and Paraguay.

ADDING TO the problem is the appalling incidence of illegal abortion. One estimate by demographers is that in all of Latin America there are 11 million illegal abortions annually. With the complications that follow from crude and unsterile procedures, the drain on remedial drugs and blood plasma takes a heavy toll on supplies scarce to begin with. Hospital beds are also in short supply as one consequence of the illegal abortion mills. In Uruguay 80 per cent of all pregnancies end in abortion.

The danger signal has been flashing with increasing intensity as it is realized that the people explosion can mean a breakdown of the social structure, if not revolution. The goal of Planned Parenthood is a net reproduction rate of one. But even after that is achieved it takes about 60 years before the population actually ceases to grow.

This means a country's total population could add 50 to 80 per cent during the 60-year period. For Mexico it means 100 million people by the year 2000 under any circumstance. And if the flood is not quickly checked the projections are so staggering as hardly to bear thinking about.

Attempts To Keep U.S. Public In Dark Must Be Fought

These are complex days, filled with grave decisions that have to be made by individual people as components of the public opinion on which free society rests.

That is why adequate informing of the public is so essential.

That is why the darkness regarding Vietnam is particularly distressing. Until the darkness is dispelled, the public's decisions are inevitably based on emotions and observations which may not be fully founded on fact.

And that is why the press — printed and electronic — is very disturbed at growing and grave limitations on its capacity to find out what is going on and informing the public about it.

THERE IS PLENTY of evidence that the First Amendment in the Constitution's Bill of Rights, which guarantees the freedom of the press, is in danger.

The evidence lies in the inaccessibility of news sources, primarily and overwhelmingly the President; the various pressures being brought on journalistic critics of the President; the efforts to weaken the radio and television networks' news and analysis services; the decision of the courts to impede news reporters' access to sources by punishing them when they protect the secrecy of certain sources.

It is readily agreed that the rights of a free press, like nearly all other rights, are not absolute. Sometimes an individual's right to a fair trial, or the right of privacy, or the duty of citizenship in exposing criminals or protecting the national security, come ahead of freedom of information.

But just because the ocnflict of rights is ill-defined and variable from case to case, the press must struggle constantly to protect not its own rights but the rights of the people. The press may seem paranoid in the battle for freedom. So it must be.

IN THE WORDS of Judge Harold R. Medina, whose services on the federal bench are many and memorable:

"Some people may think that the leaders of the free press would perhaps accomplish more if their claims of constitutional right were less expansive. I do not agree with this. I say it is their duty to fight like tigers right down the line and not give in an inch. This is the way our freedoms have been preserved in the past and it is the way they will be preserved in the future."

The people's right to be informed depends on the press's vigilant and responsible performance of its task. The role of the press in relationship not only to government but to all other "establishment" elements is essentially an adversary role. It was not for nothing called the "fourth estate" by Edmund Burke and others. It must report, investigate, uncover, analyze, and praise or criticize just as the best discerned facts require.

THE PRESS IS OFTEN careless, sometimes wrong, generally subjective in its choice of what to print or air, frequently sensational for sensationalism's sake. It is an imperfect tool. But with all its flaws, it is an absolutely essential element in a free society.

It will survive. It will outlast those who may from time to time seek to tame it.

The public everlastingly criticizes the news media. For several decades there has been a great lessening of diversity, with no single channel of news or opinion necessarily matching the prejudices and biases of plenty of people. The opinions of columnists or commentators will not fit more than a fraction of an inevitably and desirably divided public.

News media are increasingly involved in a crisis of confidence with their publics. This is a far greater problem for them than any hostile efforts of government. It can be mastered as their performance is fair, courageous, skillful. The attacks upon them at various levels of government are less vital than the deliberate blocking of news sources. To keep open the channels of information is in these days a high duty of citizenship.

It Was Wonderful In L.A. Until Washington Redskins Lost

LOS ANGELES — The Super Bowl is over, but for those 12,000 of us from Washington, D.C., who traveled 3,000 miles to see it, the bitter memories still linger on.

First you have to understand what it's like to be here for Super Bowl week end in Los Angeles.

Until then. people in California thought those of us who lived in Washington were small-town yokels who did nothing but raise taxes, waste billions of dollars and order bombing raids on Vietnam.

But when the Redskins won an opportunity to play in the Super Bowl, the image changed. Those of us who arrived on Thursday and Friday found ourselves feted as social lions. As fans of one of the teams to play in the greatest of all games. our phones never stopped ringing.

"MR. SINATRA would like you for dinner."

"Dinah Shore wants you for tennis."

"Warren Beatty wishes to give a small party for you and your friends."

The Super Bowl does things to people. and Californians could not do enought for their Washington brothers.

It wasn't just the big people but also the little ones who treated the Washington fan with respect and awe. Taxi drivers forgot to turn on their meters, bellhops refused to take tips. In restaurants, if you identified yourself as a Redskin fan, they threw out a party of four in the middle of their meal and gave you their table.

IT WAS HEADY stuff. But after all, we were of the same tribe as Billy Kilmer, Larry Brown and Chris Hanburger. We lived in the same town as George Allen and Roy Jefferson and Mike Bass. To Californians, we were the chosen people.

I remember the Saturday before the game saying to my wife, "Maybe we should move out here."

She agreed. "Californians are fine Americans. Where should we go to dinner tonight — the Charlton Hestons' or the Burt Lancasters'?"

"Let's go to both," I said, "so we won't hurt anyone's feelings."

THAT'S HOW IT WAS until game time. If you were from Washington, your cup kept running over.

But then on Sunday at exactly 3:39 p.m., Pacific time, our world fell apart. Our team had been defeated 14 to 7.

That night when we got back to the Beverly Wilshire Hotel, the atmosphere had changed. I first realized it was when I asked the hotel operator if there were any messages for me and all she did was laugh.

I tried to call Frank, but he had gone to Palm Springs. Warren Beatty's answering service told us he was not only refusing calls, he wasn't even taking messages. Dinah's maid said Miss Shore could be reached by writing her at NBC. The word was out in Los Angeles that Washington people were losers.

THERE WAS NOTHING left to do but to return home. We paced and called a taxi and told him to take us to the L.A. airport. "Where are you flying to?" he asked us as he turned onto the freeway.

"Washington."

He stopped the cab and made us get out. "Sorry," he said, "I just remembered I was off-duty."

As we stood on the freeway, trying to hitch a ride to the airport, I kept yelling at the cars that passed us by, "For gosh sakes, we only lost by seven points."

'Moonchildren' To Be Presented At Eight Shows

The play "Moonchildren," a nominee for the 1973 Pulitzer Prize, will be performed by the Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts eight times, beginning Friday, at the center.

"Moonchildren," by Michael Weller. is about a troop of college boys and girls living together in lyrical sloppiness, awash with the myth of freedom," according to Priscilla Smith of the center. It is set in an American college town in the mid-1960s.

The play will be performed by American Conservatory Theater trainees, Mrs. Smith said. Sali Lieberman, founder of the Mill Valley center, is directing the West Coast premiere of the production, which has been a critical success in Washington, D.C., and on Broadway, according to Mrs. Smith.

"Moonchildren" will be presented Friday and Saturday, Jan. 26 and 27 and Feb. 9, 10, 16 and 17 at 8:30 p.m.

Marin Quartet Sings Saturday

Forty members of the Marin Chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America will sing at the San Francisco Opera House in a program at 8:15 p.m. Saturday.

The local singers will be part of a mass chorus of more than 400 voices, including men from chapters of the society throughout Northern California.

Other prize-winning groups from other states will also sing, according to Maury Carlson, president of the Marin chapter.

Test Begins On Plan To Tap Earth's Heat

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A geologist said Wednesday a one-year pilot program has begun on his scheme for untapping from the earth's core an unlimited source of cheap power to alleviate the world's energy crisis.

Allen T. Van Huisen, research director of Geo-Energy Systems, said he has invented a system for extracting heat energy from geothermal sources beneath the earth's surface.

Van Huisen said the energy source would be non-polluting and be produced at a fraction of the cost of existing nuclear, fossil and geothermal sources.

"Everywhere man stands upon the earth, there is geothermal heat beneath his feet," he said. "Geothermal magma hot rock exists underground everywhere in the world. Geothermal pools exist near the surface. My invention can be adapted to produce power from either source."

The Rogers Engineering Co., a geothermal engineering firm in San Francisco, has undertaken a projected one-year design and study of the geologist's plan.

The only operating geothermal power plants in the U.S. are located at Sonoma and operated by the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. San Diego Gas and Electric Co. is formulating plans for geothermal power development in the Imperial Valley.

Van Huisen said his proposed system, called the Downhole Heat Exchanger, involves drilling a well to hot brine reservoirs and extracting heat by pumping clear water into the hole. The water is returned to the surface by more pumping as clean steam to power electric generating turbines. according to Van Huisen.

The geologist predicted his system could eventually provide electric power, thermal heating of homes and buildings, desalination of water, heat irrigation of crops, construction of frost-free airports and highways and development of ice-free harbor and channel systems to open ports and waterways to shipping in the Arctic.

Rosy Economic Picture Painted

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — More Americans will be working for more money in 1973, presidential economic consultant Dr. Walter Heller predicted Wednesday.

"We're in a very strong year for the economy," Heller said. "The prospects for you and me —and the country—are very good. In 1973, I think the surge will be the largest in the gross national product in history. Last year it went up between $102 to $103 billion. This year I would think it will rise to $114 billion."

He also forecast a drop in unemployment from 5.2 per cent to 4.75 per cent by the end of the year and a 14 per cent rise in estimated corporate profits.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Jazz pianist and composer Duke Ellington is expected to be released Friday from St. Vincent's hospital where was admitted last week with influenza symptoms. The 73-yearold entertainer was hospitalized Thursday suffering from a high fever.

Help Asked In Choosing Rec Member

The Strawberry Recreation District board, still deadlocked over the choice of a successor to director Carl L. Schaefer, has decided to seek community reaction to contenders for the seat.

At its meeting Monday, the board agreed to include in its January Newsletter biographies of Patricia M Jeremiah and Fred Holmes, applicants for the board post and to invite district residents to voice their opinion.

David E. Roberts, recreation manager, said residents are asked to write a note, stating their preference, to the recreation district office, 118 East Strawberry Drive, or stop by the office with their choices.

The four-man board has tried unsuccessfully to choose a new director at its last two meetings, but has been split 2-2 between Mrs. Jeremiah, the loser in a recent board election, and Holmes.

Directors Manuel K. Lehua and Jane Brown favor Holmes, while board members Thomas Miller and Arthur R. Senter want Mrs. Jeremiah appointed.

Payment Stopped On Lost Check For $1 Million

ATLANTA (UPI) — The City of Atlanta lost a check for $1,309,200 from the federal government, the Environmental Protection Agency said Monday.

But even if the check had been found there would have been no chance to cash it. The EPA immediately stopped payment.

The incident happened more than a year ago, according to EPA regional administrator Jack E. Ravan who wrote Mayor Sam Massell that the check was mailed to the city by certified letter on Jan. 10, 1972, and was signed for by a secretary at Atlanta's city hall.

Newsmen Gain A Good Friend

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gov. Nelson Rockefeller called Wednesday night for a federal shield law to protect the confidentiality of reporters' news sources.

Rockefeller, who in 1970 supported and signed into law New York's freedom of information law, said "our state shield law protects reporters. And I think every state in the union ought to have a similar shield law. And if every state in the union ought to have one. then why not the U.S. itself?"

Rockefeller made the statement while accepting an honorary membership in the New York Press Club.

Newsword Adventures

The word "President" goes back to the classical Latin "praeses," a title given to governors of Roman provinces. In medieval Europe "president" continued to be used at times for royal administrators. Several colonies in North America gave the title to the presiding officers of their councils. During the Revolution, the person presiding over the Continental Congress was called the president. Since the adoption of the title for the head of the U.S. government, it has become the accepted term for the elected head of a modern republic.

DO YOU KNOW — What is the head of government in Great Britain called?

WEDNESDAY'S ANSWER — Yes, by two-thirds vote of both Houses of Congress.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON GREB

Name day is what some people celebrate instead of birthdays. How many of the people born today do you recognize? Each picked a new name later in life.

1. C. M. Clay, Jr. might bop you in the nose if you called him by his middle name, which is Marcellus. Maybe that's what made him so mad he became a heavyweight champion. He is 31 today. An Olympic champion, he won the crown at age 22, knocking out the tough but aging Sonny Liston in the 7th round. His name today?

2. Archie Leach, 69 today, is a long-time Hollywood film favorite. Born in Bristol, England, he ran off to join a troupe of acrobats and traveled with them to America in 1920. Switching to musicals, he was discovered by Arthur Hammerstein, who launched him on a career which led to his starring in such movies as "The Awful Truth," "I Was a Male War Bride," and "Operation Petticoat." He was given a special Oscar in 1970. His name today?

3. David D. Kominski is that "Kid from Brooklyn" who followed "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty," then Hollywood got "Up in Arms" over the way he impersonated "The Inspector General" and turned this "Court Jester" into Hans Christian Anderson. He is now an official ambassador for the United Nations Children's Fund. Today he is 60 and goes by the name of?

4. O. Norvell Hardy was born Jan. 18, 1892 in Harlem, Geo. into a family which had no theatrical traditions. His widowed mother ran a hotel. After going to military school and a music conservatory, he studied at the University of Georgia, then opened a movie theater. This got him into show business, a break that brought him fame and fortune as one of the funniest film comedians of our time. He was teamed with a skinny guy called Stanley.

ANSWERS

1. Muhammad Ali; 2. Cary Grant; 3. Danny Kaye; 4. Oliver Hardy.

East's Bidding Gives South A Tip On A Singleton Heart

The opponents bid for reasons of their own, not to give you information. However, in today's hand the bidding warned declarer that East might have a singleton heart. The threat was clear, and South found a way to meet it.

Opening lead – ♡ Q

FIRST STEP

South's first step was to win the opening lead with dummy's ace. It would be fatal to let the first trick ride around to declarer's own king.

South's next move was to take the ace of spades and continue with the queen of spades to draw trumps as quickly as possible. Here again South avoided a pitfall since a trump finesse would have been fatal.

West won the second round of trumps with the king and returned the jack of hearts. East could use his last trump to ruff this trick, but this permitted South to play his low heart. He still had the king of hearts for later use.

The defenders could take the ace of clubs sooner or later, but this was only their third trick. The contract was safe.

TRAPS AVOIDED

Now let's examine the traps that South avoided. If South wins the first heart trick in his own hand, East will be in position to ruff dummy's ace of hearts when that suit is next led. West regains the lead with the ace of clubs in time to cash another heart trick. The defenders thus get two hearts and two trump tricks.

Even if South avoids this trap, he will still lose the hand if he takes a finesse on the first round of trumps. West wins and leads a heart for East to ruff. West gets back with a club and leads another heart, giving his partner a second ruffing trick.

You are next, holding:
♥ - 5

What to you say?

ANSWER: Bid two diamonds. You have three points in high cards and three points for the singleton, enough for a raise of partner's suit.

Conviction On Deceiving Army

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (UPI) — Earl F. Cole, demoted from brigadier general and retired by the Army with the rank of colonel following Senate investigations of military post exchange contract scandals in Vietnam, was convicted Tuesday of deceiving the Army.

Cole, 53, and his former secretary, Catherine Jean Baker, 49, were found guilty in U.S. District Court of seven counts of deception and face maximum prison terms of 35 years and fines of $70,000.

Judge Oren R. Lewis released Cole and Mrs. Baker on bond pending a probation officer's report. Lewis will set sentence Feb. 9.

FISHING IS EVERYWHERE IN MARINSHIP

The Sausalito Boat and Tackle Shop at Gate Six near Marinship might just as well have been in the middle of San Francisco Bay this morning as flood waters lapped at its sides. Customers who had parked their cars nearby stayed inside, perhaps wondering whether to try their luck at fishing while they waited. (See story page 1 and more pictures on pages 1, 6 and 7.)

Watergate Trial Is Stalled By An Appeal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Watergate bugging trial was stalled today while a federal appeals court decided if the prosecution's star witness may testify about conversations he monitored last year from the tapped telephones of high level Democrats.

The witness, former FBI agent Alfred C. Baldwin III, had testified Wednesday how he was hired by the security chief for President Nixon's reelection campaign for $225 a week to eavesdrop on both personal and political conversations from a listening post —a hotel room across the street from the Watergate complex offices of the Democratic National Committee.

But when victims of the eavesdropping objected to his disclosing what he overheard — some of it reportedly of a highly intimate and possibly irrelevant nature —the trial was recessed while Chief U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica listened to their arguments in secret.

When Sirica overruled the objections and ordered that Baldwin's testimony could be admitted, the decision was appealed to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. The appeals court had provided for such a procedure in an order last Friday.

Baldwin, of Hamden, Conn., who has been promised immunity from prosecution in exchange for his crucial testimony, was due to retake the stand when the trial resumed.

How soon that might be was unclear, as it was not known how quickly the appeals court would act. Also, lawyers for one of the remaining two Watergate defendants, former White House aide G. Gordon Liddy, insisted on listening to a five-hour taped interview Baldwin gave the Los Angeles Times last fall describing his clandestine work.

"I'm sure the court of appeals will consider this case with expedition and we hope they do," said Charles W. Morgan, the American Civil Liberties Union attorney who is representing the eavesdrop victims. "We have no desire to delay the Watergate case and have not done so to this date."

Agnew, Kennedy Race Predicted

WESTERVILLE, Ohio (UPI) — William A. Rusher, publisher of the National Review, says it looks like the 1976 presidential race will be between Spiro Agnew and Sen. Edward Kennedy.

"In Ted Kennedy, the Democrats have a really good prospect if they don't blow it," Rusher told an Otterbein College audience Wednesday.

The publisher also predicted "the American people will be taxed until their noses bleed" during President Nixon's second term.

Appliances And Stereo Stolen

Appliances and stereo equipment valued at $2,229 were stolen in a burglary yesterday at Grant's at the Petaluma Plaza, police reported.

Officers said bolts were cut on a rear sliding door to gain entry.

Chico Attorney Seeks Demo Job

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — John Merlo, a Chico lawyer, announced his candidacy Monday for the chairmanship of the California Democratic Party.

Merlo, who is now Northern California chairman, also predicted that Assemblyman John Burton of San Francisco would seek the office. And Burton, reached in Sacramento, agreed.

The chairman will be picked Jan. 27 at a party convention in Sacramento. The job is alternated between Northern and Southern California.

GLORIA STEINEM shared laughs at a quip during her talk to a packed College of Marin gymnasium last night in Kentfield. All of the out groups — women and the racially oppressed — have to work together for equality, "not fight over 5 per cent of the pie when the 95 per cent belongs to you know who," she said.

A PACKED COLLEGE GYM

Gloria Steinem Speaks In Marin

By JOAN LISETOR

While a large crowd outside was chanting, "We want in. We want in," Gloria Steinem was telling the more than 2,000 men and women inside the College of Marin gymnasium last night that what Marin County means to her is Angela Davis.

"That long, incredible, oppressive, unnecessary trial made Marin County a symbol of freedom," said Miss Steinem, 38-year-old editor of the highly successful Ms. Magazine and a spokesperson for the women's liberation movement.

Accompanying Miss Steinem was Margaret Sloan, 25, a writer for Ms. Magazine, who is active in both the women's and the black movements.

"If we come today, and there's no trouble tomorrow, we might as well not have come," Miss Steinem said. "We are still confronted with people who think the movement is just about child care, equal pay for equal work, the Equal Rights Amendment and abortion."

WHILE SHE was attempting to tell an anthropological story of how the discovery of paternity brought about a patriarchal society, the public address system repeatedly went off. Undaunted, when the microphone went out for the fifth time, she turned to Miss Sloan, saying, "Don't worry. There is a God, and she will help us out."

In a patriarchal society, women do the work men don't want to do, be it typing or ditch digging, she said.

"Gradually women become second class citizens," she said. "Then other groups are captured and brought in and because of a racial difference given the kind of work to do that is not rewarded in that society."

Both groups, black men and white women, are cheap labor with no authority over white men. Other parallels are myths about irresponsibility, always being late, not being able to work together, having a more sexual nature, being closer to the earth, having natural rhythm and having peculiar odors, she said.

The trouble starts when the member of an oppressed group gets a little up in the world, she said, and wants to an "only," — the only Jew in a club, black family on a block or woman in a club, said the editor.

"I do not want to equate the suffering of women with the suffering of blacks," Miss Steinem said, "but we also lose lives, through illegal abortions and lack of health care facilities, but let us not compare wounds but instead see ourselves as a coalition of out groups seeking to overthrow a patriarchal society."

THE SOCIETY Miss Steinem said she seeks is one in which no one is born into an inferior position because of sex or race.

Women are made to feel like half people, she said, because women are taught they are nothing without a man, and their identity comes from a man.

She told a classic story of a woman who broke a date with another woman to go out with a man, "and it didn't matter that the man was 4 foot 2 and had terminal acne," she said, "and with no redeeming qualities, except that he was a man.

"If only men understood how little it matters which man is standing there."

Love is not possible where there is not equality, she said, and marriage laws work against love.

"The (women's) movement may make love possible for the first time. There is a notion that the movement is Puritanical and against sex. The point is not whether it is for or against sex but that it is chosen, not imposed on one or the other. Most men are so accustomed to submission that they don't know about cooperation."

The movement is no longer allowing others to define its goals, she said, and is united on all problems concerning women.

"TO BE A feminist you are saying that all women are full human beings. Defining feminism leaves no room for racism. It comes in pairs. Where there is one there is the other."

The audience cheered as Miss Steinem introduced Miss Sloan, who said, "It's been a long time since I've seen this many white people in one room. If I say something good don't stand up and cheer or I'll think you are coming after me."

As a black woman involved in the women's movement she has no problem with priorities because if racism is there, so is sexism, she said. The white male journalists' view of the feminist movement is that there are few black women involved, she said, but in her travels she meets many black women interested in the issues.

Involved in the civil rights movement since she was 14, something about the movement bothered her for years, she said, until she realized men did all of the planning and a woman's importance depended on what man she attached herself to.

"Black women have trouble with their self images. Who do they look up to? Imagine having to look off a pancake box for one," she said.

If the best known demand of the movement, equal pay for equal work, were realized there would be an economic revolution in this country, she said.

"NINETY-EIGHT per cent of jobs that pay over $15,000 a year are held by white men," she said.

Active in the National Committee for Household Employment, Miss Sloan urges domestic workers not to work for less than the minimum wage and those who employ household help not to pay less than minimum wages.

"Any man who knows what it means to be a man in this country today should embrace the women's movement with open arms. What we are trying to say, and what people don't hear, is that the women's movement is not about exchanging roles but about humanizing both," she concluded.

Feminist Leader Holds Rap Sessions

By BARBARA HOSMER

If Gloria Steinem played to a packed house at the College of Marin last night, she also starred in the crowded living rooms of two Marin homes.

Marin's active feminists managed to get close-up samplings of the smooth, open Miss Steinem style as she exchanged views on how women are getting it together to create the changes that feminists envision in American society.

The faces of students, the mid-30 and the mature women who make up the Marin women's movement were intent as they brought up problems and ideas for reaction by the writer and editor of the movement's favorite magazine, Ms.

Over a tamale pie dinner in a San Anselmo home, Miss Steinem and Margaret Sloan of the magazine talked about the ill-fated "reproduction plank" at the Democratic Party convention, the nature of mainly white suburban Marin, and direction of the movement.

THEN MISS STEINEM and Sloan moved to a back bedroom to get in a few minutes rap directly with five student members of Women on the Move from Redwood High School, under TV lights as KQED camera as filmed a day in the life of Gloria Steinem.

The girls worried about how "you reach high school women who think the movement is just equal pay for equal work" and for those less attractive women. "Should you be brutal?" asked one.

"Bring somebody in who has been there and now is divorced and on welfare," one in three is going to be divorced, but that statistic alone won't convince them, suggested Miss Steinem. "Even if what you are doing now doesn't bear fruit at the moment, it will later when you hit the discriminations on the job — then there will be support for you through the movement," she told them.

"Just the fact you (Women on the Move) exist is great — you can see the problems and know you're not crazy."

For the problems with boys and men she suggested that the women "get some men to discuss how the male role affects them. You are ones who are going to make the changes but they will face the male role . . . which denies a whole set of emotions. They won't want to fit as a peg in the whole structure. But if they believe that half the world is subordinate, that's their problem.

"Draft resisters refused to play the male role and kill people, and it upset their fathers, who would like to buy their manhood with their sons' lives."

Then she probed as to how many black students attend Redwood and why some had left.

"Did you women students support the black students?" she asked. "Otherwise it's bad for us both," she said, playing a favorite Steinem theme that women and other out groups such as the racially oppressed must work together and not fight over "five per cent of the pie."

LATER, AFTER the talk to a jammed house at the College of Marin gym, Miss Steinem slogged through the muddy night to a hillside house in Larkspur where some 60 women and a handful of men rapped about how and where the movement was happening, with Marin Women's Health Collective hosting. Changed from clear to her famous tinted glasses, Miss Steinem outlined the need for household workers to organize and how it was being done, asked a teen-ager whose family didn't understand her involvement with the women's movement: "Do you think your mother might be afraid for you?", and repeated an earlier statement, "I'm not sure if we can work through the Democratic Party again."

She explained why she called history's earliest time a "genocracy" rather than matriarchy — "a matriarchy implies a power structure and I just meant an emphasis on female things."

She also discussed how a woman's center might work in Marin, citing Seattle as the place where one was most together, including a mix of students, radical feminists, League of Women Voters and AAUW women and the single woman judge in the area.

THE RAP was characterized by her careful listening to a myriad of questions and conversation and giving thoughtfully made suggestions to each, ending after midnight with an "Ooh, I'm getting punchy."

"She's been up since five, has a bad back and is getting old," quipped Miss Sloan as their exit line, and TV lights flashed on to film the get-away into the stormy Marin night.

Today she headed on for a day in Los Angeles, then home to New York.

"We come and try to stir up things, and then go, so we can do all we can to help you get it going," she had told the women earlier. "Then you have to live it."

Sausalitan To Lead Biking-Hiking Trip

By MOLLY MARIN

Leaving for Guatemala next week to conduct a biking-hiking trip for the Sierra Club is Linda Liscom of Sausalito.

She is just back from Nepal, where she walked from Katmandu to Darjeeling. Linda covered the 500 miles in 50 days. Her Nepal hike was an independent excursion. The Sausalito woman is on a six month leave from her job as a dental hygienist, "to do some of the things she has always wanted to do."

THE BRADLEY McNears and the Robert Thomases have returned to their homes in San Rafael after a visit to Miami, Fla.

AMONG THE list of models selected by the Junior League from among their members for the annual fashion show are several Marinites, as usual for the gala.

Final Text Introduced

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Educational Publishing Division of J.B. Lippincott Company has introduced the third and final text in its "Search for Understanding" science education series.

The text, Earth Science, is aimed at students in grades seven through 12. The material is designed to help students make intelligent decisions concerning environmental problems.

Like its companion textbooks in the series, Earth Science does not require elaborate, expensive laboratory equipment.

The entire lab program is built around simple materials which already exist in the classroom or which can be brought from home. The Earth Science sequence covers basic geography, geology, meteorology, astronomy and ecology.

GENERATION RAP

How Do You Address Your Cards To Unmarried Live-Togethers

RAP:

We sent out Christmas cards as a married couple for the first time last year, and we came up against a problem: About a third of the old college gang have roommates, but not marriages. We don't like to address cards to just one when we know them both, but it could be embarrassing if we write Nancy Green and Dave Black, Apt. 12, Open Arms, (address and city), especially if the landlord didn't know they weren't married.

An etiquette expert suggested we address the cards to the person (or persons) whose name (or names) appear on the mail box: or to the one who rents the apartment — just to be on the safe side, if we don't know they've openly announced their trial marriage — but most of these friends live in different cities and we don't know all the details.

So what's the best way to solve this modern problem? — MR. AND MRS. (WITH FRIENDS WHO AREN'T) MR. AND MRS. WFWA:

How about addressing the envelope, "Dave and Nancy, care of Dave Black . . . etc." Or put just one name outside and add a "To Nancy and Dave" note on the card. — SUE

MR. AND MRS. ETC.:

. . . And before next Christmas rolls around, how about asking Dave and Nancy how they want their envelopes addressed? That is, if they aren't married by then. — HELEN

DEAR MADAM HELEN:

You say the present national anthem doesn't relate very well to today's America. Does it occur to you that you and your hippie ideas could be out of date, or more accurately out of place? What has America done today in comparison to the America of Francis Scott Key, to make the star spangled banner yet wave? It is evident that your sympathies are with the flag burners.

I'll wager you received a number of letters from older, patriotic people who were shocked at your attitude that tradition should be "updated." — MR. A.C.G.

DEAR MR. G:

Some several!

But I also received this letter from another member of the older generation who is, I'm sure, just as patriotic as you are:

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

Probably neither of you remember that up to World War I, our assumed National Anthem was "My Country 'Tis of Thee." It had real meaning, and a tune people could carry, but a prominent patriotic society took exception to it because the Germans used the tune for a national song, "Heil dir im Siegerkranz." (It is also the music for the English people's "God Save the King.")

The present song was pushed through Congress (1931), but the music to Key's poem is from an old English drinking song. (Perhaps this is the reason it doesn't fit the words very well.)

Truly, I am a loyal and patriotic citizen and a former member of the organization I mentioned. Many people agree with me that the "Star Spangled Banner" is not an anthem but a war song, written during the War of 1812. The last stanza has some value but no one has learned that. Also, only high sopranos can show off their range by soaring up to the high notes. The rest of us flounder.

Thanks, Helen, for daring to suggest a change. I wish someone would start a crusade. "America the Beautiful" is a real anthem with wonderful meaning. I'd even go back to "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

Hope my generation isn't horrified at me.

May I add that I always enjoy your column. It is sane and intelligent — MRS. L.P.R.

DEAR MRS. R.:

And we enjoyed your sane, intelligent letter. Thanks for writing. — HELEN AND SUE

PARENT AND CHILD

The Critical Time For Spring Grads

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

It's not too soon for college seniors to begin job hunting. Especially students in liberal arts colleges. And this isn't something students should do alone without benefit of parental advice.

While parents should not be making decisions for their adult-age children, they shouldn't be ignoring their need for counsel either. Many students who are about to complete their college years have no solid idea of what profession they wish to be in.

And incredible as it may sound, liberal arts colleges generally provide very poor vocational counseling. At most, the job counselor is often someone who has never held a nonacademic job. Thus all of his information is theoretical. In addition to not really knowing or understanding the job market, he is often unacquainted with many of the students.

This is no time for the family to hold back. On the contrary, mom and dad ought to provide countless opportunities for their college youngsters to get to know and talk with a variety of working adults.

IT'S ALSO a time for parents to listen carefully to their children. Suppose your college senior tells you what he wants to do is work in a gasoline station. That's not a tragedy; not a copout; not a disaster. Help him analyze his reasons, explore possibilities, and see that he works toward an understanding of management.

Suppose your college daughter turns her back just weeks before graduation on the profession for which she has been preparing, announcing that she is to be married and begin a family of her own. This too, is not a tragedy, a copout, a disaster. Help her analyze her reasons for marriage at this time. Explore with her how she can use her training to enrich her home.

Parents must exercise extreme care that they don't give their young adults a sense of discouragement about employment opportunities. There is talk, in the United States especially, of unemployment. Yet newspapers carry many advertisements for trained personnel in almost every field. There are plenty of job opportunities. And there are employers who are looking for alert, hard-working and competent college graduates.

For their part, students should not procrastinate through the winter and spring and greet the summer with "What will I do? I haven't got a job."

Start now, if you haven't already done so, to list those jobs you might be interested in pursuing. After listing them in order of preference, then list what qualifications you think you could bring to such a job. Next list firms and specific employers for whom you might be interested in working. Now, match your job interests with employers and locations that meet your needs.

Learn everything you can about the firms or businesses you put on your list. Get your parents to help you through their friends and business acquaintances. Ask the librarian to help you find material in magazines and books about these firms. Write to them asking for their annual reports and personnel policies.

THEN, AFTER you have studied several potential employers and you have reduced the list to manageable terms, write and ask for an opportunity to interview someone in the firm. Be sure to talk with someone besides a personnel employee. If, for example, you're interested in a job using your interest in chemical engineering, don't just talk with someone in the personnel department. Ask to talk with a chemical engineer, perhaps an employee who completed college recently and has been with the firm for just a year or so.

The young engineer can tell you what he's found more useful —as well as what he's found least useful — that he studied in college. If you interview soon enough, you may have time to enroll in a course or two that will help round out your education.

And those who think they already know what profession to pursue should take every opportunity to learn as much about on-the-job working conditions as possible. It's a little ridiculous, for example, to get a job leading toward teaching school before finding out whether or not you enjoy children as a steady diet.

PRACTICAL AND SOPHISTICATED

Italians Show New Styles

Combined AP and UPI

ROME — Practical and sophisticated clothes are what Italian designers have in mind for the spring and summer of 1973. Some succeeded in bringing off both during this week's showings.

This year also is witnessing the return of dresses, a little on the quiet side for morning wear, bouncy and airy for the afternoon and cocktails.

In many cases, designers presented a pleated skirt and belted overblouse to form a dress effect.

Concerned with being practical were the American designers of La Mendola, whose silk jersey and georgette dreses, sometimes with a pleated skirt and stiff Renaissance collar, are crease resistant. Their long evening gowns with draped scarves or maribou boleros carry all the glamour of exotic lands.

Italian Italian couturier Capucci, as much an artist in handling colors as in cutting fabrics, showed fancy beehive dresses in a crisscross of tiny or medium-sized pleats. He used the same technique for short jackets and open coats worn over a shirtwaist dress in different pink panels.

MORNING DRESSES, very simple with a turtle neck and no sleeves, contrasted with the vaporous line the designer gave his evening dresses.

Pino Lancetti also went in for the silk skirts and shirts or overblouses that look like dresses.

He often hip-pleated skirts except in suits, which mostly were wraparound. Seven-eighth coats in sand, yellow, lilac, pale blue and green let the printed silk of his shirtwaist dresses appear.

To keep the sun out of your eyes, Lancetti designed broad-brimmed hats as worn by Marlene Dietrich, overshadowing the face.

Fro afternoon wear, brims widened and dresses got sexier, with frills and ruffles along the shawl neckline and around the sleeves. Lancetti also offered tiered dresses and drawstring scooped necks for pale blue georgette or lilac evening dresses, embroidered with silk around the sleeves and bodice front.

Lancetti also had a surprise: prints on crepe dresses, featuring statues or women's faces in wide, horizontal bands.

HEINZ RIVA showed ponchos for evening gowns in a collection which also brought back the street length cocktail dress.

The Swiss-born designer used vivid shades of cyclamen pink, sun yellow and Chinese red as well as crisp blue and white prints for both day and evening.

Many of his dresses were banded at the hem with stripes of fuchsia, yellow, red, pink and purple. He used the same colors for an Aztec design of stripes and triangles.

His ponchos had openings for the wrist and then were sewn in a semicircle to just below the top of the thigh for a batwing effect when the models opened their arms.

They were printed with circular designs like stylized bulls eyes, back and front. One full leg was left uncovered in a brown and white check version.

All of his dresses and coats were slim and the cocktail dresses, of crepe de chine and voile-chiffon, were artfully draped.

ANDRE LAUG showed neatly constructed dresses and skirts with belted overblouses that had the look of shirtdresses softened and more detailed. Many had accordion or knife pleats and some showed about 3 inches of underskirts in a larger version of the same print or different size pleat.

His coats were narrow with welting down the back and patch pockets. Several raincoats tied at the waist and had large hoods.

His models wore several long strings of beads to replace the chains that have been the rage for the last few years. The beads, often amber and ivory, sat on the soft, floppy bow at the neck of most blouses and dresses.

Heels were at least 3 inches high and the models carried large flat rectangular purses with straps long enough to go over the shoulder.

The Psychic Is Explored

NEW YORK (UPI) — Russian scientists are intensifying their studies of psychic phenomena, according to Alexander Everett, president of Mind Dynamics, an educational institution which teaches self-improvement through the controlled use of alpha waves.

Everett made that point when speaking in New York on Soviet efforts to utilize psychic energies. He was one of a small group of American scientists and educators invited to Moscow last summer for a closed international conference at the Russian Institute of Parapsychology.

Russian scientists reported on investigations of the psychic, its meaning and possible usefulness.

Natural Linen Look For Men

For men, the natural look of linen is combined with contrasting striping at neck and waist of a short-sleeved sweater.

From Admit One's holiday-spring collection, it is available in trim colors of gold, blue, green and orange.

Check Bra Band

Check the underbust band of any bra you're trying on. It should fit snugly, not too tightly. If it rides up, it is too tight. If you can run your finger easily under the band, then the fit is correct. Check the back, too. If it rides up the fit around your body is too tight.

Ivory And Black Big For Spring

New for spring is combining ivory and black, which looks more elegant and subtle than black and white.

When two different prints are used, one for a skirt and for the shirt, topped off with a long sashed ivory jacket, the suit achieves a contemporary look.

Mariner 9 Destroys Mars Myth

WASHINGTON (UPI) — America's unmanned Mariner 9 spaceship has destroyed the myth that Mars is a long dead planet, scientists believe.

Instead, Mars was wracked by volcanoes for 3 billion years and washed in the distant past by rivers of water flowing over its surface.

This picture was given Wednesday by scientists who analyzed data from Mariner 9, which was launched from Cape Kennedy May 30, 1971, and began orbiting the "Red Planet" 167 days later. The spaceship was shut down Oct. 27 after orbiting Mars 698 times.

Harold Masursky of the U.S. Geological Survey said the analysis of data indicated the probe had "destroyed the myth" that Mars was old and dead.

"We think it has been alive all the time," Masursky said. "We see volcanic centers which are heavily cratered and which have to be very old."

But scientists who briefed reporters said there was nothing to indicate the presence of life on Mars today. They said the conclusion that water once flowed on Mars increases the probability that life existed there at some time. They said there might still be volcanic activity beneath the Martian surface.

Determining whether there actually is life on Mars must wait until spacecraft land there. U.S. officials expect to announce within five or six weeks where Viking 75—a double launch planned for 1975 which will land two U.S. unmanned craft on Mars the following year—will be sent.

"Whatever probability we placed on finding life on Mars five years ago, it must be higher now because of the evidence there was water," said Dr. Bradford Smith of New Mexico State University.

But Dr. Arthur L. Lane of the space agency's Jet Propulsion Laboratory (JPL) at Pasadena, Calif., said a major unresolved question is the lack of nitrogen in the Martian atmosphere. Nitrogen is an essential element in forming the amino acid molecules related to terrestial life.

Many of the observations made by Mariner 9, which mapped all of Mars, are being used in selecting the Viking landing site.

MUSIC REVIEW

Marin Youth Orchestra Performance A Winner

By SYLVIA L. RUBY

Hugo Rinaldi's Marin Youth Orchestra scored a winning performance at the Veterans Memorial Building last night. With a program that moved from the very contemporary to the refined classic and onto the richly romantic, conductor and performers demonstrated their versatility in fine form.

The audience of 300 was made up mostly of that select group of knowledgable appreciators of music known as parents, siblings, relatives and friends of the orchestra members — a good turnout, but this organization is worthy of a full house.

Rinaldi is a joy to watch. His conducting style encompasses large, expressive motions as well as the tightly controlled martial tilt to his head for a march-like rhythm. All is tastefully delivered with the grace and elegance that must make playing under his baton a marvelous learning experience for these young musicians.

Opening the program was Krzysztof Penderecki's Threnody for the Victims of Hiroshima (for 57 strings), of 1961. Rinaldi introduced the piece and showed by use of charts the specific markings in the score for the special effects demanded. These include signs for the performer to play the highest sound on his instrument, to rap, rasp, snap the strings and play below the bridge.

Designed to give an impressionistic lament on the devastation of Hiroshima, one can hear the distant sound of sirens merging into the wailing sounds of nearby human voices.

Great waves of sound shift from violins to cellos and basses and back again, the instruments then joining forces to work up a great dynamic intensity only to die away to a whisper. Performers responded to Rinaldi's direction — sections were equally matched in ability and magnitude of sound.

Sharply contrasting the Threnody was Aaron Copland's Billy the Kid "Ballet Suite." This symphonic suite of seven pieces depicts the story of William Bonney, badman of the old West. Included in the work are cowboy melodies, square-dance rhythms, a Mexican dance, a card game and a shoot-out.

The orchestra had a fine time with this one, and there were many opportunities for solo instrumentalists to perform. The entire French horn section is outstanding, as were in fact all other brass and woodwind players. Particularly expressive were Bob Elkjer, trumpet, and Steve Gordon, clarinet.

Mozart's first Horn Concerto (K. 412), with Brian McCarty as soloist, began the second half of the program. The second movement of the concerto is lost, and it is probable that the two movements which are always presented together are not really the first and last movements of the same work.

Both include much of the clean, courtly Mozartian melodies, but too much sameness exists and the lack of a contrasting slow middle movement detracts from the work.

McCarty's intonation and tone were true and he had no trouble with the many technical difficulties of the concerto. The reduced orchestra played with the finesse required, again showing the fine hand of Hugo Rinaldi.

The Finale of the Symphony No. 1 in G Minor by Basile Kalinnikov provided a dramatic flourish that rounded out the concert. This work is in the fully orchestrated Russian style of Rimsky-Korsakov and is based on folk tunes and exhibits much nationalistic flavor throughout.

The work climaxes with two overlapping melodies of brass and woodwind choirs against the full strings. Solo performers were outstanding and sections were in beautiful balance.

This outstanding program is to be repeated at the Children's Concert at the San Rafael High School Gym Jan. 20 at 10 a.m. It's highly recommended.

Mailliard's Office Is Picketed

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Eight Marin citizens yesterday picketed the office of Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, in an appeal for him to vote for a pending congressional cutoff of funds for the war in Vietnam.

A member of the congressman's staff told the delegation from the Christmas Eve Peace Committee that Mailliard and 14 other Republican congressman have appealed to Nixon not to resume the bombing of North Vietnam.

The delegation picketed during the noon hour in front of the Federal Building, at 450 Golden Gate Avenue, then met briefly with Mailliard's staff, reported Meyer M. Baylin of Mill Valley.

Baylin said more pickets had been expected, but some apparently were delayed by flooding on Highway 101 at Corte Madera.

Outgoing HEW Secretary Proposes Major Overhaul

WASHINGTON (upi) — Charging that federal bureaucracy has failed, outgoing Secretary Elliot L. Richardson today proposed a major overhaul of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to put many programs in the hands of states through revenue sharing.

In his final report as HEW secretary, Richardson complained of "the bureaucratic labyrinth" of HEW programs that now number more than 300, including 54 that overlap each other and 36 that overlap programs of other departments.

"I am, as one must be, deeply troubled by the sense of failure, of frustration, of futility which pervades much of our human resource system, much of our society," Richardson said.

Richardson has won approval of the Senate Armed Services Committee to become defense secretary and, although a move is afoot to delay the nomination, quick confirmation by the Senate is expected.

In his report titled "The HEW Potential for the Seventies", Richardson for the first time proposed publicly a plan he has pushed privately at the White House. It includes three special revenue sharing packages:

Health revenue sharing that would combine present funds for comprehensive public health services, venereal disease control, work on lead poisoning, rat control, other communicable disease programs and medical-social services.

Social services revenue sharing which would group HEW's services for children and families, the disabled the the aged.

—Educational revenue sharing, proposed to the last Congress but not enacted. This would combine 33 sources of funds into a five-part package directing the money to education of the disadvantaged and the handicapped, vocational educaton, aid for schools with heavy concentrations of children from federally-employed families and special support services.

Wornum To Head Coastal Group

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

It was politics as usual last night at the first meeting of a commission created by the voters in November to protect the coasts of Marin, Sonoma and San Francisco.

Weeks of intensive lobbying for the two top slots on the panel paid off for Marin Supervisor Michael Wornum, who was elected chairman, and San Francisco Supervisor Robert H. Mendelsohn, who was elected as the regional commission's representative on the statewide coastal commission.

Wornum, who has been less than coy about his interest in running for the state Assembly, was elected unanimously without opposition.

Mendelsohn, equally coy about his early campaign for state controller in 1974, defeated two candidates nominated by commissioners who reportedly resented Mendelsohn's strong lobbying for the seat that will give him needed statewide exposure.

He got eight votes, a bare majority of the 14 commissioners. The unsuccessful challengers were Kenneth M. Stocking of Santa Rosa, who got four votes, and Ellen Johnck of San Francisco, who got two.

Marin County Planning Commissioner Margaret Azevedo of Tiburon was elected vice chairman by a coin toss after she split the ballot with Fairfax City Councilman Frank J. Egger Jr.

Despite the stormy weather, more than 70 persons attended the organizational session in the Marin Civic Center. No public notice was issued for the meeting, contrary to the state's antisecret meeting law.

Wornum volunteered the county's staff as a "very temporary" commission staff for the few weeks before it has its own, and the commission designated the Marin Civic Center as its temporary headquarters until it gets its own funds from the state.

One of the few lapses of prearranged unanimity came when commissioner Melville Owen of Kentfield suggested Mendelsohn be instructed to support Melvin Lane of Menlo Park as chairman of the state commission. Lane was chairman of the Bay Conservation and Development Commission for more than seven years, and resigned to take the new position.

Commissioners split inconclusively on how to instruct Mendelsohn, leaving him free to vote as he wants when the state commission meets for the first time next Wednesday in San Francisco. Mendelsohn served on the BCDC under Lane for several years, as did Owen.

The local group, designated the North Central Coast Regional Commission, also voted to create committees to recommend regulations and procedures for its operation and screen applicants for staff. The attorney general's office will complete its proposals for regulations and procedures by the end of next week.

At Wornum's urging, the membership of each committee was limited to less than a quorum of the full commission to avoid conducting their meetings in public. (A San Francisco superior court judge has ruled that the state's antisecret meeting law applies to committees consisting of less than a quorum of the full body, but his ruling has been appealed to the District Court of Appeal.)

The interim committees were asked to report bck to the full commission at its next meeting at 7:30 p.m. on Jan. 29, again in the supervisors' chambers of the civic center.

The commission also asked the three counties under its jurisdiction to notify it of all pending construction permits. The commission can bar any construction along the coast during the three years it has to draft a plan.

Sane Patients Undetected In Mental Hospital Test

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Eight researchers who feigned insanity to get into mental hospitals said Wednesday that the staffs never recognized them as sane despite their normal behavior once they were admitted.

The only people who caught on were the other patients in the 12 hospitals, reported David L. Rosenhan, a professor of law and psychology at Stanford University who directed the project.

He said the eight "pseudopatients," five men and three women, spent an average of 19 days in the hospitals and were labelled as schizophrenics "in remission" when they got out.

Rosenhan, who reported the project in Science magazine, said the experiment was carefully worked out and involved a dozen hospitals in five states—some old, some new, some associated with universities, some public, some private. Names of the hospitals were not disclosed.

The researchers gained admission by pretending schizophrenic symptoms. But once admitted, all did their best to appear sane.

Nevertheless, Rosenhan said, in no case did the staff of the hospital recognize any of the researchers as a sane person.

He said the project showed that once a person has been diagnosed as mentally ill, the label "has a life and influence of its own" and can never be shaken.

The hospital staffs were not guilty of "malice or stupidity," he said, but were generally dedicated and intelligent. However, they had become prisoners of an environment in which all patients were considered "crazies."

The researchers did notice frequent abuse of other patients by attendants and reported that they were given nearly 2,100 pills of various varieties while hospitalized. They threw most down the toilet—which is what the regular patients were doing with theirs.

When the "pseudopatients" first entered the hospitals, they took notes secretly. But they later began taking extensive notes all the time and openly.

"Under ordinary circumstances, such behavior would have raised questions in the minds of observers," said Rosenhan. But in the mental hospitals, the only ones who thought it unusual were the other patients.

Cards Will Flood Loveland Once Again

LOVELAND, Colo. (UPI) — Because of this city's romantic name, lovers across the country will send more than 100,000 valentines to the post office to be mailed out before Valentines Day, Feb. 14, with the city's postmark, officials estimated Wednesday.

"All valentines should reach Loveland no later than Feb. 8 to insure delivery in time," said Ted Thomason, who has headed the program of remailing love letters with the Loveland postmark since 1947.

Thompson, a former Chamber of Commerce president in the town of 10,000 persons, said he would write a special poem to be stamped on all envelopes mailed from Loveland before Valentine's Day. He is known in town as "Mr. Hearts and Flowers."

CATCH LIMIT EYED

Herring Spawning Habits And Population Studied

RAKING EGGS — Student Bob Daffin, a junior at the University of the Pacific, rakes seaweed from Tomales Bay as part of a method to determine the number of herring eggs deposited in the bay. Researchers hope to use the data for legislation limiting the annual herring catch — currently unrestricted.

By ERIK M. INGRAM

Ever wonder how many herring spawn in Tomales Bay?

Probably not. It's not the kind of question that pops up often. Not until now, that is, and it's being popped with some alarm.

The problem is that nobody knows too much about herring, which each January move from offshore into Tomales Bay — among other sheltered places — for their winter spawning run.

Waiting for them this year are commercial fishermen who already have hauled in 250 tons of herring and their valuable unspawned eggs (roe), considered a delicacy in Japan.

Exactly how many fish there are and how many will elude the large fishing nets, again nobody knows, but a small band of University of the Pacific undergraduates is making a determined effort to find out.

Their aim is to gather supporting data for legislation to limit the commercial herring catch — currently unrestricted — and help insure survival of the species.

(Emergency legislation limiting the herring catch was approved yesterday by the State Senate on a 30-1 vote. The bill was introduced Tuesday by Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael. It now goes to the Assembly.)

The students are being aided, in part, by the fishermen whose future in the Oriental caviar business may depend on limiting the size of the yearly catch.

Guided by Dr. W. Michael Kaill of the university's Pacific Marine Station at Dillon Beach, the young biology students are charting schools of fish to determine the overall size of the five runs this month and to estimate the number of translucent yellow eggs spawned.

"There really hasn't been much study done on herring," Jeff Vernon, a university senior from Fremont, said. Practically nothing is known of their ocean habits, he said.

Vernon, who spent the fall semester organizing the Tomales Bay research project, said he was confident a fairly accurate estimate of the number of fish (in tons) and eggs can be determined.

"We're afraid they might be overfished and feel there should be some license or permit procedure to allow a catch in proportion to the total number," Kaill added.

Their fears have been intensified over the last couple weeks with the arrival of more fishing boats, some from as far away as Monterey, lured by word of bonanza fishing at Tomales Bay, last "harvested" in 1956.

Since much of the fishing is for unspawned roe, the researchers want to study future effects of the catches, but to do so must have more information.

(The California Department of Fish and Game has studied the herring for the last few years at Tomales Bay but has been hampered by a lack of manpower and logistical problems to do the job completely.)

Armed with a small sonar gadget and an outboard boat, Kaill, Vernon and three fellow students have picked up the fish by the gills, so to speak.

Almost daily they patrol the picturesque bay, surveying its bottom, particularly the "deep holes" where large schools hang out.

By surveying the bay's bottom, the student researchers can get an idea of the number of fish on any given day.

They keep track of the tonnage caught by checking with the fishing fleet which unloads near Marshall at high tide.

Though spawning probably hasn't reached its peak (a spectacular sight which leaves large areas white with sperm and draws fish-hungry seals and swarms of birds), the group also is checking the number of eggs laid.

Using a rake-like tool, they drag a couple square feet of seaweed from a spawning area and count the number of herring eggs. Mathematically, the number of eggs within the spawning area can be figured from the sample, depending on the size of the area.

Since the average number of eggs carried by a female is easily determined (by dissecting unspawned females), the total number of spawning females can be estimated by dividing the average number of eggs per female into the total estimated for the spawning area.

The ratio of males to females is determined by taking samples from the fishing fleet's catch.

According to Kaill, the researchers work will go further. The students will study the age of herring, which have a life span of about nine years, their fertility and the mortality rate of their offspring.

Since the herring which return to Tomales Bay each year haven't been commercially fished for more than a decade (until this year), it appears an ideal spot for the study.

In Richardson Bay, meanwhile, federal researchers are still waiting for large numbers of herring to appear.

Max Eldridge, a fish biologist at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration office in Tiburon, said fishermen have complained the number of herring is dwindling but no scientific support is available.

"Kaill and his group are moving in the right direction," Eldridge said, adding his own office is making limited studies in Richardson Bay. "Just by observation it appears they are decreasing in number," he said.

SONAR CHECK — Biologist W. Michael Kaill, left, and student Bob Scafani of the University of the Pacific check sonar readings in their search for large schools of spawning herring at Tomales Bay. The research project, aimed at determining the number of herring using Tomales Bay as a spawning ground, will continue through January.

Student Support Of Welding Instructor Goes For Naught

The Marin Community College District board last night upheld an administrative decision not to rehire a part-time welding instructor in the face of organized student support on his behalf. (Another college story, page 1.)

Welding students contend that Thadius Beattie, a part-time teacher for the past three years, developed the present welding program and should have an advantage over outside applicants for the job, which became a full-time position this year.

Beattie also received the support of directors of the Associated Students of the College of Marin, which sent a letter to the college board backing the welding students' position.

Final decision on the matter was announced following a closed session of the seven-member board. President Theodore C. Wellman assured students that a great deal of consideration was given the matter and that all questions were thoroughly discussed.

"With great thoroughness, the long-range aspect of the position must be given full consideration," Wellman said.

Trustees approved hiring of Joseph R. Miranda to the $13,000-a-year post. He will take over in the spring semester.

Board members also approved hiring of Timo Tauno Pajunen, who will begin a one-year temporary assignment in the art department as an instructor of photography.

A proposal not to require registration fees for law enforcement officers taking mandatory training in police science was unanimously turned down. The denial came as a result of new information regarding the proposal, according to Supt. John A. Grasham.

Although the Marin County Police-Community Relations Department pays the instructor's salary, the college does not receive state ADA funds for the class, in which students receive full college credit, nor does it receive compensation for record-keeping and other overhead costs.

The proposal also was opposed by the college cabinet, a body of students and staff members, on the grounds of its "precedent-setting possibilities."

"I feel people in all segments of the county take courses here and I believe we are justified in charging them a fee," Grasham said.

The Marin Community College District Board Also:

LEAVES — Approved sabbatical and administrative leaves for Dale A. Fleming, director of planning; Larry Baker, data processing; O.H. Bezirjian, chemistry; James C. Dunn, drama; David M Newby, communications, and Donald Palmer, philosophy. Sabbaticals for counselors William Peters and Arlene Stark were deferred until board members receive more information regarding their plans for study.

ADULT EDUCATION — Authorized Indian Valley Colleges in Novato to begin three new classes: introduction to sewing, theory and practice of French cooking and a course in investments. Approval also was granted for a new credit course in animal technology.

TV EQUIPMENT — Deferred action on a proposal to solicit bids for about $42,000 in television studio equipment until a more comprehensive plan for acquisition and use of the equipment is developed.

ENVIRONMENT — Accepted an environmental impact report regarding the Indian Valley Colleges with staff being directed to work toward solutions to long-term problems involving issues of concern to the community and district, primarily involving transportation.

NOISE — Unanimously opposed a proposed use permit by the Standard Oil Co. of California to construct an automatic car wash at 810 College Avenue in Kentfield, directly across from the office center site, on the grounds that noise generated would interfere with operation of the college.

FLOOD PROTECTION — Agreed to restate the district's concern regarding the flood control channel issue, and urged an early resolution through a renewal of communications with the Ross Town Council, the county board of supervisors and the flood control advisory board.

Tool Loan Bill Is Introduced

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Rep. William S. Maillard, R-Sixth District, has cosponsored a supplemental appropriation bill which would allot $1.8 million to the General Services Administration to continue a machine tool loan program to schools.

In Marin County, the College of Marin has applied for $50,000 for borrowing tools, while Redwood High already has about $43,000 worth and Tamalpais High has $28,000.

The tools are used in vocational training classes. The program halted when Congress refused last year to appropriate funds.

The funds are used for shipping and inspecting the Department of Defense-owned tools, and for administrative costs.

Impact Reports On Apartments Not Necessary

North Marin County Water District directors have voted that environmental impact reports won't be required on two apartment projects in Novato.

The projects were the Park Novato development, 92 units off Hill Road near Hill Junior High School, and the Cowbarn apartments, 90 units on the Cheda Ranch property along South Novato Boulevard.

Dist. Mgr. John O. Nelson said the impact of water service to the projects, approved by the city, wouldn't be significant.

The vote was 3-1, with directors George A. Amaroli dissenting and Patrick Hefferman abstaining.

The City of Novato didn't require environmental impact reports on the projects and the district failed in an effort to have the city reconsider its decision.

Prior to the board action Tuesday night, an effort by Amaroli and Heffernan to have the Cowbarn project referred back to the city failed by a 3-2 vote, according to Nelson.

Directors postponed granting of extension agreements for the projects until the board's next meeting, Feb. 6.

Directors agreed that an environmental impact report would be required, meanwhile, for the Tomales Bay Lodge project planned by Herbert Angrees near Marshall — a restaurant and 60 condominium units.

The North Marin County Water District Board also:

JOINT MEETINGS — Agreed to have joint meetings with the Novato City Council, the first tentatively scheduled at 7:30 a.m. Tuesday at Sambo's restaurant.

INVERNESS PARK — Agreed it wouldn't consider taking over the privately owned Paradise Ranch Estates water system in Inverness Park, since less than 25 per cent of property owners involved were seeking a chance.

EEL RIVER — Recommended to the Marin County Board of Supervisors that Nelson be appointed to the Eel River Council to succeed former Dist. Mgr. Eugene S. Churchill.

STAFFORD LAKE — Received a report from Nelson that Stafford Lake is full and that water started over the spillway last Friday.

REAGAN'S NEW BUDGET

Colleges Outstrip UC In State School Funds

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — For the first time, state colleges would receive more state funds than the University of California under the new budget proposed today by Gov Ronald Reagan (See budget story page 1)

The spending proposal alloted $442.1 million for state universities and colleges compared to $429.6 million for UC—respective increases of 16.9 per cent and 11.6 per cent over this year's budget

Most of the increases were slated to fatten the paychecks of professors and nonacademic employes

In his budget message, Reagan criticized the university for seeking an "unrealistic 25 per cent increase in state aid."

"We are convinced," Reagan declared, "that there are numerous areas where increased economy and efficiency would result in great savings to the taxpayer"

The governor held out a $1 million "carrot" to UC to encourage development of a system to promote excellence in undergraduate teaching."

If the university does not establish the program, it will not receive the funds

Also included in the UC budget was $1.5 million for an experimental program to open up the school to part-time students at reduced costs

Under the proposed salary hikes, UC faculty members would receive a 5.4 per cent increase and state college teachers would have a 7.5 per cent boost. Other employes in both systems would receive an average hike of 12 per cent.

Cost of the state college pay hikes was $34.2 million and for UC $30.7 million

State Finance Director Verne Orr said the 5.4 per cent increase was all that was sought by UC regents and would make university faculty salaries comparable to the best other institutions

Reagan took a "go-slow" approach to building new college facilities

His budget document declared, "The declining rate of (enrollment) growth suggests ... limiting capital outlay so as not to create excess capacity in the 1980s."

Reagan proposed spending $66.4 million for capital outlay for state colleges and $86.2 million for UC, including $54 million from a health sciences bond issue approved last fall.

Included in the budget was $70.3 million for community college construction, nearly $36 million of which came from another bond act approved in the November election. The remainder was to be provided by the local districts.

Construction of replacements for the Berkeley schools for the blind and deaf was recommended at a cost of $20 million.

In addition to the higher education spending proposals, Reagan Tuesday recommended the state spend nearly $2.5 million on public schools from kindergarten to the community college level.

The budget contained $219.3 million for California's 96 community colleges.

New Mansion

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov Ronald Reagan, longing for a "decent place" where future governors can reside, today asked the legislature for $950,000 to build a 37-room mansion on a bluff overlooking the scenic American River.

Ironically, the governor proposed that the Spanish-style mansion be financed by a "windfall" from the state income tax withholding system. Reagan originally opposed the withholding concept but changed his mind in 1970.

Deputy State Architect William Vick said the $950,000 appropriation would pay for basic construction of the mansion but not for furnishings and other unspecified "refinements," which would be included in the 1974-75 budget.

The mansion ultimately would cost about $1.3 million.

Preliminary plans for the new mansion call for five bedrooms for the governor's family, a five-car garage, a 24-by-48 foot swimming pool, a tennis court, a concealed bar, two guest rooms and a sauna bath.

The proposal by Reagan's private architect, William Stephenson, also includes a temperature-controlled wine storage room which could convert into a fallout shelter.

If all goes smoothly, the mansion will be completed just before the next governor is inaugurated in 1975, Vick said.

"After 32 years of political hasseling, backbiting, snarling and fighting over this issue," Reagan has said, "maybe one thing that I can leave the State of California is a decent place for the governors to live."

The Reagans moved out of the official century-old mansion in early 1967. Mrs Reagan called the place a noisy firetrap

The state has been paying the Reagans' $15,000 per year rent for a $150,000 home owned by a group of the governor's close political associates and friends

New Prisons

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov Ronald Reagan today proposed spending $1.1 million to develop working drawings for two new maximum security prisons to replace aging San Quentin.

His state budget envisions the continued deactivation of San Quentin as the inmate population statewide decreases and as more and more offenders are handled locally. San Quentin is proposed to go out of business in 1975.

The spending blueprint notes that the California inmate population has fallen from 28,600 in 1969 to 19,200 currently and this leaves a "tougher, more volatile individual in prison, requiring more heavy security housing than is now available."

Currently the Department of Corrections is developing preliminary plans for two maximum security prisons of 400 convicts each to confine the hardest of the hardcore convicts. Sites have not been announced.

The $1.1 million sought for working drawings would take the two prisons to the doorstep of actual construction, possibly in 1974

A source said the administration is exploring the feasibility of having the prisons built by someone else and then leasing them to the state with an option to purchase later. He said this procedure may be more economical than outright construction by the state.

In the budget, Reagan proposed increasing the overall spending level of the Department of Corrections from $143 million to $145 million next year.

The plan also calls for the hiring of four more parole agents and converting an unused California Youth Authority facility at Chino into a 400-bed "reception" center for newly committed male felons.

The governor proposed cutting back slightly the spending level of the Youth Authority from $57 million currently to $55 million. A spokesman said this mostly reflected the continued "phasing out" of the Los Guilucos School for girls at Santa Rosa by July 1.

Significantly, the budget for the upcoming fiscal year did not reflect a long-range plan by Health and Welfare Secretary Earl Brian to close all but a couple of the 10 CYA facilities during the next several years.

Weapon Thefts

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The California Army National Guard suffered "major losses" of guns and ammunition due to thefts last year, Gov. Ronald Reagan's state budget reported today.

The budget disclosed "other sensitive items" also were stolen from Guard armories.

To halt the thefts, the budget contained $874,000 — two-thirds of it federal funds—to increase security around armories. The program includes modification of arms and ammunition vaults and supply rooms to prevent break-ins, plus more lighting and fencing.

The budget also proposes to establish a security patrol at Hayward and Van Nuys airports to prevent "possible vandalism" to airplanes.

No funds are included to repair the Guard's headquarters which was destroyed by fire last month in Sacramento. A spokesman said the money will be provided in a separate appropriation bill.

The budget appropriates $10.3 million in state funds for the overall Military Department, compared to $8.7 million this fiscal year.

The Guard's authorized strength of 27,500 officers and enlisted men would remain the same.

Where It Goes

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Here is how the taxpayer's dollar would be spent under Gov. Ronald Reagan's $9.26 billion budget:

Elementary and secondary education 27.7 cents, health and welfare 24.4 cents, property tax relief 10.9 cents, higher education 10.2 cents, business and transportation (including highways) 8.9 cents, shared revenue with local government 8.2 cents, resources 2.1 cents, agriculture and general services 1.7 cents, other 5.9 cents.

Here is how the dollar would be collected:

Sales tax 33.5 cents, personal income tax 24.3 cents, fuel taxes 12.5 cents, bank and corporation taxes 11.1 cents, inheritance and gift taxes 3.5 cents, motor vehicle license fees 3.3 cents, cigarette taxes 2.9 cents, insurance taxes 2.3 cents, liquor taxes 1.6 cents horseracing 0.8 cent, other 4.2 cents

More Drinking

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Californians continue to drink more liquor and smoke more cigarettes, Gov. Ronald Reagan's budget disclosed today.

Adult consumption of alcoholic beverages "has been steadily increasing" and showing "a strong correlation with per capita personal income," the budget said

The average California adult this year is expected to drink 3.8 gallons of hard liquor, 31.25 gallons of beer, 4.5 gallons of dry win, 1.1 gallon of sweet wine (vermouth, sherry, etc.), and one-third gallon of sparkling wine (such as champagne). All are on the rise except sweet wine, which maintained steady.

Californians are expected to smoke 2.5 billion packs of cigarettes, representing 122 packs for every man, woman and child.

Cigarette smoking fell off drastically in 1964 with publication of the U.S. Surgeon General's health report and again in 1967 when taxes were hiked from three to 10 cents a pack. But since 1970, the budget noted, "total consumption has increased steadily."

Liquor taxes and fees will net the state $140.5 million and the cigarette tax another $255 million during the 1973-74 fiscal year.

Betting Record

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Horse-racing fans for the first time will wager more than $1 billion at California tracks during the next fiscal year, Gov. Ronald Reagan's proposed budget forecast today.

The state will collect $75.3 million of the amount, $3 million more than it received this year from horseracing. The budget predicted the parimutuel handle—the total amount bet—will increase $43 million from this year

Office Spending

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan today asked the legislature to increase the spending of his office from $2.1 million to $2.5 million in the new fiscal year, most of it for staff salaries.

The spending program also proposed to increase the legislature's expense level from $34.6 million to $35.4 million in the fiscal period starting July 1.

The document shows that the governor's office staff now totals 86 workers and will increase to 96, but actually there will be no additional employes. The other 10 already are there but their salaries now and in the past have been charged to other departments.

The budget proposes increasing Senate expenses from $9.6 million to $10.4 million and those of the Assebly from $15.6 million to $16.1 million. Joint expenses would decrease from $9.1 million to $8 million.

For the first time in memory of state fiscal officials, the governor's office was charged the $250,000 cost of printing the budget document, an expense previously paid by the legislature.

No Recession

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Peace in Vietnam will not affect California's "sparkling" economy, state fiscal experts predicted today in Gov. Ronald Reagan's proposed budget.

"The state has already felt the effects of winding down the Vietnam war and there will be no further impact on the economy when a peace treaty is finally signed," the economists said.

Reagan said in his budget message that "the outlook is for a sparkling national and California economy through 1973" with 1974 also "very good" but "possibly a little less robust."

Personal income of Californians this year was forecast at $111.5 billion, a gain of 9.1 per cent over 1972.

The average unemployment rate will drop to 5.4 per cent. It averaged 5.9 per cent in 1972 and 6.9 per cent in 1971.

There will be more than 8.5 million civilian jobs, an increase of 2.8 per cent. Strongest gains will be in the service and trade fields which "were adversely affected by the 1970 recession," the budget said.

"A moderate expansion" was forecast for the aerospace industry, primarily in electrical equipment production.

Residential construction, however, "is likely to taper during the year," the budget said, adding: "Some overbuilding has taken place in the state, especially of multifamily units. Vacancy rates—already high in some areas—will continue up gradually, leading to eventual cutbacks in the number of units built"

Home construction is expected to decline by 21 per cent, down to 220,000 units. Nonresidential construction is expected to stay the same.

"Economic gains in the state during 1972 were considerably stronger than anticipated," the budget noted

An Emotional Plea Made For Death Penalty

ATLANTA (UPI) — A young freshman Georgia legislator—pleading for the legislature to "make the streets safe" — jerked out a pistol Wednesday and pointed it at a fellow lawmaker.

Rep. Vinson Wall, 25, pointed the pistol at minority leader Mike Egan Wednesday during an emotional appeal in the Georgia House for reinstatement of the death penalty for rape.

Wall, 25, waved the .22 caliber pistol around to emphasize his remarks and later laid the weapon on the House clerk's desk.

"If I had known it was real, I might have been frightened," said Egan, "But I thought it was a toy."

HOME DESTROYED

Aid For Mudslide Victims Is Sought

Two separate groups of Marin residents have embarked on campaigns to help Woodie and Everdine White, the Marin City couple whose home was destroyed by a mudslide Friday.

Mary Freeman of 18 Dutton Court, Marin City, is secretary of a group of Corte Madera, Mill Valley and Marin City residents which has undertaken to collect contributions of clothing, food and money.

Contibutions may be made by telephoning Mrs. Freeman or by leaving them at her home.

Mission presidents of the churches of Southern Marin met last night in Marin City to organize a tax-exempt fund campaign to help rebuild the couple's home.

Rev. Fred Small of Mission Outreach said a committee was formed with Octavia Harris of the Beth Saida Church of God in Christ as president.

The tax-exempt fund will be known as the Mission Outreach Special Project, explained Rev. Small, with a bank account number added as soon as an account is established at Wells Fargo Bank in Sausalito.

The committee hopes to raise enough money to rebuild the White's home, he said, but it is not yet known how much will be needed, or if the existing lot is suitable for reconstruction.

Rev. Small said the project is an interchurch missionary endeavor, and all contributions to the special account will be made public. It is also intended to establish a post office box number for the special numbered account so contributions may be made direct to the bank by mail.

Other members of the committee are Marguerite Johnson, Village Baptist Church, vice president' John Griffin, Gospel Fellowship Church, secretary/treasurer; Moses Beard, St. Andrew United Presbyterian Church, assistant secretary-treasurer; and Mary Williams, Church of God, publicity chairman.

The Whites are living temporarily with friends in Marin City.

Mill Valley Projects Under Fire

The Mill Valley Architectural Advisory Committee last night endorsed a recommendation from the city planning commission that the city stop approving plans for new residential developments until Mill Valley has adopted a new general plan.

Planning secretary Carol Defenderfer said the committee will forward its recommendation to city council.

The planners' suggestion, made last week, would mean the commission and council would not approve any more plans for approximately two years, the time it will take to get a general plan adopted.

Currently Mill Valley is under a sewer ban which prevents developers of large projects from obtaining building permits, but they can still bring their plans in for city approval.

In its recommendation, the commission indicated it did not know what the city can approve in the way of new developments until a general plan, establishing such policies as population limits, is completed.

Affected by the moratorium would be all residential developments large enough to require action by the city which have not yet been approved. Single-family homes and smaller projects would not be effected.

Some Falling Stars Before Pro Bowl

Although the professional football season still has one more Sunday to go — at least for some of the all-star players — I am starting to get the feeling many of the selected players would just as soon the season ended with the Super Bowl.

The rosters of the American and National Conference teams are undergoing more changes than took place in the phone booth near Clark Kent's office at the Daily Planet.

Larry Csonka of the Super Bowl champion Miami Dolphins was the latest to be excused from the game, complaining of back injuries aggravated during last Sunday's win over Washington. He was the fourth member of the AFC team to bow out with injury. Miami receiver Paul Warfield was excused because of family illness and Oakland pass-catcher Fred Biletnikoff and Joe Namath of the Jets were allowed off the Pro Bowl roster because of injuries. Members of the NFC have begged off, also.

The word is "allowed," because league rules call for the performance of selected players unless they are injured. Therefore, a player who would suit up and limp onto the field for a regular season game while nursing minor injuries does not particularly want to risk the chance of increasing the injury in this exhibition game.

Players on the winning team in Sunday's game, to be played in Texas Stadium, will receive $2,000, and losing players will get $1,500. That would be a good chunk of money for many of the players in the league, but the poorer players are not the ones selected for the game. Since they have to be in the "star" classification to gain entrance, the higher paid players are the ones chosen. So all of a sudden $2,000 doesn't sound like so much to someone like Namath, Csonka or Bob Lilly.

Regardless of all the dropouts, there will still be enough stars left over to attract 40-50,000 fans in Texas and a few million television viewers. If you've lost your TV Guide, the Sunday game will be on CBS (channels 5 and 10) starting at 1 p.m. — football's final groan of the season.

FROM THE NOTEBAG:

Fred (Andy) Andrews, president of the Chosen Frozen Ski Club of Marin led his team to victory last Saturday in a giant slalom at Mount Rose, near Reno. The Chosen Frozen members were competing against other "singles only" ski clubs and in winning the event were awarded with quite a gag trophy that Andy had on display at the club's new headquarters at the Executive Lounge on San Rafael's Fourth Street. I understand it's a tree stump, just like those sneaky things that pop up out of the snow right in front of you when you're on your way down the slope.

If you are still wondering about the outcome of that Toilet Bowl game at the Marin Academy in San Rafael the other day, the score was Corbin Smith 33, students 13. Smith, the athletic director at the academy, led the faculty team by running for four touchdowns and passing for the other.

"And by the way," said Walt Smith of Hagen and Smith Allied Van Lines, "no more jokes saying the Toilet Bowl should be played in Flushing, N.Y. I was born there."

Steve McGee, now playing basketball at University of Hawaii, was back home in Marin County the other day saying hello to all his friends from Redwood High. The Hawaii basketball team had just completed a five-game tour on the mainland.

JANE McCOLLISTER

Eight National Records For Senior Swim Star

By RON LENT

A 30-year absence from competitive swimming has apparently not tempered the enthusiasm or success of Marin Aquatic Club seniors division swimmer Jane McCollister.

The 54-year-old Terra Linda teacher claims, "I get great pleasure from swimming and keeping in shape. I enjoy it a great deal . . . I get a great sense of accomplishment in knowing I can excel in a certain area."

Her zeal for the sport she forsook in a 30-year period ending in 1971 is matched only by her recent competitive successes. In the 50-54 age-group bracket, the Vallecito School physical education instructor established national records in six freestyle events — the 200, 500, and 1,650-yard, and 200, 400, and 1,500-meter. She also set national marks in the 100 and 200-meter breast stroke.

With such an impressive list of records, you would think Mrs. McCollister is satisfied, right?

Wrong. "I want to break my records. I want to leave records that will stand for a long time," she smiled while sitting in her school office.

"I do it because I feel I am good at it . . . I also found a need for a good exercise."

The word "need" is truly an understatement. While battling arthritis, she underwent abdominal surgery in 1971. Post operative recovery called for a "general exercise." Swimming provides this. So, when Marin Aquatic Club swim coach Don Swartz announced formation of a seniors swim program in October, 1971, Mrs. McCollister made the plunge.

"Inside of a month," she continues, "I was doing 1,600 yards a night. I was doing this four nights a week (Monday through Thursday). By January, I was doing 2,300 yards a night."

From this point, the 5-foot-9½, 140-pound long distance freestyler increased her wind and strength, while decreasing her swim times. (Her national record times bear this out. The freestyle marks include: in yards, 200, 2:59.1; 500, 8:11.7; 1,650, 28:19.4; in meters, 200, 3:20.46; 400, 6:56.02; and 1,500, 28:17.83.)

She also set 100 and 200-meter breast stroke records with 2:04.39 and 4:35.6 clockings, respectively.

Though considered a freestyler, Mrs. McCollister tried the breaststroke, because "Swartz likes all-around swimmers."

Trojans Wallop Tam Five

By LEW CODDINGTON

In a basketball game only slightly more dramatic than the recent meeting of the Electoral College, Terra Linda High School took an early 17-5 lead yesterday afternoon and went on to defeat Tamalpais, 55-37, before 200 fans at College of Marin.

The victory kept the Trojans tied for the Marin County Athletic League lead at 3-1, and kept the Indians submerged in last place at 0-4.

Actually, the outcome of the game was determined two months ago — in the hospitals, where Tam practically held a team meeting, and on the practice floor, where Terra Linda was forging its surprising contender.

Tam forward Jared McFerrin, a victim of mononucleosis, suited up for the first time since the beginning of the MCAL season, but did not play. Center Mike Dinehart, plagued by an esoteric ailment best described as "growing pains," scored 10 points and appeared partly on the road to recovery.

It was left for Tam's sophomore and junior-laden lineup to cope with the resurgent Trojans, no simple task despite a squad attitude coach Bernie Schneider describes as "super." Forward Mark Lowey scored 16 points and forward Scott Logan canned 15 for Terra Linda, and after coach Bob Corley went to his bench, center Brian Morey responded with eight in a hurry.

After Terra Linda's early 17-5 lead, the game lapsed into a series of turnovers, with Tam eventually whittling the margin to 36-26 in the third period. The Indians failed to score in their next six trips down the floor, however, and the Trojans moved farther ahead.

Both teams shot poorly, Terra Linda hitting 33 per cent (22 of 66) and Tam 24 per cent (14 of 57). Terra Linda got six more rebounds, 37-31, with Lowey snatching 12.

"We got our fast break going a bit," said Corley, who also lauded the play of his guards, Jeff Leaird and Nick Mattos.

San Marin Scuttled By Pirates

By TOM THOMPSON

San Marin High School's basketball team may be wishing it could drop Marin County Athletic League rival Drake from its schedule.

For the second time this year, the Pirates beat San Marin by more than 30 points last night, 78-44. Earlier, Drake beat the Mustangs, 78-47, in a non-league encounter in the Drake Pirate Classic.

The stage is set for a crucial battle between the Pirates and host Novato tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, both tied for first place with Terra Linda and Redwood, with 3-1 records. San Marin, meanwhile, rests in seventh place at 1-3.

Drake coach Pete Hayward was especially pleased with his team's hustle and speed. "We really ran well. I was happy the way we opened it up. We played pretty good defense too."

The Pirates, one of the league's shortest squads, outrebounded the tall visitors, 58-43.

About 700 fans in San Anselmo watched the hosts build a 13-point halftime lead. Early in the third quarter, the Pirates let up slightly, and San Marin closed the deficit to nine. However, Drake later outscored the Mustangs, 14-2, to increase its lead to 23, and never let up again. Hayward put in his reserves early in the fourth quarter.

John Channell and Eddie Joe Chavez led the Pirate onslaught, scoring 19 and 18 points respectively. Greg Shaw contributed 13 for Drake. Dan Howard came up with 12 assists, while Chavez had seven. Fred Doar topped the losers with 15 points, while Hoza Wright had 11.

The Pirates, with a 14-4 overall record have already amassed as many victories this year as last, when they finished with a 14-13.

Warriors Win; Nate Changes Mind

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Coach Nate Thurmond changed his mind and Rick Barry changed the mood of the Golden State Warriors.

Thurmond decided before Wednesday night's game with the Houston Rockets that he would, after all, play in next Tuesday's NBA All Star game in Chicago. Then Barry went out and singed the nets for a season high of 51 points to lead the lethargic Warriors to a 123-117 triumph.

Earlier in the week, Thurmond, a 6-foot-11 center, said he would bypass the All-Star game because of nagging injuries to his right knee and left foot. But before the Houston game, he decided he would play.

"It is an honor to play in the All Star Game and I am honored that I was selected by the Western Conference coaches," said Thurmond. "If my being selected means that I have to go to the game, I certainly will.

"When I announced Tuesday night that I would not play, I felt I was best serving my team. I felt my first obligation was to my team as interim coach for Al Attles and I felt that if I could rest some nuisance injuries, I would be better prepared for the last couple months of the season.

"I think we can win this thing and I want to be ready for the drive."

Attles is suffering from pneumonitis and is not scheduled to return to the coaching lines until next Thursday. Thurmond said he would return to San Francisco after Sunday's televised game in Milwaukee on Channel 7 at 11 a.m. and submit

Drake J.V.s In 22nd Win In Row

Drake High School's junior varsity basketball team extended its three-year old Marin County Athletic League winning streak to 22 last night, with a 52-39 victory over visiting San Marin. The Pirates lead the league standings with a 4-0 mark.

Andre Carson topped the winners with 17 points, while Joe Wilkinson had 16. Dave Harris led San Marin with 14.

Meanwhile, Terra Linda defeated host Tamalpais, 60-55. Doug Carlisle led the winners with 28 points. Dan Kiernan had 14 rebounds for Terra Linda.

Seals Cooperating With Owner Finley

Combined AP & UPI

OAKLAND — The California Golden Seals, as good employes should, are cooperating with their boss' efforts to increase home game attendance that has averaged only about 4,000.

Owner Charlie Finley has, for his part, cut in half the admission price for the Seals last 20 home games of the National Hockey League season.

The Seals, for their part, haven't lost a home game in their last six, and if they can beat New York here tomorrow they can establish a team record.

A 3-3 tie against the Toronto Maple Leafs last night was the third tie in a row for the Seals, who now have a total of 11 ties in 43 games. For a rainy, midweek night there was a respectable turnout of 5,264 fans. The Seals now have 11 ties to deadlock Montreal for the NHL lead.

Hil Graves of the Seals got the game's first goal at 2:33 of the second period, bouncing the puck off a defenseman's skate.

Eighteen seconds later Errol Thompson tied it at 1-1, and the Leafs went ahead at 3:53 of the third period on Darryl Sittler's 16th goal of the season.

Reggie Leach evened it at 2-2 by scoring for the Seals, but Toronto went in front again at 7:09 when Ron Ellis shot his own rebound over Seals' goalie Gilles Meloche.

Graves got his 16th goal at 8:06 for the tie, and this score, was by an even more indirect route than his first goal. The puck hit Toronto goalie Ron Low, bounced off two Seals players and then rolled over Low's shoulder into the net.

The victory was the Seals' first of the season over the Maple Leafs who had blanked them 11-0 and 4-0 previously.

The Leafs were without left wing Denis Dupere who left the club and returned to Toronto.

A Bright Outlook Seen For Eagles

McCormack Is Optimistic As Head Coach

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — If Mike McCormack weren't so big—and if his football credentials weren't so good—you might have laughed in his face when he said Wednesday the Philadelphia Eagles "can win next season."

McCormack, a former All-Pro lineman and an assistant to Vince Lombardi and George Allen with the Washington Redskins, had just signed a three-year contract as the new head coach of the Eagles.

He had inherited an offense that scored only 12 touchdowns last season while averaging the lowest number of points (10.4) in pro football. Only two of those touchdowns came on runs and one was a quarterback sneak.

He had inherited a defense that gave up 62 points in a game against the New York Giants last November and managed to sack the quarterback only 16 times the entire season.

He had inherited a team that stumbled to a 2-11-1 record last season and seemed a long, long way from a winning season.

But McCormack, 42, agrees with his former boss Allen that "the future is now."

"I think we can win next season," said the 6-foot-4, 245-pound former Cleveland Browns lineman. "If it's humanly possible, my coaching staff and I will bring it about."

McCormack, who is credited with building the Redskins offensive line into one of the best in football, promised to bring the Eagles "back to respectability."

MIKE McCORMACK
Eagles' new coach

"I feel very familiar with the Eagles' personnel because we played them three times during the last season," McCormack said. "I had to watch hours of game film on their defense and help formulate the game plan."

"You might not realize this, but until the Super Bowl the Eagles' defense held Washington to the fewest number of points — 14 — it scored all season.

"I've never gone on a football field when I didn't think we'd win. In my opinion we'll win next year."

Eagles owner Leonard Tose, who fired Ed Khayat and accepted the resignation of general manager Pete Retzlaff last season, was as optimistic about his new head coach as McCormack was about the Eagles.

Tose said he spent six weeks "researching" McCormack. He said he had to compete with other teams for his services.

PINCH-HITTER

Cepeda Is Signed By Boston

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Red Sox announced today they have signed Orlando Cepeda as a designated hitter for the 1973 American League baseball season.

General Manager Dick O'Connell told a news conference that Cepeda had agreed to terms shortly after the league approved the designated hitter rule.

O'Connell said the team's doctors had pronounced Cepeda fit for duty after a cartilage operation on his left knee.

"I feel like I want to play everyday," Cepeda said. "I'll be trying to get into shape so I can play everyday."

Cepeda, a member of the exclusive 2000 hit club, played briefly with the Atlanta Braves and Oakland Athletics last season. He was released by the Athletics in December.

Cepeda said he had been "contacted by several clubs including the Texas Rangers and Chicago White Sox after the rule changed and by the Mets and Pittsburgh before that."

But he said "I didn't deal with anybody after Boston contacted me. I want to play here. They got in touch with me and that was the end."

Cepeda said he believed the designated hitter rule would be "good for baseball because every time the pitcher comes to the plate now people go to the restroom or go for a sandwich. With the new rule they'll stay in their seats."

Cepeda reached the 2,000 hit club on July 11, 1970. He totaled 2,169 hits in 1949 games as a major leaguer through last season. In 1967, he hit .325 and drove in 111 runs while becom-

Girls' Program In Gymnastics

By LEW CODDINGTON

The girls gymnastics program in Marin is becoming so big that it will soon vault out of the high schools and into the Amateur Athletic Union ranks.

At least, that's the plan of Marcia Arevalo, gymnastics coach and chairman of the girls' physical education department at San Rafael High, who is currently in the final stages of organizing the phogram.

It will be co-sponsored with the San Rafael Recreation Department, with which Miss Arevalo has been working off and on for seven years teaching the sport. It will use the facilities at San Rafael and possibly Terra Linda high schools.

"We have roughly 25 girls interested in competition and about 300 interested in classes, which is a good number at the beginning," Miss Arevalo said. "We wouldn't want too many at the start, or else we would have to get more staff." Right now she will be assisted by Sue Conrad, an instructor of gymnastics and dance at City College of San Francisco.

"I've known since I came to the county seven or eight years ago that we needed an AAU program here," Miss Arevalo said. "Once it gets on its feet, it will gravitate a lot of interest."

Prior to this, virtually all the gymnastics programs in Marin involved the public schools. Unlike tennis, there are no private clubs or public facilities, with the exception of the San Rafael Rec Department program and the YWCA program.

The schools have been hard put to keep pace with the upsurge in interest. "I had to cut down from 115 girls to 45," said Margaret Schaulis, gymnastics coach at Redwood High. "Even then, I can't give each student the individual attention she deserves.

"What happens every four years," she continued, "is that the Olympics create an increase in interest which lasts two or three years. Then it subsides a bit, but another Olympic year comes along, and it rises again."

All the time, the caliber of the gymnasts keeps improving. "The girl who doesn't come into high school now with some background is at a tremendous disadvantage," said Lynn Avila, gymnastics coach at Terra Linda. "The lower-level schools, gymnastics camps and the Recreation Department are all teaching the sport. Two years ago, the compulsory routes were changed so that much of what the intermediates used to do is now in the beginners' routines."

Some of the county's better gymnasts can be seen Saturday at Terra Linda High, in the Section IV meet. And although Miss Arevalo says her AAU team probably won't compete in meets its first year, many of the same gymnasts eventually may be performing in AAU competition.

NIGHT AND DAY — A news item the other day said that the Shriners have moved their North-South football game to a Sunday afternoon. The other 21 games, including last year's in which San Rafael's Scott Duncan appeared, have been played on midweek nights.

Shriners gave the reason as "the strong family tie-in." Possibly a more compelling factor was the consistent decline in attendance, which shrank from 85,931 in 1957 to 32,957 last year, second lowest in history.

Gymnastics: Girls' Meet Saturday

Terra Linda High School will host the Section IV compulsory girls' gymnastics meet Saturday, with the opening ceremony scheduled for 9:45 a.m. and the first competition at 10.

Participating will be girls from Marin, Sonoma, Lake, Solano, Napa and San Francisco counties, including the top finishers from last Saturday's Marin County Athletic League meet at Redwood High School.

There will be competition in novice, beginner, intermediate school and intermediate open categories, with no advanced gymnasts scheduled to compete. Events will include uneven parallel bars, floor exercise, balance beam and vaulting, with an all-around score derived from scores in those four events.

The top 50 per cent of novice and beginners, top 75 per cent of intermediate school and all of the nine entrants in the intermediate open category will advance to a meet between Sections I and IV Feb. 24 at Burlingame High School, according to meet director Lynn Avila.

Saturday's meet is open to the public. Admission is 25 cents.

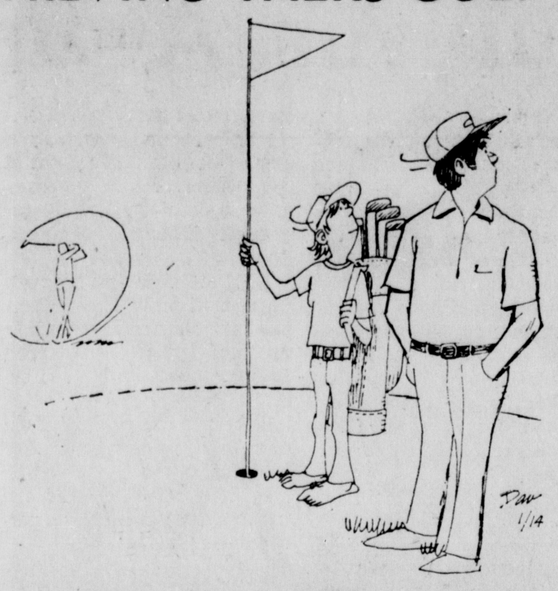
NFC Captains For Pro Bowl

DALLAS (UPI) — The National Football Conference players today selected four game captains for next Sunday's AFC-NFC pro bowl game.

Quarterbacks Bill Kilmer of Washington and Norm Snead of the New York Giants were selected as offensive captains while defensive tackle Merlin Olsen of Los Angeles and cornerback Mel Renfro of Dallas were picked as defensive captains.

Meanwhile, the American Football Conference announced it will play without Miami fullback Larry Csonka. He will be replaced by teammate Eugene (Mercury) Morris who was tabbed earlier by the AFC as a kick returner. Baltimore's Bruce Laird was added to the AFC roster as a kick returner.

TREVINO TALKS GOLF



The Par 4 Game

By LEE TREVINO

With some bad thinking a golfer can make a short course almost unplayable. The idea is to play the par 4s with your second shot in mind.

The worst thing to do on a 310-yard par 4 is grab a driver and kill it. If you hit it good you'll be too close to the green.

That may sound like a Mexican joke, but the hardest shot in golf is a half- or three-quarter shot. So you bust a driver and it leaves you just 80 yards from the flag. Great. Only the flag is just eight feet on the other side of a bunker, and the wind's behind you. Unless you're a magician or a wedge wizard like Billy Maxwell, you've got no shot at all.

It would be better to hit a 3-wood from the tee on short par 4s. Then you'll have swinging room for a second shot. You can loft it properly and bring it down by the flagstick.

On long par 4s you may really clobber your drive and still not be able to reach the green easy in two. They're making some of these holes for Tarzan. Give your tee ball your best lick, then let hazards around the green and the remaining distance determine your choice of club.

Black Hawks Place 5 On 'Stars' Team

MONTREAL (UPI) — The division-leading Chicago Black Hawks landed five of the 12 starters named today to the Western All-Stars for the Jan. 30 National Hockey League mid-season classic in New York.

Hockey writers from the division cities selected goalie Tony Esposito, defenseman Bill White, center Stan Mikita and wingers Jim Pappin and Dennis Hull to play in the 26th NHL All-Star game.

Los Angeles tripled its best previous showing in the balloting as the writers selected goalie Rogatien Vachon and defensemen Gilles Marotte and Terry Harper. Minnesota fields defenseman Barry Gibbs and winger Jean-Paul Parise and Philadelphia suits up center Bobby Clarke and winger Gary Dornhoefer.

Barry, also an All-Star selection, made the difference for the Warriors at the beginning and end of the Rockets game.

He hit 9-of-10 from the floor for 18 points in the first quarter as the Warriors raced to a 38-31 lead. Barry then hit 16 more in the second quarter as Golden State went on top 70-61 at intermission.

However, the Rockets overcame a 15-point deficit and rallied for a 105-102 lead with about nine minutes remaining. Barry hit only one basket in the third period but he came back to score his team's last six field goals to help the Warriors past their first victory for "Coach" Thurmond. Thurmond chipped in with 27 points.

Golden State appeared listless and was letting Houston get off two and three shots on offense before Barry's hot closeout.

Barry, who scored 57 points twice during the 1966-67 season with the Warriors, made 24-of30 field goals and three of four free throws.

Golden State plays the Bulls in Chicago tomorrow night before winding up the road trip at Milwaukee Sunday.

Billie Jean Out Of Net Tourney

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Top-seeded Billie Jean King, first woman athlete to earn more than $100,000 in a year, withdrew from the $25,000 British Motor Car tennis tournament Wednesday because of a sore wrist.

Her physician, Dr. Richard Garrett of Berkeley, said he expects the defending Wimbledon and Forest Hills singles champion to be out of action "three weeks to one month."

He diagnosed the injury as an inflamed ulna joint and warned her if she continued to play, "I will not be responsible for any further injuries to your wrist for the rest of the year."

As a result of Mrs. King's withdrawal, her opponent, Marcie Louie of San Francisco, advanced by default in the season's first tournament on the Virginia Slims pro tennis tour.

In the night's most exciting contest, seventh-seeded Wendy Overton of Ormand Beach, Fla., battled from behind to salvage a 6-4, 4-6, 7-5 win over unseeded Kathy Blake of Washington, D.C.

Valeria Ziegenfuss of San Diego downed Karen Krantzcke of Australia 6-4, 6-3 in the other singles match.

Phoenix

Why people who fly there frequently should fly American.

American offers four daily nonstops to Phoenix—more than any other airline. Flights leave from San Francisco at 7 a.m., 1:35 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. From Oakland, at 8:45 a.m. (The 5:30 flight is a 747 LuxuryLiner, the only wide-body aircraft flying to Phoenix.) So next trip, ask your Travel Agent to put you on American. Since American has more going for you to Phoenix, why fly any other airline?

PRIMITIVES BY A MARIN PAINTER

Speak of American primitive painters, and for most the name of Grandma Moses comes to mind. But if you live in Marin, you might very well think first of Girldine Fallon Merrill. The Novato artist has carved herself a reputation as a master of the instinctive, detailed canvas depicting a nostalgic scene from the past that was once associated with the late and beloved Anna Mary Robertson Moses. Her Asti wedding scene shown here is typical. There will be other Merrill primitives reproduced in this week's issue of the Independent-Journal's Marin Magazine, along with Don Keown's story of the painter, and the kind of art she practices so happily and energetically.

Sullivan Award To Runner Shorter

Combined AP & UPI

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Olympic marathon champion Frank Shorter was presented the Amateur Athletic Union's Sullivan Award yesterday as the 1972 amateur athlete of the year.

Shorter, who also set the American record in the 10,000 meters in the Olympic Games at Munich, defeated freestyle wrestler Dan Gable of Waterloo, Iowa, for the award. Gable was also an Olympic gold medalist.

Shorter, a University of Florida law student, received 1,895 points to Gable's 1,577 in balloting by the AAU's 1,500-member panel of judges for the award which is named after former AAU president James Sullivan.

Diver Micki King of Hermosa Beach, Calif., was third with 1,104 points, followed by swimmer Mike Burton, Sacramento, 1,012; runner Dave Wottle, Canton, Ohio, 708; Hurdler Rod Milburn, Opelousas, La., 428; swimmer Melissa Belote, Fairfax, Va., 381; wrestler Wayne Wells, Oklahoma City, 334; Larry D. Young, track, Sibley, Mo., 257, and Dianne Holum, speed skater, Northbrook, Ill., 249.

Shorter finished fifth in the 10,000 meters at Munich but still set a new American mark with a time of 27:51.4. He was a surprise winner in the marathon, a 26-mile, 385-yard grind.

tion of Mrs. McCollister's athletic skills. As a youth in the Panama Canal zone, she was involved in gymnastics and swimming. The San Antonio, Tex.-born woman participated in archery and swimming at the University of Pennsylvania where she earned baccalaureate and masters degrees in education by 1941.

Additionally, she tried out for the U.S. Olympic swim teams in 1932 and 1936. "I was going to try again in 1940, but the games were canceled," she adds. The following year, she began her 30-year swimming retirement.

However, she still dabbled in sporting ventures, riding in horse shows in Kansas while her husband, Wiley C., was stationed at Fort Riley near Junction City. Subsequent Army transfers took the couple to such points as Augsburg, Germany, Taiwan and the San Francisco Presidio.

In 1959, the McCollisters moved to Marin County, whereupon Jane embarked on her teaching stint at Vallecito. Besides teaching physical education to the seventh and eighth graders, she coaches the girls gymnastics team. "Our girls won eight out of 10 ribbons in that meet" Dec. 12 at Miller Creek School, which is excellent when realizing the school has presented a girls gymnastics team for only two years.

Mrs. McCollister explains that "gymnastics is a highly individual sport. You're on your own out there," which prompts her to confess: "I never was good in team sports." Then, after a pause, she said, "I'm too slow on my feet for tennis, and golf is too slow for me. So I took to swimming when I was 11.

And, but for a 30-year lull endingin 1971, Jane McCollister has stuck with it. "When I was a youngster," she concluded, "I tried to excel in other sports for recognition. Now, I'll take it any way I can." Indeed. She takes recognition today in the form of national age-group seniors swim records.

FOR MOST PART

A's Supporting Pinch-Hit Rule

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland Athletics are having problems figuring out the new designated pinch-hitter rule, but most of them think they'll like it

"I may never hit again," says 19-game winner Ken Holtzman. "There's a chance I may never hit again."

Manager Dick Williams predicts that he'll have his pitchers batting second or third, which means that the designated hitter will bat then.

Holtzman and Williams agreed that there would be smaller pitching staffs and more decisions for each pitcher as a result of the rule, which is being tried for the next three seasons by the American League.

"In a 0-0 or 1-0 ball game, I don't think I'll be taken out (for a pinch hitter) now," Holtzman said. "That means more wins and losses on your record."

Rollie Fingers, the A's' star reliever, said he liked to hit and was sorry to see the rule change, even though he may benefit as a hurler from the rule.

"This could be the end of the long reliever," said Fingers. "The only time they'd be needed was when a starter had absolutely nothing on the ball."

Catcher Dave Duncan didn't agree.

"If anything, I think a reliever like Fingers will be used even more."

Williams is puzzled by some aspects of the rule. He wants to know if there has to be a designated hitter for the pitcher since ace Catfish Hunter is almost a .300 hitter anyway.

And he also suggested that the "designated hitter could bat as many as eight times a game.

He said the designated hitter could be the last man at bat in one inning and the first man up in the next "if you replace your pitcher and another player, say for defensive purposes. You are free to decide which of the two bats in what spot in the order."

THE SKI SCENE

An Educated Lift Operator

By CHARLIE COANE

Tom Russell is 37 years old and single. He lives at a resort one mile from the newly formed Kirkwood Meadows. His job is that of a lift operator at Kirkwood's Sunrise Chairlift. He works five days per week, 8 hours a day and earns $2.50 per hour — maybe more as the season moves along. He skis on his two days off and during his breaks while working.

So? Let me continue. Tom was graduated from Harvard with a degree in American history. His masters in European history followed from University of Colorado. Next he went on to UCLA for six years of studying and teaching towards his Ph.D., which included a stint in Europe.

"I got completely away from outdoor living and sort of lost perspective on some things," says Tom. "In addition, my physical condition went downhill — pardon the pun — during my six years just using my brain. I taught at U-C. Irvine, Fresno State and Long Beach State, but never full time — mainly filling in for a year at a time while still working on my doctorate."

In addition to that, Tom found out that Russian history Ph.D.'s (his speciality) were not exactly in heavy demand. So, off to slope city. "I have no desire to live in Southern California with all the freeways and smog. I've always wanted to live in the Sierra. I came to Kirkwood in September, worked as a carpenter and electrician before the snow fell and now work as a lift operator. I've always been interested in skiing; I was raised in Vermont."

What about the future? "Who knows?" says Tom. "I plan to go back to Colorado for awhile to see some friends and hopefully return to Kirkwood next season. I like it here. Besides, it's real good for my head."

Is Tom's story all that unusual? Somewhat, but not really. He's doing what many think about, and what he wants to do. And he enjoys it. And "you only go around once in life, so you gotta grab for all the gusto", as the beer commercial goes.

The people that scheme, connive and maneuver their lives to ski are more numerous than one might believe. I know a dentist in San Rafael who works six months a year so he can ski the other six months. He works in the summer; his partner works winters. Doctors and dentists are famous for manipulating days off to hit the slopes. There's a week-long medical convention in Sun Valley in February, and I suppose a few of the participants may bring their skis! And a tax write-off to boot.

Ski areas are filled with college students "taking a semester off," working as anything from an instructor to a bartender. Pilots and stewardesses find it very easy to plan days off during the week or take a leave of absence.

So what's the moral of all this? Well, who knows? Maybe it's "do your own thing, or don't major in Russian History."

Petaluma To Host Montgomery Cagers

Petaluma High School will try to break a two-game North Bay League basketball losing streak tomorrow night at 8 o'clock when the Trojans host the strong Montgomery of Santa Rosa Vikings.

In other local high school hoop action tomorrow at 8 p.m., Rancho Cotate of Rohnert Park visits Sonoma for a Sonoma County League game. St. Vincent of Petaluma resumes North Central League II play at Calistoga and Tomales travels to Kelseyville for an NCL II game.

Petaluma is 1-2 in NBL play after losses to Santa Rosa, 63-59, and Napa, 42-41, and is in a five-way tie for third place. Montgomery, which beat Napa 55-32, is tied for second place with Santa Rosa at 2-1 after an upset victory over pre-season pick Ukiah.

The Trojans, who have had troubles this season against running, pressing teams, will be facing a ball-control offense in Montgomery.

The Vikings standouts are Tom Buzzard and Ken Guido. Buzzard, a 6-foot-5 center, is the team's leading scorer with a 20.9 points per game average. Guido, who is scoring at a 13.5 point per game clip, is the playmaker.

Petaluma has the height to stay with the Vikings on the boards in 6-5 Kirk Smartt, who is averaging 15.1 points per game in three NBL contests, and 6-5 junior Bill McDonald.

Rancho Cotate will be going against a Dragon team which was picked to take the SCL title this season Sonoma is in third place currently with a 1-1 mark after a loss to Cardinal Newman of Santa Rosa, and the Cougars are a half-game behind the Cardinals with a 2-0 record.

St. Vincent's charging Mustangs will be meeting a Calistoga team which is 1-9 overall and 0-1 in NCL II play The Mustangs are 8-3 for the season and 1-0 in league

Tomales, which is in a rebuilding year, will be facing the champions of the NCL for the past three years in Kelseyville The Indians are in first place again this year with a 2-0 record The Braves are 0-1

Sanderson Gains Release In WHA

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The strange career of Derek Sanderson with the Philadelphia Blazers of the World Hockey Association is over

It started with a $2.6 million bang and went out with a whimper

Sanderson signed a multiyear pact making him the highest paid player in professional sports—and that includes Pele, the famed Brazilian soccer star But Tuesday the Blazers paid the flashy center off for a reported $1 million.

With his client playing golf in Jamaica, attorney Bob Woolf of Boston said he had reached agreement with the Blazers for "an immediate settlement giving Sanderson his unconditional release

"The team thought it had undertaken an economic burden that it could not justify in the future," said Woolf as explanation for Sanderson's departure The last-place Blazers have been drawing poorly while the National Hockey League Flyers are playing to packed houses.

There were reports earlier in the season that Blazers' owner Bernie Brown wanted to dump Sanderson, but no team wanted to be saddled with the expensive contract.

Sanderson is now free to negotiate with any team in the WHA, or return to his former club in the NHL the Stanley Cup champion Boston Bruins.

"I don't know where we'd play him," Bruins' Managing Director Harry Sinden said in Boston. "We're very satisfied with our three centers. We'd have to make an adjustment some place. I don't feel we need help at center right now."

Sanderson, one of the big name catches the WHA made when it raided the NHL, reported late to the Blazers because of legal battles between the two leagues After several games he suffered a back injury that eventually required hospitalization.

When Sanderson was discharged he claimed he was ready to play but by that time the team was looking for someone to buy his contract. He wasn't allowed to play during that period even though he claimed the team doctor had given him a clean bill of health.

In reflection, Woolf said, "Derek did not act as I would have wanted him to act when he first came down here."

Market's Showing Is Mixed

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market closed mixed today as investors continued to show their concern over the possible inflationary effects of Phase III on the economy. Trading was moderate on the New York Stock Exchange.

Investors virtually ignored some positive peace news and a report the gross national product may be revised upward for 1972.

The market managed to hang on to a small gain throughout most of the session, but near the close, selling eroded earlier gains. The early gain was built up on the positive news presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger would return to Paris on Tuesday to complete the text of an agreement with Le Duc Tho, North Vietnamese negotiator.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were slightly lower in moderate trading.

Record Earnings For Levi Strauss

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Levi Strauss & Co. has reported sales of $504 million and earnings of $25 million for the year 1972.

Both were company records, according to Walter Haas Jr., chairman and chief executive officer.

Haas said Tuesday the performance in 1972 reflected continuing strong demand for jeans and consumer acceptance of Levi's expansion into other apparel lines.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Three Stocks Called Recommended Buys

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Would you please send me the names of some companies that have a bright future. I would like to invest in some stocks. — A.H.

Q. I am interested in investing in common stock. Would you list a few good prospects? — G.C.

A. Three promising buy candidates for long-term appreciation — American Express (OTC), Pitney-Bowes (NYSE) and VF Corp. (NYSE) — represent three diverse industry groups. American Express, personal services; Pitney-Bowes, office equipment and VF, apparel. In the past five years American and V.F. Corp. have compiled outstanding growth records with earnings increasing at an average annual rate of 18 per cent and 15 per cent respectively.

Pitney, which is recommended for its turnaround potential, reported downtrending earnings in 1970 and 1971. For the year ended December, a 15 per cent to 20 per cent rebound in profits is anticipated. Demand for the company's mailing equipment has been gaining momentum and Pitney's copier business has expanded significantly since 1967 when the firm entered this market. A meaningful profit contribution is looked for from the copier division this year. However, it is the company's 50 per cent-owned Pitney-Bowes-Alpex affiliate that should materially boost earnings over the next three to five years. PBA has developed a point-of-sale computerized cash register system for retailers which has been very well received by the industry and as of September 1972, order backlog stood at $28 million.

American Express, best known for its comprehensive blanketing of the entire field of travel, also owns six mutual funds, an insurance company, an underwriting and securities firm and an international banking operation. For 1973, earnings should reach $2 a share versus an estimated $1.75 for the year just ended. Although shares command a rich 32 times multiple, earnings growth justifies the premium.

VF, through the acquisition of H.D. Lee in 1969 and Kay Windsor in 1971, broadened its product base and improved its growth potential. VF should continue to turn in above-average results aided by aggressive management, a strong marketing organization and integrated operations.

Mortgages Up

SAN JOSE — James P. Alger, president, United California Mortgage Co., a division of United California Bank, reports that company production of mortgage loans reached a new high totalling $430,168,200 in 1972. This represents a 63 per cent increase compared to 1971 production of $263,000,000.

OPEN SPACE — Marinwood residents will vote on a $600,000 bond issue aimed at acquiring 350 acres of open space in a special election scheduled for Tuesday. The bulk of the land eyed for acquisition by the district is in the northwestern corner of the community, with other parcels located near the community center and at the end of Limestone Grade.

Marinwood Residents To Vote On Bond Issue For Open Space

By NELS JOHNSON

Marinwood residents in a special election on Tuesday will vote on a $600,000 bond issue aimed at preserving 350 acres of open space.

The measure would cost taxpayers 36 cents per $100 of assessed valuation, hiking the Marinwood Community Services District's current tax levy of $1.23 per $100 of assessed valuation to $1.59.

The cost to the owner of a home assessed at $40,000 — including exemption allowances provided by the state's new tax-shift law — would be $30 annually over a 25-year period.

A two-thirds majority of the vote cast is needed to pass the bond issue. Some 2,334 registered voters are eligible to cast ballots in the election.

Acquisition of Marinwood open space — much of it wooded hillside — had been under study since last July, when a study showed that 89 per cent of 824 residents polled in the 1,400 dwelling-unit community favored buying open lands. The poll also showed that 61 per cent of those polled were willing to pay $20 or more a year to preserve open space.

Twelve parcels have been recommended for purchase through bond monies by the open space committee of the Marinwood Homeowners Association. The community services district board has endorsed purchase of the parcels and has appraised the total value at about $600,000, according to Ellis D. Jaquette, a member of the services district board.

Nine of the parcels are clustered in a 328-acre package filling the community's undeveloped northwestern corner. Two parcels, totaling about 21 acres, are located near the community center while another is at the end of Limestone Grade, adjoining Highway 101.

Jaquette, who noted that the board has been negotiating with owners of all 350 acres involved, said that "there is no doubt that the properties can be delivered."

The district board already has come to terms with the owner of one parcel being eyed by the community for acquisition, Jaquette said.

Should the land be acquired through bond monies, it will become the property of the community services district with district directors acting as trustees. Public access will allow recreational uses such as hiking, horseback riding and picnicking.

Jacquette, saying that there has been no organized opposition to the bond issue, predicted the measure will pass with a 75 per cent favorable vote.

Open-space bond issues in other communities have passed handily in recent months, he noted. Last April, Lucas Valley residents approved a $315,000 open-space bond by an overwhelming ratio of 22 to 1.

More recently, San Rafael citizens passed by a 3 to 1 margin a $2.25-million open-space bond, and Tiburon residents embraced a $1.25-million open-space measure by about the same ratio. Citizens countywide approved creation of a regional park district in a 2 to 1 tally last Nov. 7.

The Marinwood Homeowners Association will hold a community meeting at 1 p.m. Saturday in the community center to discuss the bond issue.

Polls in Marinwood — located at the community center, Miller Creek School and Mary Silveira School — will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Vineyards May Be Enriched By 'Old Money'

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Meier's Wine Cellars, Inc. hopes to enrich its vineyards with money.

Henry Sonneman, president of the winery, has acquired 600 bales of chopped-up money from the Federal Reserve Bank branch here. The Federal Reserve shreds and tightly packs the worn-out money it has taken out of circulation and the bales are free for the asking.

Sonneman wants to get his hands on several thousand more of the 70-pound bales to fill erosion ditches at the vineyards in nearby New Richmond.

"We can pound it down and put a layer of topsoil over it," he said. "If we're lucky, it will solidify and act as drain tile that will also let the water sink in instead of run off."

The bales each measure two feet square by four feet long and contain up to $500,000 in destroyed currency.

Miner Killed

CARLSBAD, N.M. (UPI) — Zane Gallaway, 28, of Carlsbad, a miner, was struck on the head and killed by a 600-pound rock that fell from the ceiling of the Potash Mine Wednesday, his birthday.

Rain-Soaked Marin Faces New Flooding

Third Storm Of Week, High Tide Bring Woes

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

The third major storm in a week slammed into Marin today, combining with an extremely high tide to bring extensive new flooding throughout the county.

Hundreds of homes faced destructive flooding as waters raged over the tops of dikes, forcing evacuation of homeowners in several areas to Red Cross centers.

Rising water on Highway 101 at Greenbrae threatened to close the freeway for the second time this week. With Shoreline Highway closed by slides in at least three places near Stinson Beach, the county was virtually severed across its middle by the floods. At 11 a.m., the freeway was down to one lane in each direction at Corte Madera.

Schools were closed, power lines snapped and new mudslides threatened as utility and public works crews struggled to ease the damage from the storm and tide.

Improved weather was forecast for tomorrow, but tides will abate only slightly through Saturday, thus more days of flooding appeared likely.

In an inadvertent irony, the Ross Valley Flood Control Zone advisory board held its regularly scheduled meeting at 9 a.m. at Corte Madera Town Hall.

The most severe flooding was in the South Novato Boulevard section of Novato, where some 100 residents were evacuated by boats manned by firemen and police. Low-lying areas of Larkspur especially Heather Gardens, also were reported under four feet of water.

Dikes in Tamalpais Valley were too low to stem the flood rushing down Coyote Creek, and water poured into residential areas.

Power failures up to four hours were reported throughout the county. Although major failures were corrected by midmorning, scores of areas remained without electricity. Winds atop Mount Tamalpais reached 85 miles an hour during the night.

School closings included Mewah Mountain, Tamalpais High School District's alternative school on Tamal Vista Boulevard in Corte Madera. It was closed for the second successive day, because flood water surrounding the school made use of its utilities too dangerous.

In Sausalito, Martin Luther King and Bayside schools were closed because flooding made it impossible for cars and buses to reach them. Cinnabar School north of Petaluma also was shut.

County health officials warned residents of West and North Marin to boil water coming from sources other than the Marin Municipal and North Marin County water districts. Water should be boiled for at least five minutes before using it for drinking, brushing teeth, washing foods that will be eaten raw and for rinsing eating utensils.

Sodden dikes collapsed in several areas. Others were being strengthened by sandbags. Hamilton Air Force Base crews worked through the night to sandbag a dike at the end of a runway.

In San Rafael, 28 maintenance men worked through the night to clear storm drains and channels to minimize flooding.

Public Works Director Norris M. Rawles reported his major concern was a potential slide in Glenwood on Lindenwood Court. Most of the eight families he urged to evacuate their home did so, he said.

He predicted the high tide due at about noon could mean power failures, and arranged for rerouting of traffic around Third Street and Grand Avenue.

In San Anselmo, Sir Francis Drake High School's parking lot was under about four feet of water this morning. Police reported that one youth nevertheless drove his sports car into the lot and found himself floating, then sinking. The auto was towed out.

Public works officials in Corte Madera were watching dikes on the shore on the bay, predicting that if tides crested the dikes again the Paradise Drive section of town would "go under."

A Tiburon slide was reported blocking Paradise Drive in the 2300 block.

Two northbound lanes of Highway 101 were blocked by a slide for about an hour during the morning.

Heavy flooding to homes along the beach in Stinson Beach was reported after high tide hit there shortly after 10 a.m. In Bolinas, Brighton Avenue was flooded, and there were slides on the cliffs below Ocean Parkway and Overlook Road.

State officials were due in Marin today to survey the damage from the week of storms. County officials estimated the damage before the third storm at $2 million, and declared the county a local disaster area and asked the government to provide low-interest loans to rebuild the damage.

In Novato, crews at Hamilton Air Force Base worked all night to sandbag a dike at the end of the runway.

Six low-sitting Air Force reserve aircraft, H-130s, were flown off the base and power equipment was moved from the area as a precaution.

North of Gnoss Field, a herd of cattle was stranded on an island as a stretch east of Highway 101 resembled a vast lake.

The heaviest rainfall was 3.1 inches reported in Fairfax for the 24 hours ending at 8 a.m. today. Other counts were 2.6 inches in San Rafael, 2.24 in Tamalpais Valley, 1.3 in Tiburon, 3.0 in Ross, 2.0 in Sausalito, 1.95 in Bolinas and 1.91 in Petaluma.

Kissinger Will Return To Paris

KEY BISCAYNE (UPI) — Presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger is returning to Paris Tuesday "for the purpose of completing" the text of a peace agreement with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho, the Florida White House announced today.

Kissinger will depart for Paris some time Monday morning as hopes mount for a Vietnam ceasefire in the near future.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler told reporters:

"We have a joint announcement between the United States and North Vietnam. Dr. Kissinger will resume private meetings with special adviser Le Duc Tho and minister Xuan Thuy on Jan. 23 for the purpose of completing the text of an agreement."

Ziegler also announced that Gen. Alexander M. Haig, Nixon's special emissary, conferring with Thai leaders in Bangkok today, will be returning to Saigon Saturday to consult again with South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu.

Haig conferred with Thieu for two days before continuing his rounds as a peace emissary, calling on leaders in Cambodia and Laos before going to Thailand.

(Meanwhile it was reported from Saigon that Thieu has approved the latest proposal "in principal," but has requested some changes. And a South Vietnamese official said in a radio broadcast in Paris that peace was "very close."

In Paris, U.S. and Vietnamese negotiators suspended indefinitely the weekly semipublic peace talks, but the U.S. said negotiations would continue. Also Washington and Hanoi technical experts still were meeting in Paris on the language of the protocols that will accompany any agreement.)

Ziegler did nothing to dampen speculation that a cease-fire might be declared soon in South Vietnam.

Asked about rumors of a cease-fire, Ziegler said, "There

Supervisors Back Peace Day Plans

The antiwar movement in Marin won support yesterday from the Marin County Board of Supervisors, which the day before deadlocked whether to declare Saturday as "peace day."

The stalemate was broken when Supervisor Michael Wornum, absent on Tuesday, cast his vote in support of peace day, saying his constituents "are sick to God of this goddamn war... and want their representatives to speak up."

On Tuesday, the matter was thrown into a deadlock when Supervisors Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and Robert A. Roumiguiere refused to approve the peace day request from the Christmas Eve peace committee.

The two supervisors labeled the request a "partisan move" to embarrass the President on Inauguration Day.

Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste, who supported the request, used his power as board chairman to postpone Tuesday's discussion to a special meeting yesterday.

Wornum, who already had promised the peace committee his support, said yesterday he felt obligated "to support what-

$9 Billion Budget Proposed By Reagan

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan today proposed the nation's biggest state budget, a $9.26 billion spending program offering generous pay raises for civil servants and ending in a fat $1.1 billion tax surplus. (See also budget stories, page 28.)

It was double the first budget Reagan proposed six years ago when he came to office as a fiscal conservative with a strict "squeeze, cut and trim" policy.

The proposed new budget Reagan sent the legislature for the 1973-74 fiscal year contains a 17 per cent increase for state colleges, 11.6 per cent boost for the University of California, salary raises averaging 13 per cent for 115,000 civil servants, $2.1 million for "save the environment" projects, $1.1 million to plan two prisons to replace ancient San Quentin and $950,000 to build a luxurious governor's mansion on a scenic river bluff.

But the two big items—the expenditures that shot the budget 20.5 per cent over current spending—were a 34 per cent, $559 million boost in local school aid and a 118 per cent, $530 million hike in property tax relief. Both programs, contained in the local aid portion of the budget Reagan proposed Tuesday, were mandated by the 1972 legislature under the governor's prodding.

Aside from these things, however, Reagan basically proposed a hold-the-line spending program with no new major programs.

"It would indeed be foolish to initiate vast new programs or levels of expenditures higher than absolutely necessary simply because for a short period in the span of government we have an operating surplus," Reagan said in his budget message. "Government should never take from the people more than absolutely necessary."

The budget total came to

College Trustees Vote For Redevelopment Suit

Trustees of the Marin Community College District last night voted unanimously to file suit in opposition to the City of San Rafael's controversy-ridden redevelopment plan. (Another college story, page 19.)

After an hour-long closed session with Marin County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney, Trustee Donald K. Felt moved that the board take the action in order to "preserve all rights of the district against the San Rafael Redevelopment Agency."

Trustees also resolved that the college administration continue its efforts to negotiate with the city regarding the plan, which permits the siphoning of future tax revenues from the college district and other taxing agencies.

In voicing its opposition, district trustees joined the Marin County Board of Supervisors, which Tuesday voted to file its second suit against the plan, which would provide for development of vacant lands in eastern San Rafael as well as major improvements to the Francisco Boulevard and downtown business districts.

The city has agreed to return some of the siphoned funds to the San Rafael School system. No such stipulation has been made regarding the college district, according to Supt. John A. Grasham.

Corona Guilty Of 25 Slayings

BULLETIN

FAIRFIELD, Calif. (UPI) — Juan V. Corona was convicted today of killing 25 farm workers.

Corona remained impassive during the 30 minutes it took the jury to report the 25 guilty verdicts reached after 46 hours of deliberation over seven days.

After deliberating for about two hours during the morning the jury asked the judge to reconvene the court.

GEISER — Floodwaters on Miller Avenue in Mill Valley popped manholes and sent flows gushing above the watery roadway. Drainage systems were overwhelmed by rainwater running into a high tide.

Missouri Banker, His Family Are Executed

GRANDIN, Mo. (UPI) — A bank president, his wife and 16-year-old daughter were found bound to trees and shot to death in a woods yesterday, apparently the victims of extortionists. Shortly before, the president had entered his Bank of Grandin, told a bookkeeper he was wired with dynamite, and rushed out with $13,000.

Early today authorities arrested and began questioning two men. Police would only say the men were strangers in town who earlier had sought information about Grandin—a town of 250.

"We have some other suspects," a police spokesman said, "but we don't know how good they are."

Riley County Coroner Howard Jackson said the bodies of Robert Kitterman, 43, his wife, Bertha, 38, and daughter Roberta were found in woods near an abandon farm house in hilly, secluded country.

Kitterman and his wife had each been shot through the temple. Their daughter, who only yesterday had announced her engagement in the Prospect News in nearby Donovan, was shot in the back of the head.

Mrs. Kitterman and Roberta were tied to the same tree, while Kitterman was tied to another tree.

The tragic episode apparently began shortly after noon yesterday, when Kitterman stumbled into the bank and announced: "They have my wife and daughter."

Ralph Stanley, the bank's bookkeeper, told authorities the bank was closed for the lunch hour when Kitterman entered the bank, gathered money into a sack, and said he was wired with dynamite. He hurried out of the bank without saying anything else, Stanley said.

Authorities said a county school official who saw Kitterman leave the bank said Kitterman told him "my wife and daughter are being held hostage by some extortionists. Call the highway patrol."

Stanley told police Kitterman appeared very frightened and walked "stooped over" when he entered the bank and told him not to turn on any lights or electrical switches. He explained that he had dynamite wired to his chest.

Jackson said no dynamite was found on Kitterman's body, but he said he "doens't know why he (Kitterman) would say" he was wired with dynamite if he wasn't.

Sheriff Lewis Dawes said early today that "even though no dynamite was found on Kitterman's body," evidence indicated he had apparently had something tied to his body.

Jackson said he thought the bodies had been dead about 45 minutes when they were discovered by a state trooper.

Doctorates Good On Job Market

BERKELEY (UPI) — The job market has been good to doctoral-degree recipients at the University of California, according to a five-year study.

A spokesman for the graduate school said Wednesday that only 15 of the 3,209 graduates between 1967 and 1971 failed to find a job. Of the 15, the school's study said, eight considered themselves housewives.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Planning To Sue

HEIDELBERG, West Germany (UPI) — Chess champion Bobby Fischer's mother plans to sue the U.S. Secretary of the Army because of the treatment she allegedly received from American military police during an anti-war demonstration in Heidelberg yesterday.

Dr. Regina Fischer-Putnam, 59, said military police at an Army base dragged her by the arms and legs and threw her onto a sidewalk as she was distributing antiwar leaflets to American soldiers.

A U.S. military spokesman at Army headquarters in Heidelberg said he was unaware of any incident involving Dr. Fischer-Putnam.

Hits War Powers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Legislation to limit presidential war powers by requiring congressional approval of any U.S. military action was reintroduced in the Senate today with the hope that it would prevent "future Vietnams."

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., author of the War Powers act which the Senate passed last April, 68-16, said the measure may be Congress' last chance to reassert its constitutional power to declare war.

Wrath Over Controls

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Edward Heath's announcement of controls on pay and prices for at least three years stirred the wrath of organized labor today but government officials said Heath was confident he enjoys the general support of the country.

Health announced a 60-day extension of an existing total freeze on pay and prices Wednesday at an hour-long news conference. He said government controls will continue for the rest of this year with voluntary controls for at least three years.

Will Roll Again

NEW YORK (UPI) — The blue and silver trains of the Long Island Rail Road, the "Route of the Dashing Commuter," will roll again Saturday for the first time since a strike by non-operating employes began seven weeks ago.

Peter J. Brennan, President Nixon's secretary of labor-designate, announced Wednesday that he had worked out a 90-day "truce" in the deadlocked Long Island Rail Road strike during which a three-member panel will probe the issues in the walkout.

New IRA Policy?

BELFAST (UPI) — Police sources said today the "tradition-style" wounding of five men in Northern Ireland in the past two days may signal the start of a punishment campaign by extremists of the Irish Republican Army.

The sources said they suspect the five attacks against civilians Tuesday and Wednesday were provoked by an increase in the number of Roman Catholics willing to inform on the IRA.

All of the woundings followed a pattern — the men live in Catholic areas and were shot in one leg or foot by gunmen who called at their homes or stopped them on streets in Lurgan, Armagh, Londonderry and Belfast.

Services Board To Eye Firing Of Executive

The dismissal of Daniel Winters, executive director of the Marin City Community Services District, will be considered at a hearing before the district board at 8 p.m. today in the Manzanita Center.

Last month district directors asked for Winters's resignation, then agreed to take steps to fire him when he declined to quit.

Winters told the Independent-Journal he will ask that the hearing be open to the public.

The executive director has been under fire for his performance in the $11,680-a-year post for the past several months and was suspended from his duties in November, then reinstated and placed on 90 days' probation.

GOP Caucus Chairman To Test Mills' Leadership

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Republican senators have lined up behind GOP caucus chairman John L. Harmer of Glendale as their candidate to oust President Pro Tem James R. Mills, D-San Diego.

Harmer told newsmen Wednesday his fellow Republicans decided in a private meeting to back him in a showdown against Mills. GOP floor leader Fred Marler Jr. of Redding once had been the choice.

Harmer said he had 21 "committed" votes in favor of him replacing Mills, who was elected pro tem in January 1971.

The Senate is split 19-19 between Democrats and Republicans. It requires 21 votes to remove Mills.

Harmer said a vote on the matter would not be sought until Democrats have time to "gracefully" defect from Mills. However, he said delaying a vote on the leadership question could result in erosion of his support.

Air War Over South Steps Up

Saigon (UPI) — U.S. warplanes hit suspected Communist targets in South Vietnam late Wednesday and early today in their heaviest such strikes in more than two months, pounding targets around Saigon and destroying two North Vietnamese tanks near the Demilitarized Zone.

Eighty-three jets struck targets near Saigon.

U.S. jets were reported to have destroyed the tanks Wednesday between Quang Tri, which is 404 miles north of Saigon, and the Communist-held mouth of the Cua Viet river, nine miles to the north, UPI Correspondent Barney Seibert reported.

Seibert said that in a battle Wednesday southeast of Quang Tri, South Vietnamese marines reported killing 69 North Vietnamese at a cost of five killed and five wounded.

In fighting five miles north of Quang Tri the marines reported killing 45 North Vietnamese.

Seibert reported that four Communist 122mm rockets hit the Phu Bai airfield, 382 miles north of Saigon, today but caused neither casualties nor damage."

The U.S. military command said much of the action by U.S. aircraft was in support of South Vietnamese ground troops engaged in a major battle near Saigon.

Jet fighter-bombers flew 335 one-plane strikes in all of South Vietnam, the most since 352 sorties reported on Nov. 9, said the command, which reported 83 jet strikes within 40 miles of the capital.

Most of the jets, the command said, strafed and bombed between Tri Tam, 35 miles northwest of Saigon, and a rubber plantation five miles further north which often is used as a Communist infiltration route from Cambodia.

In fighting Wednesday between Tri Tam and the French-owned Michelin rubber plantation, military sources said, South Vietnamese ground troops lost 10 men killed and more than 30 wounded.

U.S. B52s have flown 62 missions—each mission was about three planes—during the past week there in an effort to break up a suspected Communist buildup that could threaten Saigon. Ten more missions were flown today.

NOW AT SCRIPTURE OLDS-
MEET OMEGA . . .
A whole new kind of Olds

At Scripture Olds we've been spoiled by years of fine craftsmanship in our entire line of cars - now we are proud to introduce the Omega, a snappy compact with Olds big car thinking built in – and with the looks and class of an Oldsmobile, inside and outside.

Raise the big back door of our hatchback — you've got 6½ feet of carpeted floor, station-wagon style.

You close the back door as easily as a trunk lid, and your hatchback has the sleek fastback look of a coupe.

Close up on Omega; It's built like a 1½-ton brick. Nearly 500 pounds more car than some smaller compacts. The wheelbase is longer-111 inches, not 108 or 103. It's wider in track, front and rear. You can feel the difference on the road. It feels strong. Steady. Solid. And it's surprisingly roomy and quiet inside. (Typically Olds.)

The good stuff is standard. Omega gives you what you may pay extra to get in other compacts. Deluxe interior. Full loop-pile carpeting. Vinyl-clad steering wheel. Chrome trim around the windows and wheel openings. A 250-cu. in. engine that's bigger than extra-cost engines in some compacts. Even a color choice that includes three special sun-glow colors-orange, red, and yellow.

3 Models to choose from: Coupe, Hatchback Coupe and 4 Door Sedan.

MANUFACTURERS SUGGESTED RETAIL PRICE.
(Sales Tax, License And Optional Equipment Not Included)

Don't forget that the Omega from Scripture gets the same careful attention and "After Sale Service" as all Oldsmobile cars.

LEARY ARRIVES IN LONDON

Dr. Timothy Leary (right) laughs as he arrives at London's Heathrow Airport under guard of two armed agents of the U.S. Bureau of Narcotics. Accompanying Leary yesterday was his girlfriend Joanna Haircourt-Smith. Leary, who escaped in 1970 from a California jail while serving a narcotics sentence, was booked on a direct flight to Los Angeles where he faces charges of unlawful flight. He was arrested earlier this week in Afghanistan.

Churchmen Will Explore 'Other Novato' On Sunday

Novato, a middle-income suburban community, is a city where the "poor are largey hidden," Rev. Eugene Quinones of Our Lady of Loretto Church said yesterday.

He was speaking at a meeting of the Novato Ministerial Fellowship which has designated Sunday as "discover the Other Novato Sunday."

The churchmen will bring the story of the "Other Novato," described as "the one not advertised in real estate booklets," to their congregations.

Rev. Steven L. Darling, pastor of United Methodist Church, described it as "an attempt to see behind affluence."

"There are more than 1,000 persons in Novato who receive public assistance of some kind; they may be disabled blind aged, food stamp recipients or recipients of aid to families with dependent children," Father Quinones said.

Fellowship members talked of people shopping after midnight with food stamps so others wouldn't know, of bored housewives seeking a way to invest their time, the lack of activities for youth and those living at the brink of financial disaster

Some residents are living up to the edge of their income and "a serious illness, divorce of job shift" would create hardship, Father Quinones said.

He said life in a suburban community was highly mobile, lacked a sense of community and a place where people tended to concentrate on their own private matters.

"Novato has small poverty pockets, but for the mostpart, poorfamilies are intermixed among those who have adequate incomes," he said.

"Besides financial problems, many families face tearing experiences. There are almost 500 single-parent households. Over 1,100 widowed, divorced or separated women live in Novato," Father Quinones said. Yet "there are few social service agencies serving Novato that are based in town," he added.

In 1972, 399 children received Aid to Families with Dependent Children and in addition, 250 families received food stamps only, he said.

Drunken Driver Arrests Set State Record

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The California Highway Patrol reports it arrested a record 95,667 drunken drivers in 1972, a 17 per cent increase over the previous high set in 1971.

Total arrests on all charges by the Patrol during 1972 totaled 2.07 million, down 14 per cent from the previous year, the CHP reported Wednesday.

Patrol Commissioner Walter Pudinski attributed the increase in drunken driving arrests to an intensive enforcement program by officers during the last six months of the year.

Court Prohibits Discrimination In Support Pay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court, on a 7-2 vote, has barred states from discriminating against illegitimate children when awarding child support payments from their natural fathers.

In ruling on a Texas test case, the court said illegitimate offspring are entitled to the same payments as legitimate children.

Texas and Wyoming are the only states which do not require a father to support legitimate and illegitimate children in the same fashion.

But The Shoe Did Not Fit

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — The shoe didn't fit — so Alvin Earl Barrow is in the clear.

Barrow, 23, Sacramento, was arrested last fall on charges of snatching a woman's purse, containing $146, and fleeing. He was apprehended in the neighborhood later with $150 in his pocket and four witnesses identified him as the culprit.

But the purse-snatcher lost a shoe while being chased after the crime and a Cinderella-like courtroom scene cleared Barrow.

"I personally attempted to place the shoe on his foot," said Deputy District Attorney Tom Stevens. "I was unable to even get the front portion of his foot into the size 6 shoe." Barrow said he wears a size 10 ½ to 11.

Jack G. Nixon First To File For Council

Jack G. Nixon, chairman of the Marin County Planning Commission, today became the first candidate to file for election to the San Rafael City Council April 17.

The 40-year-old Nixon, who has said the key issue facing San Rafael is long-range planning, submitted petitions an hour after filing opened in city hall at 8:30 a.m.

Thomas R. O'Toole, a San Rafael planning commissioner who narrowly missed election to the council in 1971, was also issued nomination papers this morning but had not filed the petitions of candidacy by 11 a.m. The petitions require five signatures.

The pair is expected to be joined by a host of others in the race. The terms of Councilman Lawrence E. Mulryan and the late Harry A. Barbier expire.

Mulryan, appointed to the council when Fred C. Robbins was appointed city attorney, plans to seek a full term and is already organizing his campaign. He is expected to announce his candidacy at a rally at the Whistlestop in San Rafael on Jan. 26.

Others expected to make a bid for election to the council include Richard C. Fox, a research chemist, and Dr. Gar C. May, a San Rafael optometrist.

Albert J. Boro, a San Rafael planning commissioner, and Carl J. (Red) Brown, athletic director at Sir Francis Drake High School, San Anselmo, also have expressed an interest in running.

Edwina Codoni, longtime San Rafael educator who earlier had become the first to announce her candidacy, said today she will not seek a council seat.

Miss Codoni said she doubted she could work with a council "that couldn't even decide who to appoint" to the vacancy created by the death of Harry A. Barbier. The scrappy educator, who will retire from the San Rafael school system after a long career this June, also decared she wanted to spend more time with relatives.

Filing will close Feb. 8.

New Snow For Skiing

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — If you don't mind wind-blown snow and poor visibility, skiing conditions at Northern and Central California mountain resorts are quite good today.

Most areas have up to two feet of new snow from the current storm, but many resorts reported heavy snowfall and gusty winds this morning.

Traveller's warnings are in effect for the Siskiyous and the Sierras. Driving conditions are hazardous; chains were required this morning on Interstate 80, Highway 50, and many other mountain roads.

Snow depths and conditions, are reported at 10 a.m. by the California State Automobile Association:

Interstate 80: Sugar Bowl, 120-156 inches, packed and powder, windy and snowing; Tahoe Donner, 48 inches, fair; Soda Springs, 84 inches, good, windy and snowing.

Highway 89: Squaw Valley, 12 inches of new snow, packed and powder, windy and snowing; Alpine Meadows, 72-120 inches, fair, some powder, poor visibility; Tahoe Ski Bowl, 30-48 inches, fair to good, windy.

Highway 50: Heavenly Valley, 30-72 inches, fair to good, packed and powder; Sierra Ski Ranch, 94-104 inches, fair to good, windy and snowing.

Highway 4: Bear Valley, 94-113 inches, good, powder, windy and snowing.

Highway 108: Dodge Ridge, 54-60 inches, good, snowing.

has been an awful lot of speculation along that line. I am not prepared to address that speculation, even if it is right or it is wrong."

"But I will tell you that Dr. Kissinger is returning to Paris for the purpose of completing the text of an agreement."

The joint announcement appeared to indicate that Kissinger was returning to Paris to initial a peace treaty ending the longest war in American history.

But Ziegler declined to discuss any of the contents of the agreement.

"As we have said," he told reporters, "We've made progress in the talks. We also have an agreement not to comment until a final agreement is reached."

This is the first time that the presidential spokesman has ever used the term "agreement" in discussing the secret peace negotiations that go back to Aug. 4, 1969. Kissinger returned from Paris early Sunday morning and engaged in marathon consultations with Nixon before returning to Washington.

The President was returning to Washington tonight for the festivities of his second inauguration. Throughout his six days at the Florida White House, Nixon has remained out of the public eye, and only through Ziegler has let it be known that he had been conferring by phone with Kissinger in Washington.

The President also has received several cables from Haig during the general's Southeast Asian mission.

ever little effort we can (to end the war)... and Inauguration Day is a good day to get the message across."

Arrigoni, who has supported peace efforts in the past, reiterated his earlier arguments adding, however, that one of those (Richard Sloan) in the audience the day before "professing his allegiance to America" had painted a swastika on the American flag last year.

"I don't support the actions of people like that." Arrigoni added.

A woman in the audience protested that the board even consider the "peace day" request under the "canopy of county government."

She said the board should confine itself to county business.

On a motion by Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini, seconded by Wornum, the request was approved on a 3-2 vote, Roumiguiere and Arrigoni dissenting.

Warning On Well Water In Novato

Flooding of privately owned wells in the Novato area has caused contamination of the water so it is not safe for domestic use, Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, county health officer, said today.

And Dr. Albrecht also recommended that Bolinas residents boil water used for drinking, cooking and brushing teeth, at least until further notice.

Approximately 500 private wells are listed at Novato homes which also have connections with North Marin Water District lines. Wherever possible, Dr. Albrecht said, homeowners should use only the supply from the water district.

If a dwelling has no connection to a water district line and must use well water, she continued, the water should be boiled for at least five minutes before it is used for any of the following purposes:

Drinking, brushing teeth, washing fruits or vegetables that are eaten raw and as the final rinse water for eating utensils that are washed by hand.

Even though a well has not been flooded directly, she warned, it is probable that groundwater in the Novato area is contaminated.

The health department's division of environmental control will check on the quality of the groundwater and inform Novato residents when well water is safe again, she said.

Dr. Albrecht asked that residents not request individual water analysis at this time.

The Bolinas Community Public Utility District, meanwhile, has been forced to pump water into the town from ponds north of Bolinas in the wake of storm damage to its major transmission lines from Arroyo Honda Dam last week.

Dr. Albrecht said the emergency water sources "appear to be quite muddy" and said tests yesterday by the health department indicate that hand chlorinating of the water by the district is "not adequate to kill bacteria."

The health officer said she did not know how long the residents would have to boil their water.

"Overkill" Charge On Security

A Mill Valley housewife protested yesterday what she considers "overkill" in security at the Marin Hall of Justice during what officials call "sensitive trials."

Jan Mountjoy registered her complaint as county supervisors met with superior court judges to discuss a recommendation that Civic Center security be reduced further.

Mrs. Mountjoy told the officials she felt threatened and harassed by the elaborate security precautions set up whenever a trial with political overtones takes place.

On Monday, Mrs. Mountjoy said, she attended the Justice-Gibson murder trial and was subjected to two searches — one a body search and the other by metal detector, plus a photo-taking session after producing identification.

"This is a definite case of overkill," she said, questioning what happens to the photos once taken.

The board said it will consider her complaint Tuesday when the matter of security reduction comes to a vote.

County Administrator John F. Barrows has recommended the county's security force be cut from 15 to nine.

Fire Damage Is $35,000

A blaze which started in a family room caused $35,000 damage last night to a San Anselmo home.

Firemen said the blaze broke out shortly before 8 p.m. in the Thomas Zeigler residence, 910 Butterfield Avenue. A short in a light was blamed.

No injuries were reported as the fire gutted the family room and an adjacent room, causing smoke and heat damage throughout the home as well.

Zeigler and his family fled from the flames.

Juvenile Commission At Full Strength

The Marin County Juvenile Delinquency Prevention Commission has grown to full strength with appointment of three new members by the county board of supervisors.

Appointed were Heidi Osterlye of San Rafael, Rodger Aronoff of Tiburon and John Leipsic of Kentfield.

According to Joseph Doherty of the probation department, the commission Tuesday continued with discussions on its direction of 1973 and what areas of juvenile delinquency to study.

Patrolman Praised For Ticketing Bus

NEW YORK (UPI) — Julio Valentin, a zealous parking enforcement officer, slapped a $25 ticket for illegal parking on a bus in downtown Manhattan Wednesday and got praised by Mayor John V. Lindsay for his action.

The mayor, emerging from a luncheon in the Merrill-Lynch building in the Wall Street, took the ticket off the bus he had chartered to cart press executives around on a tour of the city and said "I think it's great. I wish I was here to congratulate him."

Problem Tunnel To Finally Open

DENVER (UPI) — A highway tunnel under the Continental Divide near Loveland Pass which took four years to build, and was continually beset by problems, opens to traffic March 1, its builders announced Wednesday.

Three men were killed during construction of the Eisenhower Memorial Tunnel and 100 other workers were injured.

BUDGET

$9,258,835,583, surpassing current spending by $1.57 oillion.

It was $337 million higher than Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's proposed new budget for New York.

It represented $446 for every man, woman and child in California.

"This is a very large budget," acknowledged Reagan.

Not only was the budget balanced, but it projected an unprecedented year-ending revenue surplus of $1.1 billion— a 11.8 per cent overtax representing $53.90 for every man, woman and child in the nation's most populous state.

Reagan promised legislation to "return to the taxpayers substantially all of the excess." He is leaning toward an income tax cut but also considering a delay in a sales tax hike scheduled for June 1.

Most of the surplus—$852 million—is being stockpiled this fiscal year. Another $267 million will be accumulated next year. Its origin was attributed to a booming economy, welfare savings, federal revenue sharing, fewer — than expected expenditures and an income tax withholding windfall.

Newsmen were cautioned that $50 million of the surplus probably will be needed to finance appropriation bills sure to be passed by the legislature with Reagan's blessings. Another $85-to-150 million will be required to fund the half-year cost of a federal welfare act expected to take effect next Jan. 1.

Under Reagan's budget, the biggest share of the taxpayer's dollar —37.9 cents—would be spent for education. Health and welfare would claim 24.4 cents and property tax relief 10.9 cents. These three broad categories would eat up more than 73 cents.

The tax dollar would be raised primarily from the sales tax, 33.5 cents, and personal income taxes, 24.3 cents. Fuel taxes would furnish 12.5 cents and bank and corporation taxes 11.1 cents.

Reagan said the $226 million he proposed for state employe salary increases "fullfills our obligation" to place government workers on a par with their private enterprise counterparts. Of the total, $160.5 million was earmarked for civil servants, $34.3 million for the state colleges and $30.7 million for the University of California.

Civil servants pay hikes would average about 13 per cent, but range up to 20 per cent or more depending upon present "inequities." Salaries of state college instructors would increase by 7.5 per cent and UC faculty members by 5.4 per cent.

The California State Employes Association heralded "a new era in good faith relations" with Reagan.

Arraigned On Assault Count

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Herbert R. Miller, 49, former Cotati planning commissioner, was arraigned yesterday in Sonoma County Superior Court on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Judge John Moskowitz scheduled Miller to enter a plea Jan. 24 and continued bail at $1,000.

Miller, a private investigator, was arrested Oct. 20 on suspicion of firing a gun at a 16-year-old Petaluma girl during an auto chase on Highway 101, south of Cotati.

Miller said he chased the girl out of the parking lot of Holt's Marine in Rohnert Park because he thought a burglary attempt had been made. Police said the girl was merely chatting with a girl friend in the lot.

Mailliard's Office Is Picketed

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Eight Marin citizens yesterday picketed the office of Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, in an appeal for him to vote for a pending congressional cutoff of funds for the war in Vietnam.

A member of the congressman's staff told the delegation from the Christmas Eve Peace Committee that Mailliard and 14 other Republican congressman have appealed to Nixon not to resume the bombing of North Vietnam.

The delegation picketed during the noon hour in front of the Federal Building, at 450 Golden Gate Avenue, then met briefly with Mailliard's staff, reported Meyer M. Baylin of Mill Valley.

Baylin said more pickets had been expected, but some apparently were delayed by flooding on Highway 101 at Corte Madera.

Action Deferred On Sausalito Apartment Plan

The Sausalito Planning Commission took no action last night on a conditional use permit application for a 117-unit apartment development, continuing a public hearing on the project until its Feb. 7 meeting.

Chairman Robert L. Nissen said approximately 30 residents who live below the site of the development, proposed by Dan Coleman Associates for the intersection of Rodeo Avenue and Highway 101, appeared to protest the plans. Most of those who objected said they would like to see the 11-acre hill site remain in open space, Nissen said.

The project plans call for a mix of one, two and three-bedroom units, with parking spaces for 234 cars, or two per unit.

Doctors Replace A Torn Off Arm

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — A pizza maker's right arm was ripped off at the shoulder in a dough-making machine Wednesday and doctors sewed it back on in a 5 ½ hour operation.

A spokesman at the Valley Medical Center said Bertram Vasquez, 24, San Jose, had a "good chance" of regaining full use of the arm. Vasquez was reported in serious condition.

HUGO IVARSON

Hugo I. Ivarson, 61, retired carpenter of Petaluma, died yesterday at a local hospital after a nine-month illness.

Ivarson, of 101 Eastman Lane, Petaluma, was born and reared in Sweden and moved to Sonoma at the age of 17. After living briefly in Alaska, Ivarson returned to Petaluma and worked as a carpenter for more than 35 years.

He was a member of the Carpenters Union Local 981.

He is survived by his wife, Esther; a son, Thomas H. Ivarson of Petaluma; two daughters, Betty Tibbens of Petaluma and Nancy Aguiar of Pleasanton, and four grandchildren.

Funeral will be held tomorrow at 3 p.m. at the Parent Funeral Chapel, Petaluma. Entombment will be at Cypress Hill Memorial Park.

The family prefers contributions be made to any charity.

MALCOLM LEONARD

Funeral for Malcolm Francis Leonard of San Francisco, father of Barry King Leonard of Novato, will be tomorrow at 1 p.m. at the Stratford Evans Merced Funeral Chapel in Merced. Burial will be in the Masonic section of the Merced District Cemetery.

Leonard, 63, died in a San Francisco hospital Tuesday after a brief illness. He had lived in San Francisco for 30 years, and was a native of Merced.

He is also survived by his wife, Victoria; his mother, Grace Leonard Christopherson of Merced, and by three grandchildren.

Welfare Cheat Sent To Prison

A high-living, pregnant former topless dancer, who said she wanted to go to state prison, got her wish yesterday in Marin Superior Court.

Lia Culcleasure Stahrlite, 22, of Hayward, had been serving a nine months' county jail term for welfare fraud. She pleaded guilty last month to fraudulently obtaining welfare funds and to perjury in Marin County, at the same time as she was also getting welfare in two other counties.

Yesterday she told Superior Court Judge David Menary she feared she might face prison terms from the other counties, and her jail time in Marin would not count toward any sentences she might receive.

She also gave the court a letter in which she declared that her time in county jail left her with "acute feelings of boredom and hostility" but without receiving any training to enable her to make a living once she regained freedom.

She added that if her child were born while she was in jail, she would be unable to see it; arrangements could be made to do so in state prison.

Judge Menary obliged, sending her to the state Women's Correctional Facility at Corona after revoking a probationary term of five years given at the time of sentencing last month.

Probation reports described the woman — also known as Alice Bertie Stephenson — as living luxuriously through "one of the most successful welfare fraud operations in some time." The investigators estimated she enjoyed an income of more than $20,000 last year, including her welfare payments in Marin, Alameda and San Francisco counties.

Outburst By Woman Disrupts An Office

A 50-year-old woman became violent in the Marin County Clerk's Office yesterday, fracturing a deputy clerk's wrist and damaging a typewriter and other equipment, sheriff's deputies said.

The woman, identified as Lavonne Joan Allen of 22 Council Crest Drive, Corte Madera, was taken to the Marin Community Mental Health Center for examination, according to Sheriff's Sgt. Weldon Travis, head of the Marin Civic Center security patrol.

County Clerk George H. Gnoss said the woman entered the clerk's office about 7:50 a.m., asking to see a deputy working in the probate section. Gnoss was not in the office.

Other workers said the woman began shouting and cursing. Before security guards arrived, she flung a heavy date stamping machine at clerk Jerome Caran, breaking his wrist, pushed a typewriter off the counter and smashed it, flung a large rack of rubber stamps over the counter, scattered files and repeatedly bashed the counter with a dating machine.

Travis said the woman struggled at length with the deputies.

The injured clerk was treated at Kaiser Foundation Hospital in San Rafael and sent home.

Tiburon Lot Plea Rejected

A request to subdivide a large, steep lot at 1825-35 Centro West in Tiburon has been rejected by the Tiburon Board of Adjustment.

Owner Phillippe Mutrux had asked for the lot split at the board's Monday meeting. He had sought to subdivide a 31,300 square foot parcel into two smaller lots, according to Jean Ellingsen, city building and planning secretary.

Mrs. Ellingsen said city regulations require that lots in hilly areas — like Centro West — must be at least 20,000 square feet. She said several neighbors of Mutrux's appeared at the hearing to protest the split.

In other business, the board granted a use permit to Fred Knight to permit him to keep a horse on a 1.2-acre lot at 615-16 Ridge Road.

Man Injured In Auto Crash

A Concord man was injured in a two-car accident yesterday at 6 p.m. in the 2700 block of Lakeville Street, Petaluma.

Police said his car was struck from the side when an auto driven by Maria L. Webber, 27, of 1327 San Rafael Drive, Petaluma, entered the street from a driveway. She was treated at Hillcrest for a neck injury.

Policemen Ordered To High Court

Two San Anselmo police officers and a companion were bound over to Marin Superior Court yesterday on burglary charges following a closed preliminary hearing in municipal court.

Judge David R. Baty ordered Sgt. Edwin Souza Silvia, reserve officer Eugene Charles Saporetti and the third man, Warren Charles Osborne of Fairfax, to appear in superior court Feb. 8.

The three were arrested by San Anselmo police on Dec. 11, and charged with burglary of nine television sets valued at $1,223 from a Sears-Roebuck catalogue store in San Anselmo.

Silvia, 38, is a veteran of nine years on the police force, Saporetti, 24, joined the force a year ago, according to Police Chief Raymond R. Buchignani.

The three men were free on their own recognizance today after being rebooked into Marin County Jail and released.

No Booze, Drugs Discovered In Sniper Autopsy

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Sniper Mark Essex was neither drunk nor drugged during his deadly gunbattle with police Jan. 7, a coroner's report shows.

Dr. Carl T. Rabin, Orleans Parish coroner, issued an autopsy report Wednesday that said there were no traces of alcohol or morphine in Essex's body.

Essex, 23, was shot to death by police on the roof of the downtown Howard Johnson's Motel after a day-long seige in which six other persons were killed.

HELPING HAND FROM FIREMEN

Dispute Flares Over Resignation Request

City Mgr. William H. Cunningham has asked for the resignation of Mill Valley librarian Alberta Hankenson and the request has triggered a dispute between the city attorney and the chairman of the library board.

Chairman Waultraud Hecht contends the city manager has no right to fire Miss Hankenson from her $14,076-a-year post since libraries operate under the state education code, which gives the library board hiring and firing power over its employees.

Libraries are under the education code, according to Mrs. Hecht, "in order to remove them, to some extent, from the political pressures of local government."

City Atty. Leland H. Jordan, on the other hand, believes Cunningham has properly asked for the librarian's resignation.

He cited a case in which an appellate court ruled that the City of Ukiah had the right to establish a civil service commission which included library employees.

"If this decision is carried to its logical conclusion, it means the state law which permits a city to establish a city manager system also gives that manager power to dismiss and employ library employees," Jordan said.

But the city attorney admitted the question of city manager control over library workers has never been determined in the courts and said it might take a court action to settle the Mill Valley situation.

Cunningham refused to comment on the matter and would not even say if he had asked for the resignation.

Miss Hankenson, however, told the Independent-Journal the city manager had asked her to resign last week, but declined to give the reasons for the move.

She did say she would not resign "unless the library board asks me to or the board is willing to take Mr. Jordan's recommendations. I was hired by the board and I think only the board has the right to fire me," she said.

Cunningham's action apparently resulted from a continuing dispute over finances between the library and city manager. In the past several months Cunningham has asked the library to find new methods to reduce its costs.

Miss Hankenson, 39, was selected librarian in May of 1970, chosen from 19 other candidates to replace Dorothy Thomas, who had retired from the post she held for many years.

Before coming to Mill Valley, Miss Hankenson was head librarian of the Castro Valley branch of the Alameda County Library.

Dr. Earl Herald Drowning Victim

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Dr. Earl S. Herald, 58, host of the television show "Science in Action" and associate director of Steinhart Aquarium, has drowned while skin diving in Baja California.

Dr. George E. Lindsay, who directs the California Academy of Science of which the aquarium is a part, said here Wednesday the ichthyologist had suffered a heart attack while on vacation near La Paz, Mexico.

His body was found by Jeffery W. Meyer with whom he and their wives had gone on vacation. He had been swimming alone and the body was found floating in shallow water.

Northridge Plan Sections Endorsed

A joint meeting of Larkspur's City Council, Planning Commission and Park and Recreation Commission last night endorsed sections of the Northridge open space plan that conform to the city's similar plan.

But city officials delayed endorsement of the remainder of the Northridge plan — paid for by the cities of Mill Valley, Corte Madera and Larkspur, and the county and the Marin Conservation League — until its general plan is updated.

The basic differences between the new plan, and Larkspur's own interim open space plan adopted in June last year, are of size and concept. The new plan, prepared by county planning consultant Brian G. Whittenkeller, includes all of Little King Mountain down as far as Magnolia Avenue, and much of lower Baltimore Canyon. The city's doesn't.

Larkspur Planning Director Arthur N. Stout said it was decided that remaining Northridge open space areas will be considered when the city adopts an open space element in its revised general plan, scheduled for completion by July 1.

Long discussion over the two plans centered both on the areas to be preserved, and on how they can be acquired, said Stout.

Whittenkeller's plan has suggested that controlled cluster housing with surrounding open space would be a method of saving open space.

But the city's own open space plan, prepared by the firm of Abergast and Newton, proposes retaining the land in undeveloped conservation.

Allotment Board Asks Simpler Judging Rules

Petaluma's Development Allotment Board recommended last night that voting procedures be simplified for next year's panel.

The board was appointed to recommend to the city council which of 16 developments should be permitted in 1973-74 under a building limitation of 500 residential units per year.

Members agreed a voting system on developers' applications was too complicated for laymen to understand and asked planning staff members to revise the form next year to reflect less professional terminology.

They also recommended that plans presented by developers be given in one form. This year presentations ranged from gaudy displays with slides and color brochures to simple crayon drawings.

The board agreed that 17 members is a good figure for the board, bur recommended that three alternates be appointed in case not all members carry out their assignments.

In the rating system, the board recommended that school facilities be given more importance in voting. They also said that votes should be split for elementary and secondary schools, since developments may vary in their effects.

The board also recommended that school district superintendents be furnished with more detailed information on plans so they may send the board better reports on the effects developments will have on their schools.

Board chairman Carleton Reinaldo will present recommendations to the city council Jan. 29 at 4 p.m. The council then will hear appeals from developers who received low ratings from the board.

THE NAKED LOOK OF QUALITY

You'll recognize it instantly when you see one of our Grandfather, Grandmother, Bracket or Schoolhouse Clocks. It's as evident in our do-it-yourself kits, assembled cases and completely finished clocks as it is in the West German movements that fit them. And that unique quality comes in all sizes — from our tall 85 inch Grandfather Clocks, to our handy, 14-inch Bracket Clocks.

It's particularly apparent in our kits, which feature precision pre-cutting (including mitre-cuts) and sub-assemblies. The biggest surprise is that even with all this amazing quality all of our clocks are remarkably low priced. Clock kits start at $39.50. Fully finished clocks from $56.

WET ANGUISH

The frustration of his stalled van on a Southern Marin street was too much for this unidentified man. Clasping his forehead, and standing calf-deep in flood water, his mood summed up the soggy situation throughout much of Marin. (See story page 1, pictures pages 1, 6 and 11.)

Carrot Approach Hit On Open Space Funds

The Marin County Parks and Recreation Commission yesterday rebuffed a new effort by county planning officials to use open space money as a "stick and carrot device" for adoption of the proposed countywide general plan. The move was branded by commission chairman Albert J. Boro as an attempt to "mix oil and water," using the new Marin Regional Park District "as a wedge to get cities to adopt the countywide general plan."

The stick and carrot idea was suggested by Sol Silver, chief of advanced county planning, who last month was harshly criticized by the same commission for proposing open space funds be allocated only to cities that adopt low and moderate-income housing policies.

Silver told the commission yesterday the planning department had withdrawn that recommendation and instead recommended that cities which have adopted the countywide plan be given special consideration when open space money is distributed.

(Despite Silver's comments that the planning department had "withdrawn" its first recommendation, yesterday's proposal amounts to the same thing. Adoption of the countywide plan means adoption of low and moderate-income housing policies.)

Silver drew support only from commissioner Polly Smith, who said the regional park district, approved by voters in November to purchase open space lands, is an inseparable part of the countywide plan.

However, Boro and other commissioners responded that voters in November approved only a park district. The campaign for its approval did not link it with the controversial plan, Boro said.

Silver said that unless cities adopt the plan — including its "open space element" — the regional park district will be in for hard times.

A city in favor of development could zone lands for development, thus pushing up their cost to the park district, he explained.

Commissioner Merritt A. Robinson noted, however, that the park district plans to use the "open space element" as a guide on which lands should be purchased.

Robinson, who said he agreed with many of the goals of the countywide plan, joined Boro in opposing a direct tie with the park district.

The discussion came as the commission considered — and adopted — general guidelines for operation of the park district and how open space lands will be acquired.

Open space acquisition techniques include: Outright purchase of lands; purchase of scenic easements; land use (zoning) procedures to promote cluster development; scenic and open space contracts (giving tax benefits), and acceptance of land dedications.

The general guidelines were passed on to the county board of supervisors, which acts as the board of directors for the park district.

Reed Union Trustees To Seek Opinions On Goals

Trustees of the Reed Union School District have decided to invite parents and other interested persons to take another look at the district's general goals and objectives, adopted two years ago by the board.

At their Tuesday meeting, trustees set a public discussion on the goals for 7:30 p.m., Jan. 30 in the Del Mar School library, according to Supt. Ralph D. Giovanniello.

"We hope to review the goals and objectives we have now, see if they are still relevant and encourage people to recommend any changes they think should be made," the superintendent said.

The Reed Union School District board also:

PROGRAM — Heard a report on the district's three-year-old skill building program for 16 fifth and sixth grade students who have learning difficulties. Polly Erion, head of the program, told the board it had been extremely successful in helping the youngsters to building reading and math skills.

GUIDELINE — Adopted a job description outlining the superintendent's duties.

CLOSED SESSION — Met in closed session for approximately 40 minutes to discuss pending litigation, but took no action following the session.

AGREEMENT — Signed a practice teaching agreement authorizing Lone Mountain College in San Francisco to provide the district with one student teacher for the current school year.

Skeleton Said That Of Woman

The headless skeleton found on Mount Tamalpais Jan. 6 is that of a young woman, dead one to three years, coroner's investigator Keith C. Craig said today.

Craig said a team of experts from the College of Marin, Novato Prehistory Museum and private archaeologists had determined that the skeleton was not male, as earlier had been thought.

The experts said the woman was about 5 feet, 8 inches tall and between 18 and 20 years old when she died.

The missing skull has not been found, nor has any cause of death been determined, Craig reported. A college student found the bones strewn widely in a gully near the Mountain Theater.

Marin County Fails To Recognize Role

An unusual relationship exists between Marin County and its cities. Over the years, it has not been a happy one. Currently, the friction is greater than usual.

Traditionally in the United States, county government is "caretaker government." As colonization moved west across the continent, settlers were quick to organize cities. Counties came along, in most cases, with state government. The new state would be divided into counties to provide some local governmental control in the open spaces between the cities. (Alaska is an exception; it has never had any counties.)

The great expansion of government in the last few decades has given counties additional responsibilities in public health, welfare and other fields.

THE TRADITION that only by incorporating as a city could a community provide itself with streets, police and fire protection, etc., has been largely destroyed in California by passage of laws permitting all sorts of special districts to provide the kinds of services which only cities provide in many states.

Marin has its share — or more than its share — of such special districts. It has nearly 100 of them, each with its own tax rate and some kind of governing body.

At the same time these special districts were proliferating, however, Marin County embarked gradually on a policy of trying to provide city services out of county funds. This has led to much of the conflict — cities objecting to their residents having to pay taxes for structural fire fighting in the unincorporated areas, for instance.

SOMEHOW, with this constant expansion of the county's role, the idea has grown up here that the county is the principal government, with the cities merely its subdivisions.

The latest result of this switching of positions is seen in the proposed countywide plan.

During the past decade, all of Marin's cities except Ross have produced their own general plans. The county, however, never has produced a general plan for the unincorporated area — although the board of supervisors has been nagging the planning department for one ever since Mary Summers was planning director.

Finally, the county has come up with a general plan. But it is not a general plan for the unincorporated area. It is a plan for the whole county — and goes far beyond the usual general plan. The cities now are being asked to scrap their plans and adopt that proposed by the "higher level of government" at the Civic Center.

APPARENTLY it never occurred to county officials that the county's responsibility was to produce a general plan for the unincorporated area which would mesh with and supplement those already adopted by the cities.

Thus, we have a wasteful, time-consuming exercise in misspent governmental activity. There is scant possibility that all 11 cities will adopt the gradiose proposals of the countywide plan. So it is fated to become a useless monument to "big brotherism."

How much would have been saved, and how much might have been accomplished, if the county had recognized at the outset that it governs only the unincorporated territory!

Those Early Bird Candidates Pose Moral, Legal Questions

By EARL G. WATERS

The unprecedented early hustings of numerous aspirants to public office, particularly those seeking statewide office, have raised some serious questions of propriety as well as of the adequacy of the state's electioneering and campaign reporting laws.

Technically, one does not become a candidate until he has filed the necessary papers with the county clerk. The time for such filing is set by law and precedes the actual election date by only a few weeks.

In the past those who looked forward to running for an office usually withheld formal declarations until shortly before the official filing time.

But the new trend seems to be to throw all caution to the winds and jump into a race months ahead of the time for filing. Congressman Jerry Waldie declared himself a candidate for governor early last year, almost two years in advance of filing time.

Speaker Robert Moretti tipped his hand publicly by bragging he has built a war chest of $250,000 to run for governor. State Controller Houston Flournoy announced a $150-a-plate fund-raising dinner to finance a statewide campaign. He is not yet formally a candidate for anything although he indicated he is thinking of running for governor.

What makes all this become a sticky issue is the methods used by some to gather in the money.

Californria election laws require a candidate to file a report of his expenditures and sources of funds. But until one becomes an official candidate there is no requirement for such filing.

In the past campaign funds were generally raised and handled by a committee. The candidate carefully refrained from any direct involvement with either activity.

Of late some aspirants seem to have personally taken over the solicitation and handling of funds.

A LEGISLATIVE counsel opinion holds that a person is legally a candidate when "he commences a systematic endeavor to obtain nomination or election to office." However "for state reporting purposes" the definitions "do not include an indication of exactly when a person becomes a candidate."

"There is no legal limitation as to when contributions ... may be given or received ... Assuming ... that these contributions are in aid of the candidate's ... election ... they must be reported."

Apparently, however, money collected for a campaign that does not materialize need not be reported.

Aside from the ethics of such a case, there is a question of taxation.

"An individual contribution made to a person prior to his filing as a candidate ... is taxable to the donor under both state and federal gift tax laws..."

Further, "... if political campaign contributions are put to personal use ... they are reportable income ..." under both federal and state laws.

"Golly! Gee whiz, fellows! I didn't know we had so many prerogatives."

THE NEEDLE

By HAROLD COFFIN

They've developed a new street-paving material made out of broken glass. This proves that the road to success is paved with good inventions.

Pundits are always quoting the man in the street; and General Motors keeps trying to sell him an auto.

Considering the strength of today's auto bumpers, no wonder the man in the street is frequently up in the air.

The guy who wants to live on Easy Street may find it's impossible to get there from where he's at.

More Fish Wanted In District Lakes

I would like an answer as a senior citizen: Why in the summer time the (Marin Municipal Water District) lakes are too low and too warm to plant fish? In the winter the water is too high and too cold? There is not a shortage of fish in the hatcheries. We pay for a license, also a permit, for what? I don't think Mr. Seeger has been to the lakes in years. The roads are terrible — nothing but ruts and deep holes.

The steps going to Lagunitas are unsafe for the older folks, even a hand rail would be of help. It would seem the MMWD would have the manpower and materials to take care of these things. So what is the answer? The Department of Fish and Game can stock lakes in North Marin, what about putting some fish in the lakes where most of us old people go fishing and where most of our lakes are?

Keep The 'Kewpie Doll' Figures Of 'Love Is'

More comments on "Love Is".

First: To Helmi — You say, "the figures are 'anatomically incorrect'."

True, true, my dear, but have you ever studied Picasso's figures and animals? Neither are they, but surely no one would argue that he is not an artist of considerable stature, nor that his pictures do not project his messages...

Second: As to Marion's statement that these comical, lovable little "kewpie doll" figures (she must be too young to remember those) stumbling their way through the experiences of young marrieds with their first baby, thoroughly in love and enjoying it, in any way "borders on the pornographic," is simply beyond my comprehension. Fie on you, Marion!

This woman begs to differ with the opinions of both Helmi and Marion. To me, these saucy little cartoons are a bright spot in the day — I look for them first thing when I open the paper.

So, please, girls, let us of those who enjoy continue to enjoy...

To the artist: Just keep them coming! Please.

Jail More Equitable Drunken Driver Penalty

The original intent of parking meters was to give merchants a better customer turnover, and would rotate the available areas in front of their stores or places of business. A small fee for parking was reasonable to cover the servicing of the meters. This position has completely disappeared; the meters are now a revenue producing device. The penalty fees have also been greatly increased, again (opinion) not to motivate the parking rotation but to reap more profit...

Drunk driving violations (I have never had one, yet) — I read in our Marin papers that the penalty is around $300. Three hundred dollars to a $400 or $500 a month wage earner is a painful amount... to a $2,000 or $3,300 wage earner it probably doesn't hurt at all.

This system hardly seems effective (opinion). I suggest investigating a system of first offense, one week in jail; second offense, three weeks in jail; third offense, three months in jail.

The above system, I believe, would be a more fair and equitable penalty. It would hurt the high-income violator equally with the low income violator...

Attempt To Curb Civic Center Recalled

Indeed sir, you are quite adept at a U turn.

Your editorial of Jan. 8 mentions "the multi-million dollar Civic Center that was built without any approving vote of the people ..."

During the building of that $80 million (just a stab) county seat, John Streiff attempted to arouse public action toward a sane fiscal approach to the fortune making boondoggle. John and his following were far too late with far too little to halt the money grubbers in their victorious onslaught to acquire taxpayers' resources.

The grubbers were ably and effectively assisted by Mr. Brown's Independent-Journal which editorially stated that John's group was pursuing a "red herring."

Was it Confucious or Aesop who said "the chickens have come home to roost"?

Article Captures Character, Work

I want to thank the I-J for running the article about me in the Jan. 6 issue of Marin Magazine. Since this was another first for me, I must confess I was slightly concerned how the finished piece would read. I shouldn't have been.

Mr. Don Keown and Mr. Alfred Arn did an excellent job of combining their talents to create this article of the real Sherry Ford and not some sterile personality. I'm sure I wasn't an easy subject to capture because of my leaping thought process and wide range of work.

Mr. Keown tuned in on the key phrases and attitudes that might have gone unnoticed by someone else. Mr. Arn is the first photographer who's been able to take my work and show the detail and scope in an artistic way.

My compliments to these two men, and to you for having them on the I-J staff.

March Of Dimes Not Advocating Abortion

Contrary to theimplication of a recent letter, the March of Dimes does not advise or advocate therapeutic abortion.

Our avowed goal is the prevention and treatment of birth defects, not births. To reach this goal we fund extensive programs of research, patient care and education, among them some genetic counseling programs.

Genetic counseling is a medical service which gives parents and parents-to-be facts about the possible outcome of planned or present pregnancies. It also attempts to deal with past problems such as the birth of a defective child. The March of Dimes funds a number of genetic counseling clinics in the belief that they provide a much-needed service which would not otherwise be available.

Patients are generally referred to the clinic by their own physicians because of an obvious, immediate need. Participation in the counseling on the part of the parents is purely voluntary as are their decision as to how to use the information gained from the counseling. In addition, we believe that their decisions should not be directed by anyone else ...

I trust that the people of Marin will continue to respond as generously as they have in the past in helping us to meet the problem of birth defects prevention and treatment — the goal of the National Foundation — March of Dimes.

Mexico Seeking To Diffuse Its Ticking Population Bomb

MEXICO CITY — Beneath the solid economic progress the neighbor to the south of the United States has made in recent decades is a time bomb ticking inexorably on. The net population increase of 3.3 per cent, one of the highest in the world, means a doubling every 20 years, with a projected total of 130 million by the end of the century. The present population is about 54 million.

Evidence of the threat of this explosion was a recent statement signed by 80 Roman Catholic bishops which, in effect, supported the government program of birth control. That program is an emergency drive to try to get the rate of increase down as rapidly as possible.

Beginning with the first of the year, the government opened 18 family planning clinics, 10 in Mexico City. Personnel to staff them have been training for many months. International Planned Parenthood has 52 clinics in operation.

A program much wider in scope is being initiated by the Mexican Social Security Agency. Hospitals all over the country are introducing family planning and providing varied means of birth control free of charge. The hope is that a nationwide system will quickly take hold.

THE STATEMENT by the Catholic bishops was cautiously phrased to avoid any seeming conflict with Pope Paul's encyclical of 1968, Humanae Vitae (of human life), reiterating the church's opposition to any form of artificial contraception. The bishops called their message a "new pastoral orientation" to Humanae Vitae.

While repeating the church's position that only the rhythm method of birth control is sanctioned, they expressed theirsupport for "the role of authorities. . .to invite responsibility, information and facilitate access to medical services" for family planning.

Humanae Vitae has been one of the most controversial of the many encyclicals promulgated by the present Pope.Strong opposition has come from liberal hierarchies in the Netherlands and elsewhere. The Mexican bishops noted that many families have children without being able to provide them with food, housing, clothing, health, love, understanding or education.

THE PRESENT POLICY of the Mexican government on family planning is a radical departure. As recently as last March the official position was that Mexico needed all the increase to carry out the goals of social and economic revolution. Then abruptly President Luis Echeverria Alvarez said this had been a mistake and it was essential to try to stop the flood of new births by direct government intervention.

One reason was the concern of the labor unions over the rapid rise in unemployment. With surplus labor flooding into the market, much of it unskilled and with little education, the wage level is increasingly depressed except for the small, highly skilled trades in their own tightly held unions.

The people explosion in Mexico extends also throughout Latin America. A tidal wave of births is erasing social and economic progress in virtually every country. The over-all rate of increase for Central America is 3.2 per cent, higher than in most Asian nations. The rate is 3.4 per cent a year for the Dominican Republic, Colombia, Ecuador, Venezuela and Paraguay.

ADDING TO the problem is the appalling incidence of illegal abortion. One estimate by demographers is that in all of Latin America there are 11 million illegal abortions annually. With the complications that follow from crude and unsterile procedures, the drain on remedial drugs and blood plasma takes a heavy toll on supplies scarce to begin with. Hospital beds are also in short supply as one consequence of the illegal abortion mills. In Uruguay 80 per cent of all pregnancies end in abortion.

The danger signal has been flashing with increasing intensity as it is realized that the people explosion can mean a breakdown of the social structure, if not revolution. The goal of Planned Parenthood is a net reproduction rate of one. But even after that is achieved it takes about 60 years before the population actually ceases to grow.

This means a country's total population could add 50 to 80 per cent during the 60-year period. For Mexico it means 100 million people by the year 2000 under any circumstance. And if the flood is not quickly checked the projections are so staggering as hardly to bear thinking about.

Attempts To Keep U.S. Public In Dark Must Be Fought

These are complex days, filled with grave decisions that have to be made by individual people as components of the public opinion on which free society rests.

That is why adequate informing of the public is so essential.

That is why the darkness regarding Vietnam is particularly distressing. Until the darkness is dispelled, the public's decisions are inevitably based on emotions and observations which may not be fully founded on fact.

And that is why the press — printed and electronic — is very disturbed at growing and grave limitations on its capacity to find out what is going on and informing the public about it.

THERE IS PLENTY of evidence that the First Amendment in the Constitution's Bill of Rights, which guarantees the freedom of the press, is in danger.

The evidence lies in the inaccessibility of news sources, primarily and overwhelmingly the President; the various pressures being brought on journalistic critics of the President; the efforts to weaken the radio and television networks' news and analysis services; the decision of the courts to impede news reporters' access to sources by punishing them when they protect the secrecy of certain sources.

It is readily agreed that the rights of a free press, like nearly all other rights, are not absolute. Sometimes an individual's right to a fair trial, or the right of privacy, or the duty of citizenship in exposing criminals or protecting the national security, come ahead of freedom of information.

But just because the ocnflict of rights is ill-defined and variable from case to case, the press must struggle constantly to protect not its own rights but the rights of the people. The press may seem paranoid in the battle for freedom. So it must be.

IN THE WORDS of Judge Harold R. Medina, whose services on the federal bench are many and memorable:

"Some people may think that the leaders of the free press would perhaps accomplish more if their claims of constitutional right were less expansive. I do not agree with this. I say it is their duty to fight like tigers right down the line and not give in an inch. This is the way our freedoms have been preserved in the past and it is the way they will be preserved in the future."

The people's right to be informed depends on the press's vigilant and responsible performance of its task. The role of the press in relationship not only to government but to all other "establishment" elements is essentially an adversary role. It was not for nothing called the "fourth estate" by Edmund Burke and others. It must report, investigate, uncover, analyze, and praise or criticize just as the best discerned facts require.

THE PRESS IS OFTEN careless, sometimes wrong, generally subjective in its choice of what to print or air, frequently sensational for sensationalism's sake. It is an imperfect tool. But with all its flaws, it is an absolutely essential element in a free society.

It will survive. It will outlast those who may from time to time seek to tame it.

The public everlastingly criticizes the news media. For several decades there has been a great lessening of diversity, with no single channel of news or opinion necessarily matching the prejudices and biases of plenty of people. The opinions of columnists or commentators will not fit more than a fraction of an inevitably and desirably divided public.

News media are increasingly involved in a crisis of confidence with their publics. This is a far greater problem for them than any hostile efforts of government. It can be mastered as their performance is fair, courageous, skillful. The attacks upon them at various levels of government are less vital than the deliberate blocking of news sources. To keep open the channels of information is in these days a high duty of citizenship.

It Was Wonderful In L.A. Until Washington Redskins Lost

LOS ANGELES — The Super Bowl is over, but for those 12,000 of us from Washington, D.C., who traveled 3,000 miles to see it, the bitter memories still linger on.

First you have to understand what it's like to be here for Super Bowl week end in Los Angeles

Until then. people in California thought those of us who lived in Washington were small-town yokels who did nothing but raise taxes, waste billions of dollars and order bombing raids on Vietnam.

But when the Redskins won an opportunity to play in the Super Bowl, the image changed Those of us who arrived on Thursday and Friday found ourselves feted as social lions. As fans of one of the teams to play in the greatest of all games. our phones never stopped ringing.

"MR. SINATRA would like you for dinner "

"Dinah Shore wants you for tennis "

"Warren Beatty wishes to give a small party for you and your friends."

The Super Bowl does things to people. and Californians could not do enought for their Washington brothers.

It wasn't just the big people but also the little ones who treated the Washington fan with respect and awe. Taxi drivers forgot to turn on their meters, bellhops refused to take tips. In restaurants, if you identified yourself as a Redskin fan, they threw out a party of four in the middle of their meal and gave you their table.

IT WAS HEADY stuff. But after all, we were of the same tribe as Billy Kilmer, Larry Brown and Chris Hanburger. We lived in the same town as George Allen and Roy Jefferson and Mike Bass. To Californians, we were the chosen people.

I remember the Saturday before the game saying to my wife, "Maybe we should move out here "

She agreed. "Californians are fine Americans. Where should we go to dinner tonight — the Charlton Hestons' or the Burt Lancasters'?"

"Let's go to both," I said, "so we won't hurt anyone's feelings "

THAT'S HOW IT WAS until game time. If you were from Washington, your cup kept running over.

But then on Sunday at exactly 3:39 p.m.. Pacific time, our world fell apart. Our team had been defeated 14 to 7.

That night when we got back to the Beverly Wilshire Hotel, the atmosphere had changed. I first realized it was when I asked the hotel operator if there were any messages for me and all she did was laugh.

I tried to call Frank, but he had gone to Palm Springs. Warren Beatty's answering service told us he was not only refusing calls, he wasn't even taking messages. Dinah's maid said Miss Shore could be reached by writing her at NBC. The word was out in Los Angeles that Washington people were losers.

THERE WAS NOTHING left to do but to return home. We paced and called a taxi and told him to take us to the L.A. airport. "Where are you flying to?" he asked us as he turned onto the freeway.

"Washington."

He stopped the cab and made us get out. "Sorry," he said, "I just remembered I was off-duty."

As we stood on the freeway, trying to hitch a ride to the airport, I kept yelling at the cars that passed us by, "For gosh sakes, we only lost by seven points."

'Moonchildren' To Be Presented At Eight Shows

The play "Moonchildren," a nominee for the 1973 Pulitzer Prize, will be performed by the Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts eight times, beginning Friday, at the center.

"Moonchildren," by Michael Weller. is about a troop of college boys and girls living together in lyrical sloppiness, awash with the myth of freedom," according to Priscilla Smith of the center. It is set in an American college town in the mid-1960s.

The play will be performed by American Conservatory Theater trainees, Mrs. Smith said. Sali Lieberman, founder of the Mill Valley center, is directing the West Coast premiere of the production, which has been a critical success in Washington, D.C., and on Broadway, according to Mrs. Smith.

"Moonchildren" will be presented Friday and Saturday, Jan. 26 and 27 and Feb. 9, 10, 16 and 17 at 8:30 p.m.

Test Begins On Plan To Tap Earth's Heat

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A geologist said Wednesday a one-year pilot program has begun on his scheme for untapping from the earth's core an unlimited source of cheap power to alleviate the world's energy crisis.

Allen T. Van Huisen, research director of Geo-Energy Systems, said he has invented a system for extracting heat energy from geothermal sources beneath the earth's surface.

Van Huisen said the energy source would be non-polluting and be produced at a fraction of the cost of existing nuclear, fossil and geothermal sources.

"Everywhere man stands upon the earth, there is geothermal heat beneath his feet," he said. "Geothermal magma hot rock exists underground everywhere in the world. Geothermal pools exist near the surface. My invention can be adapted to produce power from either source."

The Rogers Engineering Co., a geothermal engineering firm in San Francisco, has undertaken a projected one-year design and study of the geologist's plan.

The only operating geothermal power plants in the U.S. are located at Sonoma and operated by the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. San Diego Gas and Electric Co is formulating plans for geothermal power development in the Imperial Valley.

Van Huisen said his proposed system, called the Downhole Heat Exchanger, involves drilling a well to hot brine reservoirs and extracting heat by pumping clear water into the hole. The water is returned to the surface by more pumping as clean steam to power electric generating turbines. according to Van Huisen.

The geologist predicted his system could eventually provide electric power, thermal heating of homes and buildings, desalination of water, heat irrigation of crops, construction of frost-free airports and highways and development of ice-free harbor and channel systems to open ports and waterways to shipping in the Arctic.

Rosy Economic Picture Painted

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — More Americans will be working for more money in 1973, presidential economic consultant Dr. Walter Heller predicted Wednesday.

"We're in a very strong year for the economy," Heller said. "The prospects for you and me —and the country—are very good. In 1973, I think the surge will be the largest in the gross national product in history. Last year it went up between $102 to $103 billion. This year I would think it will rise to $114 billion."

He also forecast a drop in unemployment from 5.2 per cent to 4.75 per cent by the end of the year and a 14 per cent rise in estimated corporate profits.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Jazz pianist and composer Duke Ellington is expected to be released Friday from St. Vincent's hospital where was admitted last week with influenza symptoms. The 73-yearold entertainer was hospitalized Thursday suffering from a high fever.

Help Asked In Choosing Rec Member

The Strawberry Recreation District board, still deadlocked over the choice of a successor to director Carl L. Schaefer, has decided to seek community reaction to contenders for the seat.

At its meeting Monday, the board agreed to include in its January Newsletter biographies of Patricia M Jeremiah and Fred Holmes, applicants for the board post and to invite district residents to voice their opinion.

David E. Roberts, recreation manager, said residents are asked to write a note, stating their preference, to the recreation district office, 118 East Strawberry Drive, or stop by the office with their choices.

The four-man board has tried unsuccessfully to choose a new director at its last two meetings, but has been split 2-2 between Mrs. Jeremiah, the loser in a recent board election, and Holmes.

Directors Manuel K. Lehua and Jane Brown favor Holmes, while board members Thomas Miller and Arthur R. Senter want Mrs. Jeremiah appointed.

Payment Stopped On Lost Check For $1 Million

ATLANTA (UPI) — The City of Atlanta lost a check for $1,309,200 from the federal government, the Environmental Protection Agency said Monday.

But even if the check had been found there would have been no chance to cash it. The EPA immediately stopped payment.

The incident happened more than a year ago, according to EPA regional administrator Jack E. Ravan who wrote Mayor Sam Massell that the check was mailed to the city by certified letter on Jan. 10, 1972, and was signed for by a secretary at Atlanta's city hall.

Newsmen Gain A Good Friend

NEW YORK (UPI) — Gov. Nelson Rockefeller called Wednesday night for a federal shield law to protect the confidentiality of reporters' news sources.

Rockefeller, who in 1970 supported and signed into law New York's freedom of information law, said "our state shield law protects reporters. And I think every state in the union ought to have a similar shield law. And if every state in the union ought to have one. then why not the U.S. itself?"

Rockefeller made the statement while accepting an honorary membership in the New York Press Club.

Newsword Adventures

The word "President" goes back to the classical Latin "praeses," a title given to governors of Roman provinces. In medieval Europe "president" continued to be used at times for royal administrators. Several colonies in North America gave the title to the presiding officers of their councils. During the Revolution, the person presiding over the Continental Congress was called the president. Since the adoption of the title for the head of the U.S. government, it has become the accepted term for the elected head of a modern republic.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON GREB

Name day is what some people celebrate instead of birthdays. How many of the people born today do you recognize? Each picked a new name later in life.

1. C. M. Clay, Jr. might bop you in the nose if you called him by his middle name, which is Marcellus. Maybe that's what made him so mad he became a heavyweight champion. He is 31 today. An Olympic champion, he won the crown at age 22, knocking out the tough but aging Sonny Liston in the 7th round. His name today?

2. Archie Leach, 69 today, is a long-time Hollywood film favorite. Born in Bristol, England, he ran off to join a troupe of acrobats and traveled with them to America in 1920. Switching to musicals, he was discovered by Arthur Hammerstein, who launched him on a career which led to his starring in such movies as "The Awful Truth," "I Was a Male War Bride," and "Operation Petticoat." He was given a special Oscar in 1970. His name today?

3. David D. Kominski is that "Kid from Brooklyn" who followed "The Secret Life of Walter Mitty," then Hollywood got "Up in Arms" over the way he impersonated "The Inspector General" and turned this "Court Jester" into Hans Christian Anderson. He is now an official ambassador for the United Nations Children's Fund. Today he is 60 and goes by the name of?

4. O. Norvell Hardy was born Jan. 18, 1892 in Harlem, Geo. into a family which had no theatrical traditions. His widowed mother ran a hotel. After going to military school and a music conservatory, he studied at the University of Georgia, then opened a movie theater. This got him into show business, a break that brought him fame and fortune as one of the funniest film comedians of our time. He was teamed with a skinny guy called Stanley.

ANSWERS

1. Muhammad Ali; 2. Cary Grant; 3. Danny Kaye; 4. Oliver Hardy.

East's Bidding Gives South A Tip On A Singleton Heart

The opponents bid for reasons of their own, not to give you information. However, in today's hand the bidding warned declarer that East might have a singleton heart. The threat was clear, and South found a way to meet it.

Opening lead – ♡ Q

FIRST STEP

South's first step was to win the opening lead with dummy's ace. It would be fatal to let the first trick ride around to declarer's own king.

South's next move was to take the ace of spades and continue with the queen of spades to draw trumps as quickly as possible. Here again South avoided a pitfall since a trump finesse would have been fatal.

West won the second round of trumps with the king and returned the jack of hearts. East could use his last trump to ruff this trick, but this permitted South to play his low heart. He still had the king of hearts for later use.

The defenders could take the ace of clubs sooner or later, but this was only their third trick. The contract was safe.

TRAPS AVOIDED

Now let's examine the traps that South avoided. If South wins the first heart trick in his own hand, East will be in position to ruff dummy's ace of hearts when that suit is next led. West regains the lead with the ace of clubs in time to cash another heart trick. The defenders thus get two hearts and two trump tricks.

Even if South avoids this trap, he will still lose the hand if he takes a finesse on the first round of trumps. West wins and leads a heart for East to ruff. West gets back with a club and leads another heart, giving his partner a second ruffing trick.

You are next, holding:
♠ - 5 4 2
♥ - 5
♦ - Q J 8 6
♣ - 9 8 5 3 2.

What to you say?

ANSWER: Bid two diamonds. You have three points in high cards and three points for the singleton, enough for a raise of partner's suit.

Conviction On Deceiving Army

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (UPI) — Earl F. Cole, demoted from brigadier general and retired by the Army with the rank of colonel following Senate investigations of military post exchange contract scandals in Vietnam, was convicted Tuesday of deceiving the Army.

Cole, 53, and his former secretary, Catherine Jean Baker, 49, were found guilty in U.S. District Court of seven counts of deception and face maximum prison terms of 35 years and fines of $70,000.

Judge Oren R. Lewis released Cole and Mrs. Baker on bond pending a probation officer's report. Lewis will set sentence Feb. 9.

FISHING IS EVERYWHERE IN MARINSHIP

The Sausalito Boat and Tackle Shop at Gate Six near Marinship might just as well have been in the middle of San Francisco Bay this morning as flood waters lapped at its sides. Customers who had parked their cars nearby stayed inside, perhaps wondering whether to try their luck at fishing while they waited. (See story page 1 and more pictures on pages 1, 6 and 7.)

Watergate Trial Is Stalled By An Appeal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Watergate bugging trial was stalled today while a federal appeals court decided if the prosecution's star witness may testify about conversations he monitored last year from the tapped telephones of high level Democrats.

The witness, former FBI agent Alfred C. Baldwin III, had testified Wednesday how he was hired by the security chief for President Nixon's reelection campaign for $225 a week to eavesdrop on both personal and political conversations from a listening post —a hotel room across the street from the Watergate complex offices of the Democratic National Committee.

But when victims of the eavesdropping objected to his disclosing what he overheard — some of it reportedly of a highly intimate and possibly irrelevant nature —the trial was recessed while Chief U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica listened to their arguments in secret.

When Sirica overruled the objections and ordered that Baldwin's testimony could be admitted, the decision was appealed to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. The appeals court had provided for such a procedure in an order last Friday.

Baldwin, of Hamden, Conn., who has been promised immunity from prosecution in exchange for his crucial testimony, was due to retake the stand when the trial resumed.

How soon that might be was unclear, as it was not known how quickly the appeals court would act. Also, lawyers for one of the remaining two Watergate defendants, former White House aide G. Gordon Liddy, insisted on listening to a five-hour taped interview Baldwin gave the Los Angeles Times last fall describing his clandestine work.

"I'm sure the court of appeals will consider this case with expedition and we hope they do," said Charles W. Morgan, the American Civil Liberties Union attorney who is representing the eavesdrop victims. "We have no desire to delay the Watergate case and have not done so to this date."

Agnew, Kennedy Race Predicted

WESTERVILLE, Ohio (UPI) — William A. Rusher, publisher of the National Review, says it looks like the 1976 presidential race will be between Spiro Agnew and Sen. Edward Kennedy.

"In Ted Kennedy, the Democrats have a really good prospect if they don't blow it," Rusher told an Otterbein College audience Wednesday.

The publisher also predicted "the American people will be taxed until their noses bleed" during President Nixon's second term.

The chairman will be picked Jan. 27 at a party convention in Sacramento. The job is alternated between Northern and Southern California.

GLORIA STEINEM shared laughs at a quip during her talk to a packed College of Marin gymnasium last night in Kentfield. All of the out groups — women and the racially oppressed — have to work together for equality, "not fight over 5 per cent of the pie when the 95 per cent belongs to you know who," she said.

A PACKED COLLEGE GYM

Gloria Steinem Speaks In Marin

By JOAN LISETOR

While a large crowd outside was chanting, "We want in. We want in," Gloria Steinem was telling the more than 2,000 men and women inside the College of Marin gymnasium last night that what Marin County means to her is Angela Davis.

"That long, incredible, oppressive, unnecessary trial made Marin County a symbol of freedom," said Miss Steinem, 38-year-old editor of the highly successful Ms. Magazine and a spokesperson for the women's liberation movement.

Accompanying Miss Steinem was Margaret Sloan, 25, a writer for Ms. Magazine, who is active in both the women's and the black movements.

"If we come today, and there's no trouble tomorrow, we might as well not have come," Miss Steinem said. "We are still confronted with people who think the movement is just about child care, equal pay for equal work, the Equal Rights Amendment and abortion."

WHILE SHE was attempting to tell an anthropological story of how the discovery of paternity brought about a patriarchal society, the public address system repeatedly went off. Undaunted, when the microphone went out for the fifth time, she turned to Miss Sloan, saying, "Don't worry. There is a God, and she will help us out."

In a patriarchal society, women do the work men don't want to do, be it typing or ditch digging, she said.

"Gradually women become second class citizens," she said. "Then other groups are captured and brought in and because of a racial difference given the kind of work to do that is not rewarded in that society."

Both groups, black men and white women, are cheap labor with no authority over white men. Other parallels are myths about irresponsibility, always being late, not being able to work together, having a more sexual nature, being closer to the earth, having natural rhythm and having peculiar odors, she said.

The trouble starts when the member of an oppressed group gets a little up in the world, she said, and wants to an "only," — the only Jew in a club, black family on a block or woman in a club, said the editor.

"I do not want to equate the suffering of women with the suffering of blacks," Miss Steinem said, "but we also lose lives, through illegal abortions and lack of health care facilities, but let us not compare wounds but instead see ourselves as a coalition of out groups seeking to overthrow a patriarchal society."

THE SOCIETY Miss Steinem said she seeks is one in which no one is born into an inferior position because of sex or race.

Women are made to feel like half people, she said, because women are taught they are nothing without a man, and their identity comes from a man.

She told a classic story of a woman who broke a date with another woman to go out with a man, "and it didn't matter that the man was 4 foot 2 and had terminal acne," she said, "and with no redeeming qualities, except that he was a man.

"If only men understood how little it matters which man is standing there."

Love is not possible where there is not equality, she said, and marriage laws work against love.

"The (women's) movement may make love possible for the first time. There is a notion that the movement is Puritanical and against sex. The point is not whether it is for or against sex but that it is chosen, not imposed on one or the other. Most men are so accustomed to submission that they don't know about cooperation."

The movement is no longer allowing others to define its goals, she said, and is united on all problems concerning women.

"TO BE A feminist you are saying that all women are full human beings. Defining feminism leaves no room for racism. It comes in pairs. Where there is one there is the other."

The audience cheered as Miss Steinem introduced Miss Sloan, who said, "It's been a long time since I've seen this many white people in one room. If I say something good don't stand up and cheer or I'll think you are coming after me."

As a black woman involved in the women's movement she has no problem with priorities because if racism is there, so is sexism, she said. The white male journalists' view of the feminist movement is that there are few black women involved, she said, but in her travels she meets many black women interested in the issues.

Involved in the civil rights movement since she was 14, something about the movement bothered her for years, she said, until she realized men did all of the planning and a woman's importance depended on what man she attached herself to.

"Black women have trouble with their self images. Who do they look up to? Imagine having to look off a pancake box for one," she said.

If the best known demand of the movement, equal pay for equal work, were realized there would be an economic revolution in this country, she said.

"NINETY-EIGHT per cent of jobs that pay over $15,000 a year are held by white men," she said.

Active in the National Committee for Household Employment, Miss Sloan urges domestic workers not to work for less than the minimum wage and those who employ household help not to pay less than minimum wages.

"Any man who knows what it means to be a man in this country today should embrace the women's movement with open arms. What we are trying to say, and what people don't hear, is that the women's movement is not about exchanging roles but about humanizing both," she concluded.

Feminist Leader Holds Rap Sessions

By BARBARA HOSMER

If Gloria Steinem played to a packed house at the College of Marin last night, she also starred in the crowded living rooms of two Marin homes.

Marin's active feminists managed to get close-up samplings of the smooth, open Miss Steinem style as she exchanged views on how women are getting it together to create the changes that feminists envision in American society.

The faces of students, the mid-30 and the mature women who make up the Marin women's movement were intent as they brought up problems and ideas for reaction by the writer and editor of the movement's favorite magazine, Ms.

Over a tamale pie dinner in a San Anselmo home, Miss Steinem and Margaret Sloan of the magazine talked about the ill-fated "reproduction plank" at the Democratic Party convention, the nature of mainly white suburban Marin, and direction of the movement.

THEN MISS STEINEM and Sloan moved to a back bedroom to get in a few minutes rap directly with five student members of Women on the Move from Redwood High School, under TV lights as KQED cameras filmed a day in the life of Gloria Steinem.

The girls worried about how "you reach high school women who think the movement is just equal pay for equal work" and for those less attractive women. "Should you be brutal?" asked one.

"Bring somebody in who has been there and now is divorced and on welfare," one in three is going to be divorced, but that statistic alone won't convince them, suggested Miss Steinem. "Even if what you are doing now doesn't bear fruit at the moment, it will later when you hit the discriminations on the job — then there will be support for you through the movement," she told them.

"Just the fact you (Women on the Move) exist is great — you can see the problems and know you're not crazy."

For the problems with boys and men she suggested that the women "get some men to discuss how the male role affects them. You are ones who are going to make the changes but they will face the male role . . . which denies a whole set of emotions. They won't want to fit as a peg in the whole structure. But if they believe that half the world is subordinate, that's their problem.

"Draft resisters refused to play the male role and kill people, and it upset their fathers, who would like to buy their manhood with their sons' lives."

Then she probed as to how many black students attend Redwood and why some had left.

"Did you women students support the black students?" she asked. "Otherwise it's bad for us both," she said, playing a favorite Steinem theme that women and other out groups such as the racially oppressed must work together and not fight over "five per cent of the pie."

LATER, AFTER the talk to a jammed house at the College of Marin gym, Miss Steinem slogged through the muddy night to a hillside house in Larkspur where some 60 women and a handful of men rapped about how and where the movement was happening, with Marin Women's Health Collective hosting. Changed from clear to her famous tinted glasses, Miss Steinem outlined the need for household workers to organize and how it was being done, asked a teen-ager whose family didn't understand her involvement with the women's movement: "Do you think your mother might be afraid for you?", and repeated an earlier statement, "I'm not sure if we can work through the Democratic Party again."

She explained why she called history's earliest time a "genocracy" rather than matriarchy — "a matriarchy implies a power structure and I just meant an emphasis on female things."

She also discussed how a woman's center might work in Marin, citing Seattle as the place where one was most together, including a mix of students, radical feminists, League of Women Voters and AAUW women and the single woman judge in the area.

THE RAP was characterized by her careful listening to a myriad of questions and conversation and giving thoughtfully made suggestions to each, ending after midnight with an "Ooh, I'm getting punchy."

"She's been up since five, has a bad back and is getting old," quipped Miss Sloan as their exit line, and TV lights flashed on to film the get-away into the stormy Marin night.

Today she headed on for a day in Los Angeles, then home to New York.

"We come and try to stir up things, and then go, so we can do all we can to help you get it going," she had told the women earlier. "Then you have to live it."

The text, Earth Science, is aimed at students in grades seven through 12. The material is designed to help students make intelligent decisions concerning environmental problems.

Like its companion textbooks in the series, Earth Science does not require elaborate, expensive laboratory equipment.

The entire lab program is built around simple materials which already exist in the classroom or which can be brought from home. The Earth Science sequence covers basic geography, geology, meteorology, astronomy and ecology.

GENERATION RAP

How Do You Address Your Cards To Unmarried Live-Togethers

RAP:

We sent out Christmas cards as a married couple for the first time last year, and we came up against a problem: About a third of the old college gang have roommates, but not marriages. We don't like to address cards to just one when we know them both, but it could be embarrassing if we write Nancy Green and Dave Black, Apt. 12, Open Arms, (address and city), especially if the landlord didn't know they weren't married.

An etiquette expert suggested we address the cards to the person (or persons) whose name (or names) appear on the mail box: or to the one who rents the apartment — just to be on the safe side, if we don't know they've openly announced their trial marriage — but most of these friends live in different cities and we don't know all the details.

So what's the best way to solve this modern problem? — MR. AND MRS. (WITH FRIENDS WHO AREN'T) MR. AND MRS. WFWA:

How about addressing the envelope, "Dave and Nancy, care of Dave Black . . . etc." Or put just one name outside and add a "To Nancy and Dave" note on the card. — SUE

MR. AND MRS. ETC.:

. . . And before next Christmas rolls around, how about asking Dave and Nancy how they want their envelopes addressed? That is, if they aren't married by then. — HELEN

DEAR MADAM HELEN:

You say the present national anthem doesn't relate very well to today's America. Does it occur to you that you and your hippie ideas could be out of date, or more accurately out of place? What has America done today in comparison to the America of Francis Scott Key, to make the star spangled banner yet wave? It is evident that your sympathies are with the flag burners.

I'll wager you received a number of letters from older, patriotic people who were shocked at your attitude that tradition should be "updated." — MR. A.C.G.

DEAR MR. G:

Some several!

But I also received this letter from another member of the older generation who is, I'm sure, just as patriotic as you are:

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

Probably neither of you remember that up to World War I, our assumed National Anthem was "My Country 'Tis of Thee." It had real meaning, and a tune people could carry, but a prominent patriotic society took exception to it because the Germans used the tune for a national song, "Heil dir im Siegerkranz." (It is also the music for the English people's "God Save the King.")

The present song was pushed through Congress (1931), but the music to Key's poem is from an old English drinking song. (Perhaps this is the reason it doesn't fit the words very well.)

Truly, I am a loyal and patriotic citizen and a former member of the organization I mentioned. Many people agree with me that the "Star Spangled Banner" is not an anthem but a war song, written during the War of 1812. The last stanza has some value but no one has learned that. Also, only high sopranos can show off their range by soaring up to the high notes. The rest of us flounder.

Thanks, Helen, for daring to suggest a change. I wish someone would start a crusade. "America the Beautiful" is a real anthem with wonderful meaning. I'd even go back to "My Country 'Tis of Thee."

Hope my generation isn't horrified at me.

May I add that I always enjoy your column. It is sane and intelligent — MRS. L.P.R.

DEAR MRS. R.:

And we enjoyed your sane, intelligent letter. Thanks for writing. — HELEN AND SUE

PARENT AND CHILD

The Critical Time For Spring Grads

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

It's not too soon for college seniors to begin job hunting. Especially students in liberal arts colleges. And this isn't something students should do alone without benefit of parental advice.

While parents should not be making decisions for their adult-age children, they shouldn't be ignoring their need for counsel either. Many students who are about to complete their college years have no solid idea of what profession they wish to be in.

And incredible as it may sound, liberal arts colleges generally provide very poor vocational counseling. At most, the job counselor is often someone who has never held a nonacademic job. Thus all of his information is theoretical. In addition to not really knowing or understanding the job market, he is often unacquainted with many of the students.

This is no time for the family to hold back. On the contrary, mom and dad ought to provide countless opportunities for their college youngsters to get to know and talk with a variety of working adults.

IT'S ALSO a time for parents to listen carefully to their children. Suppose your college senior tells you what he wants to do is work in a gasoline station. That's not a tragedy; not a copout; not a disaster. Help him analyze his reasons, explore possibilities, and see that he works toward an understanding of management.

Suppose your college daughter turns her back just weeks before graduation on the profession for which she has been preparing, announcing that she is to be married and begin a family of her own. This too, is not a tragedy, a copout, a disaster. Help her analyze her reasons for marriage at this time. Explore with her how she can use her training to enrich her home.

Parents must exercise extreme care that they don't give their young adults a sense of discouragement about employment opportunities. There is talk, in the United States especially, of unemployment. Yet newspapers carry many advertisements for trained personnel in almost every field. There are plenty of job opportunities. And there are employers who are looking for alert, hard-working and competent college graduates.

For their part, students should not procrastinate through the winter and spring and greet the summer with "What will I do? I haven't got a job."

Start now, if you haven't already done so, to list those jobs you might be interested in pursuing. After listing them in order of preference, then list what qualifications you think you could bring to such a job. Next list firms and specific employers for whom you might be interested in working. Now, match your job interests with employers and locations that meet your needs.

Learn everything you can about the firms or businesses you put on your list. Get your parents to help you through their friends and business acquaintances. Ask the librarian to help you find material in magazines and books about these firms. Write to them asking for their annual reports and personnel policies.

THEN, AFTER you have studied several potential employers and you have reduced the list to manageable terms, write and ask for an opportunity to interview someone in the firm. Be sure to talk with someone besides a personnel employee. If, for example, you're interested in a job using your interest in chemical engineering, don't just talk with someone in the personnel department. Ask to talk with a chemical engineer, perhaps an employee who completed college recently and has been with the firm for just a year or so.

The young engineer can tell you what he's found more useful —as well as what he's found least useful — that he studied in college. If you interview soon enough, you may have time to enroll in a course or two that will help round out your education.

And those who think they already know what profession to pursue should take every opportunity to learn as much about on-the-job working conditions as possible. It's a little ridiculous, for example, to get a job leading toward teaching school before finding out whether or not you enjoy children as a steady diet.

PRACTICAL AND SOPHISTICATED

Italians Show New Styles

Combined AP and UPI

ROME — Practical and sophisticated clothes are what Italian designers have in mind for the spring and summer of 1973. Some succeeded in bringing off both during this week's showings.

This year also is witnessing the return of dresses, a little on the quiet side for morning wear, bouncy and airy for the afternoon and cocktails.

In many cases, designers presented a pleated skirt and belted overblouse to form a dress effect.

Concerned with being practical were the American designers of La Mendola, whose silk jersey and georgette dreses, sometimes with a pleated skirt and stiff Renaissance collar, are crease resistant. Their long evening gowns with draped scarves or maribou boleros carry all the glamour of exotic lands.

Italian Italian couturier Capucci, as much an artist in handling colors as in cutting fabrics, showed fancy beehive dresses in a crisscross of tiny or medium-sized pleats. He used the same technique for short jackets and open coats worn over a shirtwaist dress in different pink panels.

MORNING DRESSES, very simple with a turtle neck and no sleeves, contrasted with the vaporous line the designer gave his evening dresses.

Pino Lancetti also went in for the silk skirts and shirts or overblouses that look like dresses.

He often hip-pleated skirts except in suits, which mostly were wraparound. Seven-eighth coats in sand, yellow, lilac, pale blue and green let the printed silk of his shirtwaist dresses appear.

To keep the sun out of your eyes, Lancetti designed broad-brimmed hats as worn by Marlene Dietrich, overshadowing the face.

Fro afternoon wear, brims widened and dresses got sexier, with frills and ruffles along the shawl neckline and around the sleeves. Lancetti also offered tiered dresses and drawstring scooped necks for pale blue georgette or lilac evening dresses, embroidered with silk around the sleeves and bodice front.

Lancetti also had a surprise: prints on crepe dresses, featuring statues or women's faces in wide, horizontal bands.

HEINZ RIVA showed ponchos for evening gowns in a collection which also brought back the street length cocktail dress.

The Swiss-born designer used vivid shades of cyclamen pink, sun yellow and Chinese red as well as crisp blue and white prints for both day and evening.

Many of his dresses were banded at the hem with stripes of fuchsia, yellow, red, pink and purple. He used the same colors for an Aztec design of stripes and triangles.

His ponchos had openings for the wrist and then were sewn in a semicircle to just below the top of the thigh for a batwing effect when the models opened their arms.

They were printed with circular designs like stylized bulls eyes, back and front. One full leg was left uncovered in a brown and white check version.

All of his dresses and coats were slim and the cocktail dresses, of crepe de chine and voile-chiffon, were artfully draped.

ANDRE LAUG showed neatly constructed dresses and skirts with belted overblouses that had the look of shirtdresses softened and more detailed. Many had accordion or knife pleats and some showed about 3 inches of underskirts in a larger version of the same print or different size pleat.

His coats were narrow with welting down the back and patch pockets. Several raincoats tied at the waist and had large hoods.

His models wore several long strings of beads to replace the chains that have been the rage for the last few years. The beads, often amber and ivory, sat on the soft, floppy bow at the neck of most blouses and dresses.

Heels were at least 3 inches high and the models carried large flat rectangular purses with straps long enough to go over the shoulder.

The Psychic Is Explored

NEW YORK (UPI) — Russian scientists are intensifying their studies of psychic phenomena, according to Alexander Everett, president of Mind Dynamics, an educational institution which teaches self-improvement through the controlled use of alpha waves.

Everett made that point when speaking in New York on Soviet efforts to utilize psychic energies. He was one of a small group of American scientists and educators invited to Moscow last summer for a closed international conference at the Russian Institute of Parapsychology.

Russian scientists reported on investigations of the psychic, its meaning and possible usefulness.

Check Bra Band

Check the underbust band of any bra you're trying on. It should fit snugly, not too tightly. If it rides up, it is too tight. If you can run your finger easily under the band, then the fit is correct. Check the back, too. If it rides up the fit around your body is too tight.

Ivory And Black Big For Spring

New for spring is combining ivory and black, which looks more elegant and subtle than black and white.

When two different prints are used, one for a skirt and for the shirt, topped off with a long sashed ivory jacket, the suit achieves a contemporary look.

Mariner 9 Destroys Mars Myth

WASHINGTON (UPI) — America's unmanned Mariner 9 spaceship has destroyed the myth that Mars is a long dead planet, scientists believe.

Instead, Mars was wracked by volcanoes for 3 billion years and washed in the distant past by rivers of water flowing over its surface.

This picture was given Wednesday by scientists who analyzed data from Mariner 9, which was launched from Cape Kennedy May 30, 1971, and began orbiting the "Red Planet" 167 days later. The spaceship was shut down Oct. 27 after orbiting Mars 698 times.

Harold Masursky of the U.S. Geological Survey said the analysis of data indicated the probe had "destroyed the myth" that Mars was old and dead.

"We think it has been alive all the time," Masursky said. "We see volcanic centers which are heavily cratered and which have to be very old."

But scientists who briefed reporters said there was nothing to indicate the presence of life on Mars today. They said the conclusion that water once flowed on Mars increases the probability that life existed there at some time. They said there might still be volcanic activity beneath the Martian surface.

Determining whether there actually is life on Mars must wait until spacecraft land there. U.S. officials expect to announce within five or six weeks where Viking 75—a double launch planned for 1975 which will land two U.S. unmanned craft on Mars the following year—will be sent.

"Whatever probability we placed on finding life on Mars five years ago, it must be higher now because of the evidence there was water," said Dr. Bradford Smith of New Mexico State University.

But Dr. Arthur L. Lane of the space agency's Jet Propulsion Laboratory (JPL) at Pasadena, Calif., said a major unresolved question is the lack of nitrogen in the Martian atmosphere. Nitrogen is an essential element in forming the amino acid molecules related to terrestial life.

Many of the observations made by Mariner 9, which mapped all of Mars, are being used in selecting the Viking landing site.

MUSIC REVIEW

Marin Youth Orchestra Performance A Winner

By SYLVIA L. RUBY

Hugo Rinaldi's Marin Youth Orchestra scored a winning performance at the Veterans Memorial Building last night. With a program that moved from the very contemporary to the refined classic and onto the richly romantic, conductor and performers demonstrated their versatility in fine form.

The audience of 300 was made up mostly of that select group of knowledgable appreciators of music known as parents, siblings, relatives and friends of the orchestra members — a good turnout, but this organization is worthy of a full house.

Rinaldi is a joy to watch. His conducting style encompasses large, expressive motions as well as the tightly controlled martial tilt to his head for a march-like rhythm. All is tastefully delivered with the grace and elegance that must make playing under his baton a marvelous learning experience for these young musicians.

Opening the program was Krzysztof Penderecki's Threnody for the Victims of Hiroshima (for 57 strings), of 1961. Rinaldi introduced the piece and showed by use of charts the specific markings in the score for the special effects demanded. These include signs for the performer to play the highest sound on his instrument, to rap, rasp, snap the strings and play below the bridge.

Designed to give an impressionistic lament on the devastation of Hiroshima, one can hear the distant sound of sirens merging into the wailing sounds of nearby human voices.

Great waves of sound shift from violins to cellos and basses and back again, the instruments then joining forces to work up a great dynamic intensity only to die away to a whisper. Performers responded to Rinaldi's direction — sections were equally matched in ability and magnitude of sound.

Sharply contrasting the Threnody was Aaron Copland's Billy the Kid "Ballet Suite." This symphonic suite of seven pieces depicts the story of William Bonney, badman of the old West. Included in the work are cowboy melodies, square-dance rhythms, a Mexican dance, a card game and a shoot-out.

The orchestra had a fine time with this one, and there were many opportunities for solo instrumentalists to perform. The entire French horn section is outstanding, as were in fact all other brass and woodwind players. Particularly expressive were Bob Elkjer, trumpet, and Steve Gordon, clarinet.

Mozart's first Horn Concerto (K. 412), with Brian McCarty as soloist, began the second half of the program. The second movement of the concerto is lost, and it is probable that the two movements which are always presented together are not really the first and last movements of the same work.

Both include much of the clean, courtly Mozartian melodies, but too much sameness exists and the lack of a contrasting slow middle movement detracts from the work.

McCarty's intonation and tone were true and he had no trouble with the many technical difficulties of the concerto. The reduced orchestra played with the finesse required, again showing the fine hand of Hugo Rinaldi.

The Finale of the Symphony No. 1 in G Minor by Basile Kalinnikov provided a dramatic flourish that rounded out the concert. This work is in the fully orchestrated Russian style of Rimsky-Korsakov and is based on folk tunes and exhibits much nationalistic flavor throughout.

The work climaxes with two overlapping melodies of brass and woodwind choirs against the full strings. Solo performers were outstanding and sections were in beautiful balance.

This outstanding program is to be repeated at the Children's Concert at the San Rafael High School Gym Jan. 20 at 10 a.m. It's highly recommended.

Mailliard's Office Is Picketed

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Eight Marin citizens yesterday picketed the office of Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District, in an appeal for him to vote for a pending congressional cutoff of funds for the war in Vietnam.

A member of the congressman's staff told the delegation from the Christmas Eve Peace Committee that Mailliard and 14 other Republican congressman have appealed to Nixon not to resume the bombing of North Vietnam.

The delegation picketed during the noon hour in front of the Federal Building, at 450 Golden Gate Avenue, then met briefly with Mailliard's staff, reported Meyer M. Baylin of Mill Valley.

Baylin said more pickets had been expected, but some apparently were delayed by flooding on Highway 101 at Corte Madera.

Outgoing HEW Secretary Proposes Major Overhaul

WASHINGTON (upi) — Charging that federal bureaucracy has failed, outgoing Secretary Elliot L. Richardson today proposed a major overhaul of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to put many programs in the hands of states through revenue sharing.

In his final report as HEW secretary, Richardson complained of "the bureaucratic labyrinth" of HEW programs that now number more than 300, including 54 that overlap each other and 36 that overlap programs of other departments.

"I am, as one must be, deeply troubled by the sense of failure, of frustration, of futility which pervades much of our human resource system, much of our society," Richardson said.

Richardson has won approval of the Senate Armed Services Committee to become defense secretary and, although a move is afoot to delay the nomination, quick confirmation by the Senate is expected.

In his report titled "The HEW Potential for the Seventies", Richardson for the first time proposed publicly a plan he has pushed privately at the White House. It includes three special revenue sharing packages:

Health revenue sharing that would combine present funds for comprehensive public health services, venereal disease control, work on lead poisoning, rat control, other communicable disease programs and medical-social services.

Social services revenue sharing which would group HEW's services for children and families, the disabled the the aged.

—Educational revenue sharing, proposed to the last Congress but not enacted. This would combine 33 sources of funds into a five-part package directing the money to education of the disadvantaged and the handicapped, vocational educaton, aid for schools with heavy concentrations of children from federally-employed families and special support services.

Wornum To Head Coastal Group

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

It was politics as usual last night at the first meeting of a commission created by the voters in November to protect the coasts of Marin, Sonoma and San Francisco.

Weeks of intensive lobbying for the two top slots on the panel paid off for Marin Supervisor Michael Wornum, who was elected chairman, and San Francisco Supervisor Robert H. Mendelsohn, who was elected as the regional commission's representative on the statewide coastal commission.

Wornum, who has been less than coy about his interest in running for the state Assembly, was elected unanimously without opposition.

Mendelsohn, equally coy about his early campaign for state controller in 1974, defeated two candidates nominated by commissioners who reportedly resented Mendelsohn's strong lobbying for the seat that will give him needed statewide exposure.

He got eight votes, a bare majority of the 14 commissioners. The unsuccessful challengers were Kenneth M. Stocking of Santa Rosa, who got four votes, and Ellen Johnck of San Francisco, who got two.

Marin County Planning Commissioner Margaret Azevedo of Tiburon was elected vice chairman by a coin toss after she split the ballot with Fairfax City Councilman Frank J. Egger Jr.

Despite the stormy weather,. more than 70 persons attended the organizational session in the Marin Civic Center. No public notice was issued for the meeting, contrary to the state's antisecret meeting law.

Wornum volunteered the county's staff as a "very temporary" commission staff for the few weeks before it has its own, and the commission designated the Marin Civic Center as its temporary headquarters until it gets its own funds from the state.

One of the few lapses of prearranged unanimity came when commissioner Melville Owen of Kentfield suggested Mendelsohn be instructed to support Melvin Lane of Menlo Park as chairman of the state commission. Lane was chairman of the Bay Conservation and Development Commission for more than seven years, and resigned to take the new position.

Commissioners split inconclusively on how to instruct Mendelsohn, leaving him free to vote as he wants when the state commission meets for the first time next Wednesday in San Francisco. Mendelsohn served on the BCDC under Lane for several years, as did Owen.

The local group, designated the North Central Coast Regional Commission, also voted to create committees to recommend regulations and procedures for its operation and screen applicants for staff. The attorney general's office will complete its proposals for regulations and procedures by the end of next week.

At Wornum's urging, the membership of each committee was limited to less than a quorum of the full commission to avoid conducting their meetings in public. (A San Francisco superior court judge has ruled that the state's antisecret meeting law applies to committees consisting of less than a quorum of the full body, but his ruling has been appealed to the District Court of Appeal.)

The interim committees were asked to report bck to the full commission at its next meeting at 7:30 p.m. on Jan. 29, again in the supervisors' chambers of the civic center.

The commission also asked the three counties under its jurisdiction to notify it of all pending construction permits. The commission can bar any construction along the coast during the three years it has to draft a plan.

Sane Patients Undetected In Mental Hospital Test

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — Eight researchers who feigned insanity to get into mental hospitals said Wednesday that the staffs never recognized them as sane despite their normal behavior once they were admitted.

The only people who caught on were the other patients in the 12 hospitals, reported David L. Rosenhan, a professor of law and psychology at Stanford University who directed the project.

He said the eight "pseudopatients," five men and three women, spent an average of 19 days in the hospitals and were labelled as schizophrenics "in remission" when they got out.

Rosenhan, who reported the project in Science magazine, said the experiment was carefully worked out and involved a dozen hospitals in five states—some old, some new, some associated with universities, some public, some private. Names of the hospitals were not disclosed.

The researchers gained admission by pretending schizophrenic symptoms. But once admitted, all did their best to appear sane.

Nevertheless, Rosenhan said, in no case did the staff of the hospital recognize any of the researchers as a sane person.

He said the project showed that once a person has been diagnosed as mentally ill, the label "has a life and influence of its own" and can never be shaken.

The hospital staffs were not guilty of "malice or stupidity," he said, but were generally dedicated and intelligent. However, they had become prisoners of an environment in which all patients were considered "crazies."

The researchers did notice frequent abuse of other patients by attendants and reported that they were given nearly 2,100 pills of various varieties while hospitalized. They threw most down the toilet—which is what the regular patients were doing with theirs.

When the "pseudopatients" first entered the hospitals, they took notes secretly. But they later began taking extensive notes all the time and openly.

"Under ordinary circumstances, such behavior would have raised questions in the minds of observers," said Rosenhan. But in the mental hospitals, the only ones who thought it unusual were the other patients.

Cards Will Flood Loveland Once Again

LOVELAND, Colo. (UPI) — Because of this city's romantic name, lovers across the country will send more than 100,000 valentines to the post office to be mailed out before Valentines Day, Feb. 14, with the city's postmark, officials estimated Wednesday.

"All valentines should reach Loveland no later than Feb. 8 to insure delivery in time," said Ted Thomason, who has headed the program of remailing love letters with the Loveland postmark since 1947.

Thompson, a former Chamber of Commerce president in the town of 10,000 persons, said he would write a special poem to be stamped on all envelopes mailed from Loveland before Valentine's Day. He is known in town as "Mr. Hearts and Flowers."

CATCH LIMIT EYED

Herring Spawning Habits And Population Studied

RAKING EGGS — Student Bob Daffin, a junior at the University of the Pacific, rakes seaweed from Tomales Bay as part of a method to determine the number of herring eggs deposited in the bay. Researchers hope to use the data for legislation limiting the annual herring catch — currently unrestricted.

By ERIK M. INGRAM

Ever wonder how many herring spawn in Tomales Bay?

Probably not. It's not the kind of question that pops up often. Not until now, that is, and it's being popped with some alarm.

The problem is that nobody knows too much about herring, which each January move from offshore into Tomales Bay — among other sheltered places — for their winter spawning run.

Waiting for them this year are commercial fishermen who already have hauled in 250 tons of herring and their valuable unspawned eggs (roe), considered a delicacy in Japan.

Exactly how many fish there are and how many will elude the large fishing nets, again nobody knows, but a small band of University of the Pacific undergraduates is making a determined effort to find out.

Their aim is to gather supporting data for legislation to limit the commercial herring catch — currently unrestricted — and help insure survival of the species.

(Emergency legislation limiting the herring catch was approved yesterday by the State Senate on a 30-1 vote. The bill was introduced Tuesday by Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael. It now goes to the Assembly.)

The students are being aided, in part, by the fishermen whose future in the Oriental caviar business may depend on limiting the size of the yearly catch.

Guided by Dr. W. Michael Kaill of the university's Pacific Marine Station at Dillon Beach, the young biology students are charting schools of fish to determine the overall size of the five runs this month and to estimate the number of translucent yellow eggs spawned.

"There really hasn't been much study done on herring," Jeff Vernon, a university senior from Fremont, said. Practically nothing is known of their ocean habits, he said.

Vernon, who spent the fall semester organizing the Tomales Bay research project, said he was confident a fairly accurate estimate of the number of fish (in tons) and eggs can be determined.

"We're afraid they might be overfished and feel there should be some license or permit procedure to allow a catch in proportion to the total number," Kaill added.

Their fears have been intensified over the last couple weeks with the arrival of more fishing boats, some from as far away as Monterey, lured by word of bonanza fishing at Tomales Bay, last "harvested" in 1956.

Since much of the fishing is for unspawned roe, the researchers want to study future effects of the catches, but to do so must have more information.

(The California Department of Fish and Game has studied the herring for the last few years at Tomales Bay but has been hampered by a lack of manpower and logistical problems to do the job completely.)

Armed with a small sonar gadget and an outboard boat, Kaill, Vernon and three fellow students have picked up the fish by the gills, so to speak.

Almost daily they patrol the picturesque bay, surveying its bottom, particularly the "deep holes" where large schools hang out.

By surveying the bay's bottom, the student researchers can get an idea of the number of fish on any given day.

They keep track of the tonnage caught by checking with the fishing fleet which unloads near Marshall at high tide.

Though spawning probably hasn't reached its peak (a spectacular sight which leaves large areas white with sperm and draws fish-hungry seals and swarms of birds), the group also is checking the number of eggs laid.

Using a rake-like tool, they drag a couple square feet of seaweed from a spawning area and count the number of herring eggs. Mathematically, the number of eggs within the spawning area can be figured from the sample, depending on the size of the area.

Since the average number of eggs carried by a female is easily determined (by dissecting unspawned females), the total number of spawning females can be estimated by dividing the average number of eggs per female into the total estimated for the spawning area.

The ratio of males to females is determined by taking samples from the fishing fleet's catch.

According to Kaill, the researchers work will go further. The students will study the age of herring, which have a life span of about nine years, their fertility and the mortality rate of their offspring.

Since the herring which return to Tomales Bay each year haven't been commercially fished for more than a decade (until this year), it appears an ideal spot for the study.

In Richardson Bay, meanwhile, federal researchers are still waiting for large numbers of herring to appear.

Max Eldridge, a fish biologist at the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration office in Tiburon, said fishermen have complained the number of herring is dwindling but no scientific support is available.

"Kaill and his group are moving in the right direction," Eldridge said, adding his own office is making limited studies in Richardson Bay. "Just by observation it appears they are decreasing in number," he said.

SONAR CHECK — Biologist W. Michael Kaill, left, and student Bob Scafani of the University of the Pacific check sonar readings in their search for large schools of spawning herring at Tomales Bay. The research project, aimed at determining the number of herring using Tomales Bay as a spawning ground, will continue through January.

Student Support Of Welding Instructor Goes For Naught

The Marin Community College District board last night upheld an administrative decision not to rehire a part-time welding instructor in the face of organized student support on his behalf. (Another college story, page 1.)

Welding students contend that Thadius Beattie, a part-time teacher for the past three years, developed the present welding program and should have an advantage over outside applicants for the job, which became a full-time position this year.

Beattie also received the support of directors of the Associated Students of the College of Marin, which sent a letter to the college board backing the welding students' position.

Final decision on the matter was announced following a closed session of the seven-member board. President Theodore C. Wellman assured students that a great deal of consideration was given the matter and that all questions were thoroughly discussed.

"With great thoroughness, the long-range aspect of the position must be given full consideration," Wellman said.

Trustees approved hiring of Joseph R. Miranda to the $13,000-a-year post. He will take over in the spring semester.

Board members also approved hiring of Timo Tauno Pajunen, who will begin a one-year temporary assignment in the art department as an instructor of photography.

A proposal not to require registration fees for law enforcement officers taking mandatory training in police science was unanimously turned down. The denial came as a result of new information regarding the proposal, according to Supt. John A. Grasham.

Although the Marin County Police-Community Relations Department pays the instructor's salary, the college does not receive state ADA funds for the class, in which students receive full college credit, nor does it receive compensation for record-keeping and other overhead costs.

The proposal also was opposed by the college cabinet, a body of students and staff members, on the grounds of its "precedent-setting possibilities."

"I feel people in all segments of the county take courses here and I believe we are justified in charging them a fee," Grasham said.

The Marin Community College District Board Also:

LEAVES — Approved sabbatical and administrative leaves for Dale A. Fleming, director of planning; Larry Baker, data processing; O.H. Bezirjian, chemistry; James C. Dunn, drama; David M Newby, communications, and Donald Palmer, philosophy. Sabbaticals for counselors William Peters and Arlene Stark were deferred until board members receive more information regarding their plans for study.

ADULT EDUCATION — Authorized Indian Valley Colleges in Novato to begin three new classes: introduction to sewing, theory and practice of French cooking and a course in investments. Approval also was granted for a new credit course in animal technology.

TV EQUIPMENT — Deferred action on a proposal to solicit bids for about $42,000 in television studio equipment until a more comprehensive plan for acquisition and use of the equipment is developed.

ENVIRONMENT — Accepted an environmental impact report regarding the Indian Valley Colleges with staff being directed to work toward solutions to long-term problems involving issues of concern to the community and district, primarily involving transportation.

NOISE — Unanimously opposed a proposed use permit by the Standard Oil Co. of California to construct an automatic car wash at 810 College Avenue in Kentfield, directly across from the office center site, on the grounds that noise generated would interfere with operation of the college.

FLOOD PROTECTION — Agreed to restate the district's concern regarding the flood control channel issue, and urged an early resolution through a renewal of communications with the Ross Town Council, the county board of supervisors and the flood control advisory board.

Tool Loan Bill Is Introduced

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Rep. William S. Maillard, R-Sixth District, has cosponsored a supplemental appropriation bill which would allot $1.8 million to the General Services Administration to continue a machine tool loan program to schools.

In Marin County, the College of Marin has applied for $50,000 for borrowing tools, while Redwood High already has about $43,000 worth and Tamalpais High has $28,000.

The tools are used in vocational training classes. The program halted when Congress refused last year to appropriate funds.

The funds are used for shipping and inspecting the Department of Defense-owned tools, and for administrative costs.

Impact Reports On Apartments Not Necessary

North Marin County Water District directors have voted that environmental impact reports won't be required on two apartment projects in Novato.

The projects were the Park Novato development, 92 units off Hill Road near Hill Junior High School, and the Cowbarn apartments, 90 units on the Cheda Ranch property along South Novato Boulevard.

Dist. Mgr. John O. Nelson said the impact of water service to the projects, approved by the city, wouldn't be significant.

The vote was 3-1, with directors George A. Amaroli dissenting and Patrick Hefferman abstaining.

The City of Novato didn't require environmental impact reports on the projects and the district failed in an effort to have the city reconsider its decision.

Prior to the board action Tuesday night, an effort by Amaroli and Hefferman to have the Cowbarn project referred back to the city failed by a 3-2 vote, according to Nelson.

Directors postponed granting of extension agreements for the projects until the board's next meeting, Feb. 6.

Directors agreed that an environmental impact report would be required, meanwhile, for the Tomales Bay Lodge project planned by Herbert Angrees near Marshall — a restaurant and 60 condominium units.

The North Marin County Water District Board also:

JOINT MEETINGS — Agreed to have joint meetings with the Novato City Council, the first tentatively scheduled at 7:30 a.m. Tuesday at Sambo's restaurant.

INVERNESS PARK — Agreed it wouldn't consider taking over the privately owned Paradise Ranch Estates water system in Inverness Park, since less than 25 per cent of property owners involved were seeking a chance.

EEL RIVER — Recommended to the Marin County Board of Supervisors that Nelson be appointed to the Eel River Council to succeed former Dist. Mgr. Eugene S. Churchill.

STAFFORD LAKE — Received a report from Nelson that Stafford Lake is full and that water started over the spillway last Friday.

REAGAN'S NEW BUDGET

Colleges Outstrip UC In State School Funds

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — For the first time, state colleges would receive more state funds than the University of California under the new budget proposed today by Gov Ronald Reagan (See budget story page 1)

The spending proposal alloted $442.1 million for state universities and colleges compared to $429.6 million for UC—respective increases of 16.9 per cent and 11.6 per cent over this year's budget

Most of the increases were slated to fatten the paychecks of professors and nonacademic employes

In his budget message, Reagan criticized the university for seeking an "unrealistic 25 per cent increase in state aid."

"We are convinced," Reagan declared, "that there are numerous areas where increased economy and efficiency would result in great savings to the taxpayer"

The governor held out a $1 million "carrot" to UC to encourage development of a system to promote excellence in undergraduate teaching."

If the university does not establish the program, it will not receive the funds

Also included in the UC budget was $1.5 million for an experimental program to open up the school to part-time students at reduced costs

Under the proposed salary hikes, UC faculty members would receive a 5.4 per cent increase and state college teachers would have a 7.5 per cent boost. Other employes in both systems would receive an average hike of 12 per cent.

Cost of the state college pay hikes was $34.2 million and for UC $30.7 million

State Finance Director Verne Orr said the 5.4 per cent increase was all that was sought by UC regents and would make university faculty salaries comparable to the best other institutions

Reagan took a "go-slow" approach to building new college facilities

His budget document declared, "The declining rate of (enrollment) growth suggests ... limiting capital outlay so as not to create excess capacity in the 1980s."

Reagan proposed spending $66.4 million for capital outlay for state colleges and $86.2 million for UC, including $54 million from a health sciences bond issue approved last fall.

Included in the budget was $70.3 million for community college construction, nearly $36 million of which came from another bond act approved in the November election. The remainder was to be provided by the local districts.

Construction of replacements for the Berkeley schools for the blind and deaf was recommended at a cost of $20 million.

In addition to the higher education spending proposals, Reagan Tuesday recommended the state spend nearly $2.5 million on public schools from kindergarten to the community college level.

The budget contained $219.3 million for California's 96 community colleges.

New Mansion

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov Ronald Reagan, longing for a "decent place" where future governors can reside, today asked the legislature for $950,000 to build a 37-room mansion on a bluff overlooking the scenic American River.

Ironically, the governor proposed that the Spanish-style mansion be financed by a "windfall" from the state income tax withholding system. Reagan originally opposed the withholding concept but changed his mind in 1970.

Deputy State Architect William Vick said the $950,000 appropriation would pay for basic construction of the mansion but not for furnishings and other unspecified "refinements," which would be included in the 1974-75 budget.

The mansion ultimately would cost about $1.3 million.

Preliminary plans for the new mansion call for five bedrooms for the governor's family, a five-car garage, a 24-by-48 foot swimming pool, a tennis court, a concealed bar, two guest rooms and a sauna bath.

The proposal by Reagan's private architect, William Stephenson, also includes a temperature-controlled wine storage room which could convert into a fallout shelter.

If all goes smoothly, the mansion will be completed just before the next governor is inaugurated in 1975, Vick said.

"After 32 years of political hasseling, backbiting, snarling and fighting over this issue," Reagan has said, "maybe one thing that I can leave the State of California is a decent place for the governors to live."

The Reagans moved out of the official century-old mansion in early 1967 Mrs Reagan called the place a noisy firetrap

The state has been paying the Reagans' $15,000 per year rent for a $150,000 home owned by a group of the governor's close political associates and friends

New Prisons

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov Ronald Reagan today proposed spending $1.1 million to develop working drawings for two new maximum security prisons to replace aging San Quentin.

His state budget envisions the continued deactivation of San Quentin as the inmate population statewide decreases and as more and more offenders are handled locally. San Quentin is proposed to go out of business in 1975.

The spending blueprint notes that the California inmate population has fallen from 28,600 in 1969 to 19,200 currently and this leaves a "tougher, more volatile individual in prison, requiring more heavy security housing than is now available."

Currently the Department of Corrections is developing preliminary plans for two maximum security prisons of 400 convicts each to confine the hardest of the hardcore convicts. Sites have not been announced.

The $1.1 million sought for working drawings would take the two prisons to the doorstep of actual construction, possibly in 1974

A source said the administration is exploring the feasibility of having the prisons built by someone else and then leasing them to the state with an option to purchase later. He said this procedure may be more economical than outright construction by the state.

In the budget, Reagan proposed increasing the overall spending level of the Department of Corrections from $143 million to $145 million next year.

The plan also calls for the hiring of four more parole agents and converting an unused California Youth Authority facility at Chino into a 400-bed "reception" center for newly committed male felons.

The governor proposed cutting back slightly the spending level of the Youth Authority from $57 million currently to $55 million. A spokesman said this mostly reflected the continued "phasing out" of the Los Guilucos School for girls at Santa Rosa by July 1.

Significantly, the budget for the upcoming fiscal year did not reflect a long-range plan by Health and Welfare Secretary Earl Brian to close all but a couple of the 10 CYA facilities during the next several years.

Weapon Thefts

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The California Army National Guard suffered "major losses" of guns and ammunition due to thefts last year. Gov. Ronald Reagan's state budget reported today.

The budget disclosed "other sensitive items" also were stolen from Guard armories.

To halt the thefts, the budget contained $874,000 — two-thirds of it federal funds—to increase security around armories. The program includes modification of arms and ammunition vaults and supply rooms to prevent break-ins, plus more lighting and fencing.

The budget also proposes to establish a security patrol at Hayward and Van Nuys airports to prevent "possible vandalism" to airplanes.

No funds are included to repair the Guard's headquarters which was destroyed by fire last month in Sacramento. A spokesman said the money will be provided in a separate appropriation bill.

The budget appropriates $10.3 million in state funds for the overall Military Department, compared to $8.7 million this fiscal year.

The Guard's authorized strength of 27,500 officers and enlisted men would remain the same.

Where It Goes

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Here is how the taxpayer's dollar would be spent under Gov. Ronald Reagan's $9.26 billion budget:

Elementary and secondary education 27.7 cents, health and welfare 24.4 cents, property tax relief 10.9 cents, higher education 10.2 cents, business and transportation (including highways) 8.9 cents, shared revenue with local government 8.2 cents, resources 2.1 cents, agriculture and general services 1.7 cents, other 5.9 cents.

Here is how the dollar would be collected:

Sales tax 33.5 cents, personal income tax 24.3 cents, fuel taxes 12.5 cents, bank and corporation taxes 11.1 cents, inheritance and gift taxes 3.5 cents, motor vehicle license fees 3.3 cents, cigarette taxes 2.9 cents, insurance taxes 2.3 cents, liquor taxes 1.6 cents horseracing 0.8 cent, other 4.2 cents

More Drinking

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Californians continue to drink more liquor and smoke more cigarettes, Gov. Ronald Reagan's budget disclosed today.

Adult consumption of alcoholic beverages "has been steadily increasing" and showing "a strong correlation with per capita personal income," the budget said

The average California adult this year is expected to drink 3.8 gallons of hard liquor, 31.25 gallons of beer, 4.5 gallons of dry win, 1.1 gallon of sweet wine (vermouth, sherry, etc.), and one-third gallon of sparkling wine (such as champagne). All are on the rise except sweet wine, which maintained steady.

Californians are expected to smoke 2.5 billion packs of cigarettes, representing 122 packs for every man, woman and child.

Cigarette smoking fell off drastically in 1964 with publication of the U.S. Surgeon General's health report and again in 1967 when taxes were hiked from three to 10 cents a pack. But since 1970, the budget noted, "total consumption has increased steadily."

Liquor taxes and fees will net the state $140.5 million and the cigarette tax another $255 million during the 1973-74 fiscal year.

Betting Record

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Horse-racing fans for the first time will wager more than $1 billion at California tracks during the next fiscal year, Gov. Ronald Reagan's proposed budget forecast today.

The state will collect $75.3 million of the amount, $3 million more than it received this year from horseracing. The budget predicted the parimutuel handle—the total amount bet—will increase $43 million from this year

Office Spending

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan today asked the legislature to increase the spending of his office from $2.1 million to $2.5 million in the new fiscal year, most of it for staff salaries.

The spending program also proposed to increase the legislature's expense level from $34.6 million to $35.4 million in the fiscal period starting July 1.

The document shows that the governor's office staff now totals 86 workers and will increase to 96, but actually there will be no additional employes. The other 10 already are there but their salaries now and in the past have been charged to other departments.

The budget proposes increasing Senate expenses from $9.6 million to $10.4 million and those of the Assebly from $15.6 million to $16.1 million. Joint expenses would decrease from $9.1 million to $8 million.

For the first time in memory of state fiscal officials, the governor's office was charged the $250,000 cost of printing the budget document, an expense previously paid by the legislature.

No Recession

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Peace in Vietnam will not affect California's "sparkling" economy, state fiscal experts predicted today in Gov. Ronald Reagan's proposed budget.

"The state has already felt the effects of winding down the Vietnam war and there will be no further impact on the economy when a peace treaty is finally signed," the economists said.

Reagan said in his budget message that "the outlook is for a sparkling national and California economy through 1973" with 1974 also "very good" but "possibly a little less robust."

Personal income of Californians this year was forecast at $111.5 billion, a gain of 9.1 per cent over 1972.

The average unemployment rate will drop to 5.4 per cent. It averaged 5.9 per cent in 1972 and 6.9 per cent in 1971.

There will be more than 8.5 million civilian jobs, an increase of 2.8 per cent. Strongest gains will be in the service and trade fields which "were adversely affected by the 1970 recession," the budget said.

"A moderate expansion" was forecast for the aerospace industry, primarily in electrical equipment production.

Residential construction, however, "is likely to taper during the year," the budget said, adding: "Some overbuilding has taken place in the state, especially of multifamily units. Vacancy rates—already high in some areas—will continue up gradually, leading to eventual cutbacks in the number of units built"

Home construction is expected to decline by 21 per cent, down to 220,000 units. Nonresidential construction is expected to stay the same.

"Economic gains in the state during 1972 were considerably stronger than anticipated," the budget noted

An Emotional Plea Made For Death Penalty

ATLANTA (UPI) — A young freshman Georgia legislator—pleading for the legislature to "make the streets safe" — jerked out a pistol Wednesday and pointed it at a fellow lawmaker.

Rep. Vinson Wall, 25, pointed the pistol at minority leader Mike Egan Wednesday during an emotional appeal in the Georgia House for reinstatement of the death penalty for rape.

Wall, 25, waved the .22 caliber pistol around to emphasize his remarks and later laid the weapon on the House clerk's desk.

"If I had known it was real, I might have been frightened," said Egan, "But I thought it was a toy."

HOME DESTROYED

Aid For Mudslide Victims Is Sought

Two separate groups of Marin residents have embarked on campaigns to help Woodie and Everdine White, the Marin City couple whose home was destroyed by a mudslide Friday.

Mary Freeman of 18 Dutton Court, Marin City, is secretary of a group of Corte Madera, Mill Valley and Marin City residents which has undertaken to collect contributions of clothing, food and money.

Contibutions may be made by telephoning Mrs. Freeman or by leaving them at her home.

Mission presidents of the churches of Southern Marin met last night in Marin City to organize a tax-exempt fund campaign to help rebuild the couple's home.

Rev. Fred Small of Mission Outreach said a committee was formed with Octavia Harris of the Beth Saida Church of God in Christ as president.

The tax-exempt fund will be known as the Mission Outreach Special Project, explained Rev. Small, with a bank account number added as soon as an account is established at Wells Fargo Bank in Sausalito.

The committee hopes to raise enough money to rebuild the White's home, he said, but it is not yet known how much will be needed, or if the existing lot is suitable for reconstruction.

Rev. Small said the project is an interchurch missionary endeavor, and all contributions to the special account will be made public. It is also intended to establish a post office box number for the special numbered account so contributions may be made direct to the bank by mail.

Other members of the committee are Marguerite Johnson, Village Baptist Church, vice president' John Griffin, Gospel Fellowship Church, secretary/treasurer; Moses Beard, St. Andrew United Presbyterian Church, assistant secretary-treasurer; and Mary Williams, Church of God, publicity chairman.

The Whites are living temporarily with friends in Marin City.

Mill Valley Projects Under Fire

The Mill Valley Architectural Advisory Committee last night endorsed a recommendation from the city planning commission that the city stop approving plans for new residential developments until Mill Valley has adopted a new general plan.

Planning secretary Carol Defenderfer said the committee will forward its recommendation to city council.

The planners' suggestion, made last week, would mean the commission and council would not approve any more plans for approximately two years, the time it will take to get a general plan adopted.

Currently Mill Valley is under a sewer ban which prevents developers of large projects from obtaining building permits, but they can still bring their plans in for city approval.

In its recommendation, the commission indicated it did not know what the city can approve in the way of new developments until a general plan, establishing such policies as population limits, is completed.

Affected by the moratorium would be all residential developments large enough to require action by the city which have not yet been approved. Single-family homes and smaller projects would not be effected.

Some Falling Stars Before Pro Bowl

Although the professional football season still has one more Sunday to go — at least for some of the all-star players — I am starting to get the feeling many of the selected players would just as soon the season ended with the Super Bowl.

The rosters of the American and National Conference teams are undergoing more changes than took place in the phone booth near Clark Kent's office at the Daily Planet.

Larry Csonka of the Super Bowl champion Miami Dolphins was the latest to be excused from the game, complaining of back injuries aggravated during last Sunday's win over Washington. He was the fourth member of the AFC team to bow out with injury. Miami receiver Paul Warfield was excused because of family illness and Oakland pass-catcher Fred Biletnikoff and Joe Namath of the Jets were allowed off the Pro Bowl roster because of injuries. Members of the NFC have begged off, also.

The word is "allowed," because league rules call for the performance of selected players unless they are injured. Therefore, a player who would suit up and limp onto the field for a regular season game while nursing minor injuries does not particularly want to risk the chance of increasing the injury in this exhibition game.

Players on the winning team in Sunday's game, to be played in Texas Stadium, will receive $2,000, and losing players will get $1,500. That would be a good chunk of money for many of the players in the league, but the poorer players are not the ones selected for the game. Since they have to be in the "star" classification to gain entrance, the higher paid players are the ones chosen. So all of a sudden $2,000 doesn't sound like so much to someone like Namath, Csonka or Bob Lilly.

Regardless of all the dropouts, there will still be enough stars left over to attract 40-50,000 fans in Texas and a few million television viewers. If you've lost your TV Guide, the Sunday game will be on CBS (channels 5 and 10) starting at 1 p.m. — football's final groan of the season.

FROM THE NOTEBAG:

Fred (Andy) Andrews, president of the Chosen Frozen Ski Club of Marin led his team to victory last Saturday in a giant slalom at Mount Rose, near Reno. The Chosen Frozen members were competing against other "singles only" ski clubs and in winning the event were awarded with quite a gag trophy that Andy had on display at the club's new headquarters at the Executive Lounge on San Rafael's Fourth Street. I understand it's a tree stump, just like those sneaky things that pop up out of the snow right in front of you when you're on your way down the slope.

If you are still wondering about the outcome of that Toilet Bowl game at the Marin Academy in San Rafael the other day, the score was Corbin Smith 33, students 13. Smith, the athletic director at the academy, led the faculty team by running for four touchdowns and passing for the other.

"And by the way," said Walt Smith of Hagen and Smith Allied Van Lines, "no more jokes saying the Toilet Bowl should be played in Flushing, N.Y. I was born there."

Steve McGee, now playing basketball at University of Hawaii, was back home in Marin County the other day saying hello to all his friends from Redwood High. The Hawaii basketball team had just completed a five-game tour on the mainland.

JANE McCOLLISTER

Eight National Records For Senior Swim Star

By RON LENT

A 30-year absence from competitive swimming has apparently not tempered the enthusiasm or success of Marin Aquatic Club seniors division swimmer Jane McCollister.

The 54-year-old Terra Linda teacher claims, "I get great pleasure from swimming and keeping in shape. I enjoy it a great deal . . . I get a great sense of accomplishment in knowing I can excel in a certain area."

Her zeal for the sport she forsook in a 30-year period ending in 1971 is matched only by her recent competitive successes. In the 50-54 age-group bracket, the Vallecito School physical education instructor established national records in six freestyle events — the 200, 500, and 1,650-yard, and 200, 400, and 1,500-meter. She also set national marks in the 100 and 200-meter breast stroke.

With such an impressive list of records, you would think Mrs. McCollister is satisfied, right?

Wrong. "I want to break my records. I want to leave records that will stand for a long time," she smiled while sitting in her school office.

"I do it because I feel I am good at it . . . I also found a need for a good exercise."

The word "need" is truly an understatement. While battling arthritis, she underwent abdominal surgery in 1971. Post operative recovery called for a "general exercise." Swimming provides this. So, when Marin Aquatic Club swim coach Don Swartz announced formation of a seniors swim program in October, 1971, Mrs. McCollister made the plunge.

"Inside of a month," she continues, "I was doing 1,600 yards a night. I was doing this four nights a week (Monday through Thursday). By January, I was doing 2,300 yards a night."

From this point, the 5-foot-9½, 140-pound long distance freestyler increased her wind and strength, while decreasing her swim times. (Her national record times bear this out. The freestyle marks include: in yards, 200, 2:59.1; 500, 8:11.7; 1,650, 28:19.4; in meters, 200, 3:20.46; 400, 6:56.02; and 1,500, 28:17.83.)

She also set 100 and 200-meter breast stroke records with 2:04.39 and 4:35.6 clockings, respectively.

Though considered a freestyler, Mrs. McCollister tried the breaststroke, because "Swartz likes all-around swimmers."

All-around is an apt descrip-

Seals Cooperating With Owner Finley

Combined AP & UPI

OAKLAND — The California Golden Seals, as good employes should, are cooperating with their boss' efforts to increase home game attendance that has averaged only about 4,000.

Owner Charlie Finley has, for his part, cut in half the admission price for the Seals last 20 home games of the National Hockey League season.

The Seals, for their part, haven't lost a home game in their last six, and if they can beat New York here tomorrow they can establish a team record.

A 3-3 tie against the Toronto Maple Leafs last night was the third tie in a row for the Seals, who now have a total of 11 ties in 43 games. For a rainy, midweek night there was a respectable turnout of 5,264 fans. The Seals now have 11 ties to deadlock Montreal for the NHL lead.

Hil Graves of the Seals got the game's first goal at 2:33 of the second period, bouncing the puck off a defenseman's skate.

Eighteen seconds later Errol Thompson tied it at 1-1, and the Leafs went ahead at 3:53 of the third period on Darryl Sittler's 16th goal of the season.

Reggie Leach evened it at 2-2 by scoring for the Seals, but Toronto went in front again at 7:09 when Ron Ellis shot his own rebound over Seals' goalie Gilles Meloche.

Graves got his 16th goal at 8:06 for the tie, and this score, was by an even more indirect route than his first goal. The puck hit Toronto goalie Ron Low, bounced off two Seals players and then rolled over Low's shoulder into the net.

The victory was the Seals' first of the season over the Maple Leafs who had blanked them 11-0 and 4-0 previously.

The Leafs were without left wing Denis Dupere who left the club and returned to Toronto.

A Bright Outlook Seen For Eagles

McCormack Is Optimistic As Head Coach

MIKE McCORMACK
Eagles' new coach

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — If Mike McCormack weren't so big—and if his football credentials weren't so good—you might have laughed in his face when he said Wednesday the Philadelphia Eagles "can win next season."

McCormack, a former All-Pro lineman and an assistant to Vince Lombardi and George Allen with the Washington Redskins, had just signed a three-year contract as the new head coach of the Eagles.

He had inherited an offense that scored only 12 touchdowns last season while averaging the lowest number of points (10.4) in pro football. Only two of those touchdowns came on runs and one was a quarterback sneak.

He had inherited a defense that gave up 62 points in a game against the New York Giants last November and managed to sack the quarterback only 16 times the entire season.

He had inherited a team that stumbled to a 2-11-1 record last season and seemed a long, long way from a winning season.

But McCormack, 42, agrees with his former boss Allen that "the future is now."

"I think we can win next season," said the 6-foot-4, 245-pound former Cleveland Browns lineman. "If it's humanly possible, my coaching staff and I will bring it about."

McCormack, who is credited with building the Redskins offensive line into one of the best in football, promised to bring the Eagles "back to respectability."

"I feel very familiar with the Eagles' personnel because we played them three times during the last season," McCormack said. "I had to watch hours of game film on their defense and help formulate the game plan."

"You might not realize this, but until the Super Bowl the Eagles' defense held Washington to the fewest number of points — 14 — it scored all season.

"I've never gone on a football field when I didn't think we'd win. In my opinion we'll win next year."

Eagles owner Leonard Tose, who fired Ed Khayat and accepted the resignation of general manager Pete Retzlaff last season, was as optimistic about his new head coach as McCormack was about the Eagles.

Tose said he spent six weeks "researching" McCormack. He said he had to compete with other teams for his services.

PINCH-HITTER

Cepeda Is Signed By Boston

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Red Sox announced today they have signed Orlando Cepeda as a designated hitter for the 1973 American League baseball season.

General Manager Dick O'Connell told a news conference that Cepeda had agreed to terms shortly after the league approved the designated hitter rule.

O'Connell said the team's doctors had pronounced Cepeda fit for duty after a cartilage operation on his left knee.

"I feel like I want to play everyday," Cepeda said. "I'll be trying to get into shape so I can play everyday."

Cepeda, a member of the exclusive 2000 hit club, played briefly with the Atlanta Braves and Oakland Athletics last season. He was released by the Athletics in December.

Cepeda said he had been "contacted by several clubs including the Texas Rangers and Chicago White Sox after the rule changed and by the Mets and Pittsburgh before that."

But he said "I didn't deal with anybody after Boston contacted me. I want to play here. They got in touch with me and that was the end."

Cepeda said he believed the designated hitter rule would be "good for baseball because every time the pitcher comes to the plate now people go to the restroom or go for a sandwich. With the new rule they'll stay in their seats."

Cepeda reached the 2,000 hit club on July 11, 1970. He totaled 2,169 hits in 1949 games as a major leaguer through last season. In 1967, he hit .325 and drove in 111 runs while becom-

Trojans Wallop Tam Five

By LEW CODDINGTON

In a basketball game only slightly more dramatic than the recent meeting of the Electoral College, Terra Linda High School took an early 17-5 lead yesterday afternoon and went on to defeat Tamalpais, 55-37, before 200 fans at College of Marin.

The victory kept the Trojans tied for the Marin County Athletic League lead at 3-1, and kept the Indians submerged in last place at 0-4.

Actually, the outcome of the game was determined two months ago — in the hospitals, where Tam practically held a team meeting, and on the practice floor, where Terra Linda was forging its surprising contender.

Tam forward Jared McFerrin, a victim of mononucleosis, suited up for the first time since the beginning of the MCAL season, but did not play. Center Mike Dinehart, plagued by an esoteric ailment best described as "growing pains," scored 10 points and appeared partly on the road to recovery.

It was left for Tam's sophomore and junior-laden lineup to cope with the resurgent Trojans, no simple task despite a squad attitude coach Bernie Schneider describes as "super." Forward Mark Lowey scored 16 points and forward Scott Logan canned 15 for Terra Linda, and after coach Bob Corley went to his bench, center Brian Morey responded with eight in a hurry.

After Terra Linda's early 17-5 lead, the game lapsed into a series of turnovers, with Tam eventually whittling the margin to 36-26 in the third period. The Indians failed to score in their next six trips down the floor, however, and the Trojans moved farther ahead.

Both teams shot poorly, Terra Linda hitting 33 per cent (22 of 66) and Tam 24 per cent (14 of 57). Terra Linda got six more rebounds, 37-31, with Lowey snatching 12.

"We got our fast break going a bit," said Corley, who also lauded the play of his guards, Jeff Leaird and Nick Mattos.

Terra Linda	17	11	12	15	— 55
Tamalpais	7	10	9	11	— 37

Terra Linda — Lowey 7-2-16, Chiaroni 1-1-3, Logan 5-5-15, Mullin 1-0-2, Purcell 1-0-2, Morey 4-0-8, Mattos 1-0-2, Leaird 2-3-7. Totals: 22-11-55.

Tamalpais — Dinehart 4-2-10, Owen 2-1-5, Adams 0-2-2, Murphy 1-1-3, Hall 5-2-12, Winterling 2-1-5. Totals: 14-9-37.

Gold Medal Winner In Examiner Games

Warriors Win; Nate Changes Mind

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — Coach Nate Thurmond changed his mind and Rick Barry changed the mood of the Golden State Warriors.

Thurmond decided before Wednesday night's game with the Houston Rockets that he would, after all, play in next Tuesday's NBA All Star game in Chicago. Then Barry went out and singed the nets for a season high of 51 points to lead the lethargic Warriors to a 123-117 triumph.

Earlier in the week, Thurmond, a 6-foot-11 center, said he would bypass the All-Star game because of nagging injuries to his right knee and left foot. But before the Houston game, he decided he would play.

"It is an honor to play in the All Star Game and I am honored that I was selected by the Western Conference coaches," said Thurmond. "If my being selected means that I have to go to the game, I certainly will.

"When I announced Tuesday night that I would not play, I felt I was best serving my team. I felt my first obligation was to my team as interim coach for Al Attles and I felt that if I could rest some nuisance injuries, I would be better prepared for the last couple months of the season.

"I think we can win this thing and I want to be ready for the drive."

Attles is suffering from pneumonitis and is not scheduled to return to the coaching lines until next Thursday. Thurmond said he would return to San Francisco after Sunday's televised game in Milwaukee on Channel 7 at 11 a.m. and submit

By TOM THOMPSON

San Marin High School's basketball team may be wishing it could drop Marin County Athletic League rival Drake from its schedule.

For the second time this year, the Pirates beat San Marin by more than 30 points last night, 78-44. Earlier, Drake beat the Mustangs, 78-47, in a non-league encounter in the Drake Pirate Classic.

The stage is set for a crucial battle between the Pirates and host Novato tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, both tied for first place with Terra Linda and Redwood, with 3-1 records. San Marin, meanwhile, rests in seventh place at 1-3.

Drake coach Pete Hayward was especially pleased with his team's hustle and speed. "We really ran well. I was happy the way we opened it up. We played pretty good defense too."

The Pirates, one of the league's shortest squads, outrebounded the tall visitors, 58-43.

About 700 fans in San Anselmo watched the hosts build a 13-point halftime lead. Early in the third quarter, the Pirates let up slightly, and San Marin closed the deficit to nine. However, Drake later outscored the Mustangs, 14-2, to increase its lead to 23, and never let up again. Hayward put in his reserves early in the fourth quarter.

John Channell and Eddie Joe Chavez led the Pirate onslaught, scoring 19 and 18 points respectively. Greg Shaw contributed 13 for Drake. Dan Howard came up with 12 assists, while Chavez had seven. Fred Doar topped the losers with 15 points, while Hoza Wright had 11.

The Pirates, with a 14-4 overall record have already amassed as many victories this year as last, when they finished with a 14-13.

Girls' Program In Gymnastics

By LEW CODDINGTON

The girls gymnastics program in Marin is becoming so big that it will soon vault out of the high schools and into the Amateur Athletic Union ranks.

At least, that's the plan of Marcia Arevalo, gymnastics coach and chairman of the girls' physical education department at San Rafael High, who is currently in the final stages of organizing the phogram.

It will be co-sponsored with the San Rafael Recreation Department, with which Miss Arevalo has been working off and on for seven years teaching the sport. It will use the facilities at San Rafael and possibly Terra Linda high schools.

"We have roughly 25 girls interested in competition and about 300 interested in classes, which is a good number at the beginning," Miss Arevalo said. "We wouldn't want too many at the start, or else we would have to get more staff." Right now she will be assisted by Sue Conrad, an instructor of gymnastics and dance at City College of San Francisco.

"I've known since I came to the county seven or eight years ago that we needed an AAU program here," Miss Arevalo said. "Once it gets on its feet, it will gravitate a lot of interest."

Prior to this, virtually all the gymnastics programs in Marin involved the public schools. Unlike tennis, there are no private clubs or public facilities, with the exception of the San Rafael Rec Department program and the YWCA program.

The schools have been hard put to keep pace with the upsurge in interest. "I had to cut down from 115 girls to 45," said Margaret Schaulis, gymnastics coach at Redwood High. "Even then, I can't give each student the individual attention she deserves.

"What happens every four years," she continued, "is that the Olympics create an increase in interest which lasts two or three years. Then it subsides a bit, but another Olympic year comes along, and it rises again."

All the time, the caliber of the gymnasts keeps improving. "The girl who doesn't come into high school now with some background is at a tremendous disadvantage," said Lynn Avila, gymnastics coach at Terra Linda. "The lower-level schools, gymnastics camps and the Recreation Department are all teaching the sport. Two years ago, the compulsory routes were changed so that much of what the intermediates used to do is now in the beginners' routines."

Some of the county's better gymnasts can be seen Saturday at Terra Linda High, in the Section IV meet. And although Miss Arevalo says her AAU team probably won't compete in meets its first year, many of the same gymnasts eventually may be performing in AAU competition.

NIGHT AND DAY — A news item the other day said that the Shriners have moved their North-South football game to a Sunday afternoon. The other 21 games, including last year's in which San Rafael's Scott Duncan appeared, have been played on midweek nights.

Shriners gave the reason as "the strong family tie-in." Possibly a more compelling factor was the consistent decline in attendance, which shrank from 85,931 in 1957 to 32,957 last year, second lowest in history.

Gymnastics: Girls' Meet Saturday

Terra Linda High School will host the Section IV compulsory girls' gymnastics meet Saturday, with the opening ceremony scheduled for 9:45 a.m. and the first competition at 10.

Participating will be girls from Marin, Sonoma, Lake, Solano, Napa and San Francisco counties, including the top finishers from last Saturday's Marin County Athletic League meet at Redwood High School.

There will be competition in novice, beginner, intermediate school and intermediate open categories, with no advanced gymnasts scheduled to compete. Events will include uneven parallel bars, floor exercise, balance beam and vaulting, with an all-around score derived from scores in those four events.

The top 50 per cent of novice and beginners, top 75 per cent of intermediate school and all of the nine entrants in the intermediate open category will advance to a meet between Sections I and IV Feb. 24 at Burlingame High School, according to meet director Lynn Avila.

Saturday's meet is open to the public. Admission is 25 cents.

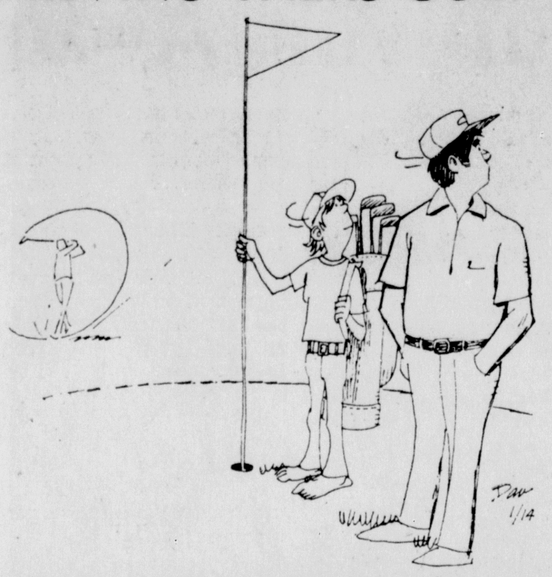
NFC Captains For Pro Bowl

DALLAS (UPI) — The National Football Conference players today selected four game captains for next Sunday's AFC-NFC pro bowl game.

Quarterbacks Bill Kilmer of Washington and Norm Snead of the New York Giants were selected as offensive captains while defensive tackle Merlin Olsen of Los Angeles and cornerback Mel Renfro of Dallas were picked as defensive captains.

Meanwhile, the American Football Conference announced it will play without Miami fullback Larry Csonka. He will be replaced by teammate Eugene (Mercury) Morris who was tabbed earlier by the AFC as a kick returner. Baltimore's Bruce Laird was added to the AFC roster as a kick returner.

TREVINO TALKS GOLF



The Par 4 Game

By LEE TREVINO

With some bad thinking a golfer can make a short course almost unplayable. The idea is to play the par 4s with your second shot in mind.

The worst thing to do on a 310-yard par 4 is grab a driver and kill it. If you hit it good you'll be too close to the green.

That may sound like a Mexican joke, but the hardest shot in golf is a half- or three-quarter shot. So you bust a driver and it leaves you just 80 yards from the flag. Great. Only the flag is just eight feet on the other side of a bunker, and the wind's behind you. Unless you're a magician or a wedge wizard like Billy Maxwell, you've got no shot at all.

It would be better to hit a 3-wood from the tee on short par 4s. Then you'll have swinging room for a second shot. You can loft it properly and bring it down by the flagstick.

On long par 4s you may really clobber your drive and still not be able to reach the green easy in two. They're making some of these holes for Tarzan. Give your tee ball your best lick, then let hazards around the green and the remaining distance determine your choice of club.

Black Hawks Place 5 On 'Stars' Team

MONTREAL (UPI) — The division-leading Chicago Black Hawks landed five of the 12 starters named today to the Western All-Stars for the Jan. 30 National Hockey League mid-season classic in New York.

Hockey writers from the division cities selected goalie Tony Esposito, defenseman Bill White, center Stan Mikita and wingers Jim Pappin and Dennis Hull to play in the 26th NHL All-Star game.

Los Angeles tripled its best previous showing in the balloting as the writers selected goalie Rogatien Vachon and defensemen Gilles Marotte and Terry Harper. Minnesota fields defenseman Barry Gibbs and winger Jean-Paul Parise and Philadelphia suits up center Bobby Clarke and winger Gary Dornhoefer.

Barry, also an All-Star selection, made the difference for the Warriors at the beginning and end of the Rockets game.

He hit 9-of-10 from the floor for 18 points in the first quarter as the Warriors raced to a 38-31 lead. Barry then hit 16 more in the second quarter as Golden State went on top 70-61 at intermission.

However, the Rockets overcame a 15-point deficit and rallied for a 105-102 lead with about nine minutes remaining. Barry hit only one basket in the third period but he came back to score his team's last six field goals to help the Warriors past their first victory for "Coach" Thurmond. Thurmond chipped in with 27 points.

Golden State appeared listless and was letting Houston get off two and three shots on offense before Barry's hot closeout.

Barry, who scored 57 points twice during the 1966-67 season with the Warriors, made 24-of30 field goals and three of four free throws.

Golden State plays the Bulls in Chicago tomorrow night before winding up the road trip at Milwaukee Sunday.

Billie Jean Out Of Net Tourney

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Top-seeded Billie Jean King, first woman athlete to earn more than $100,000 in a year, withdrew from the $25,000 British Motor Car tennis tournament Wednesday because of a sore wrist.

Her physician, Dr. Richard Garrett of Berkeley, said he expects the defending Wimbledon and Forest Hills singles champion to be out of action "three weeks to one month."

He diagnosed the injury as an inflamed ulna joint and warned her if she continued to play, "I will not be responsible for any further injuries to your wrist for the rest of the year."

As a result of Mrs. King's withdrawal, her opponent, Marcie Louie of San Francisco, advanced by default in the season's first tournament on the Virginia Slims pro tennis tour.

In the night's most exciting contest, seventh-seeded Wendy Overton of Ormand Beach, Fla., battled from behind to salvage a 6-4, 4-6, 7-5 win over unseeded Kathy Blake of Washington, D.C.

Valeria Ziegenfuss of San Diego downed Karen Krantzcke of Australia 6-4, 6-3 in the other singles match.

Phoenix

Why people who fly there frequently should fly American.

American offers four daily nonstops to Phoenix—more than any other airline. Flights leave from San Francisco at 7 a.m., 1:35 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. From Oakland, at 8:45 a.m. (The 5:30 flight is a 747 LuxuryLiner, the only wide-body aircraft flying to Phoenix.) So next trip, ask your Travel Agent to put you on American. Since American has more going for you to Phoenix, why fly any other airline?

PRIMITIVES BY A MARIN PAINTER

Speak of American primitive painters, and for most the name of Grandma Moses comes to mind. But if you live in Marin, you might very well think first of Girldine Fallon Merrill. The Novato artist has carved herself a reputation as a master of the instinctive, detailed canvas depicting a nostalgic scene from the past that was once associated with the late and beloved Anna Mary Robertson Moses. Her Asti wedding scene shown here is typical. There will be other Merrill primitives reproduced in this week's issue of the Independent-Journal's Marin Magazine, along with Don Keown's story of the painter, and the kind of art she practices so happily and energetically.

tion of Mrs. McCollister's athletic skills. As a youth in the Panama Canal zone, she was involved in gymnastics and swimming. The San Antonio, Tex.-born woman participated in archery and swimming at the University of Pennsylvania where she earned baccalaureate and masters degrees in education by 1941.

Additionally, she tried out for the U.S. Olympic swim teams in 1932 and 1936. "I was going to try again in 1940, but the games were canceled," she adds. The following year, she began her 30-year swimming retirement.

However, she still dabbled in sporting ventures, riding in horse shows in Kansas while her husband, Wiley C., was stationed at Fort Riley near Junction City. Subsequent Army transfers took the couple to such points as Augsburg, Germany, Taiwan and the San Francisco Presidio.

In 1959, the McCollisters moved to Marin County, whereupon Jane embarked on her teaching stint at Vallecito. Besides teaching physical education to the seventh and eighth graders, she coaches the girls gymnastics team. "Our girls won eight out of 10 ribbons in that meet" Dec. 12 at Miller Creek School, which is excellent when realizing the school has presented a girls gymnastics team for only two years.

Mrs. McCollister explains that "gymnastics is a highly individual sport. You're on your own out there," which prompts her to confess: "I never was good in team sports." Then, after a pause, she said, "I'm too slow on my feet for tennis, and golf is too slow for me. So I took to swimming when I was 11.

And, but for a 30-year lull endingin 1971, Jane McCollister has stuck with it. "When I was a youngster," she concluded, "I tried to excel in other sports for recognition. Now, I'll take it any way I can." Indeed. She takes recognition today in the form of national age-group seniors swim records.

FOR MOST PART

A's Supporting Pinch-Hit Rule

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland Athletics are having problems figuring out the new designated pinch-hitter rule, but most of them think they'll like it

"I may never hit again," says 19-game winner Ken Holtzman. "There's a chance I may never hit again."

Manager Dick Williams predicts that he'll have his pitchers batting second or third, which means that the designated hitter will bat then.

Holtzman and Williams agreed that there would be smaller pitching staffs and more decisions for each pitcher as a result of the rule, which is being tried for the next three seasons by the American League.

"In a 0-0 or 1-0 ball game, I don't think I'll be taken out (for a pinch hitter) now," Holtzman said. "That means more wins and losses on your record."

Rollie Fingers, the A's' star reliever, said he liked to hit and was sorry to see the rule change, even though he may benefit as a hurler from the rule.

"This could be the end of the long reliever," said Fingers. "The only time they'd be needed was when a starter had absolutely nothing on the ball."

Catcher Dave Duncan didn't agree.

"If anything, I think a reliever like Fingers will be used even more."

Williams is puzzled by some aspects of the rule. He wants to know if there has to be a designated hitter for the pitcher since ace Catfish Hunter is almost a .300 hitter anyway.

And he also suggested that the "designated hitter could bat as many as eight times a game.

He said the designated hitter could be the last man at bat in one inning and the first man up in the next "if you replace your pitcher and another player, say for defensive purposes. You are free to decide which of the two bats in what spot in the order."

Rowing Convention In San Francisco

The fifth annual rowing awards dinner tomorrow night will highlight the national convention of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen (NAAO) at the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco.

The two-day convention will celebrate the 100th anniversary of the NAAO. Boat builder and storyteller George Pocock will speak, and several awards will be presented, including the Helms Hall of Fame inductions, the Vesper Cup, the Rusty Callow Award and the John Carlin Service Award. All 1972 champions and Olympic competitors will be recognized.

Sullivan Award To Runner Shorter

Combined AP & UPI

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Olympic marathon champion Frank Shorter was presented the Amateur Athletic Union's Sullivan Award yesterday as the 1972 amateur athlete of the year.

Shorter, who also set the American record in the 10,000 meters in the Olympic Games at Munich, defeated freestyle wrestler Dan Gable of Waterloo, Iowa, for the award. Gable was also an Olympic gold medalist.

Shorter, a University of Florida law student, received 1,895 points to Gable's 1,577 in balloting by the AAU's 1,500-member panel of judges for the award which is named after former AAU president James Sullivan.

Diver Micki King of Hermosa Beach, Calif., was third with 1,104 points, followed by swimmer Mike Burton, Sacramento, 1,012; runner Dave Wottle, Canton, Ohio, 708; Hurdler Rod Milburn, Opelousas, La., 428; swimmer Melissa Belote, Fairfax, Va., 381; wrestler Wayne Wells, Oklahoma City, 334; Larry D. Young, track, Sibley, Mo., 257, and Dianne Holum, speed skater, Northbrook, Ill., 249.

Shorter finished fifth in the 10,000 meters at Munich but still set a new American mark with a time of 27:51.4. He was a surprise winner in the marathon, a 26-mile, 385-yard grind.

THE SKI SCENE

An Educated Lift Operator

By CHARLIE COANE

Tom Russell is 37 years old and single. He lives at a resort one mile from the newly formed Kirkwood Meadows. His job is that of a lift operator at Kirkwood's Sunrise Chairlift. He works five days per week, 8 hours a day and earns $2.50 per hour — maybe more as the season moves along. He skis on his two days off and during his breaks while working.

So? Let me continue. Tom was graduated from Harvard with a degree in American history. His masters in European history followed from University of Colorado. Next he went on to UCLA for six years of studying and teaching towards his Ph.D., which included a stint in Europe.

"I got completely away from outdoor living and sort of lost perspective on some things," says Tom. "In addition, my physical condition went downhill — pardon the pun — during my six years just using my brain. I taught at U.C. Irvine, Fresno State and Long Beach State, but never full time — mainly filling in for a year at a time while still working on my doctorate."

In addition to that, Tom found out that Russian history Ph.D.'s (his speciality) were not exactly in heavy demand. So, off to slope city. "I have no desire to live in Southern California with all the freeways and smog. I've always wanted to live in the Sierra. I came to Kirkwood in September, worked as a carpenter and electrician before the snow fell and now work as a lift operator. I've always been interested in skiing; I was raised in Vermont."

What about the future? "Who knows?" says Tom. "I plan to go back to Colorado for awhile to see some friends and hopefully return to Kirkwood next season. I like it here. Besides, it's real good for my head."

Is Tom's story all that unusual? Somewhat, but not really. He's doing what many think about, and what he wants to do. And he enjoys it. And "you only go around once in life, so you gotta grab for all the gusto", as the beer commercial goes.

The people that scheme, connive and maneuver their lives to ski are more numerous than one might believe. I know a dentist in San Rafael who works six months a year so he can ski the other six months. He works in the summer; his partner works winters. Doctors and dentists are famous for manipulating days off to hit the slopes. There's a week-long medical convention in Sun Valley in February, and I suppose a few of the participants may bring their skis! And a tax write-off to boot.

Ski areas are filled with college students "taking a semester off," working as anything from an instructor to a bartender. Pilots and stewardesses find it very easy to plan days off during the week or take a leave of absence.

So what's the moral of all this? Well, who knows? Maybe it's "do your own thing, or don't major in Russian History."

Petaluma High School will try to break a two-game North Bay League basketball losing streak tomorrow night at 8 o'clock when the Trojans host the strong Montgomery of Santa Rosa Vikings.

In other local high school hoop action tomorrow at 8 p.m., Rancho Cotate of Rohnert Park visits Sonoma for a Sonoma County League game. St. Vincent of Petaluma resumes North Central League II play at Calistoga and Tomales travels to Kelseyville for an NCL II game.

Petaluma is 1-2 in NBL play after losses to Santa Rosa, 63-59, and Napa, 42-41, and is in a five-way tie for third place. Montgomery, which beat Napa 55-32, is tied for second place with Santa Rosa at 2-1 after an upset victory over pre-season pick Ukiah.

The Trojans, who have had troubles this season against running, pressing teams, will be facing a ball-control offense in Montgomery.

The Vikings standouts are Tom Buzzard and Ken Guido. Buzzard, a 6-foot-5 center, is the team's leading scorer with a 20.9 points per game average. Guido, who is scoring at a 13.5 point per game clip, is the playmaker.

Petaluma has the height to stay with the Vikings on the boards in 6-5 Kirk Smartt, who is averaging 15.1 points per game in three NBL contests, and 6-5 junior Bill McDonald.

Rancho Cotate will be going against a Dragon team which was picked to take the SCL title this season Sonoma is in third place currently with a 1-1 mark after a loss to Cardinal Newman of Santa Rosa, and the Cougars are a half-game behind the Cardinals with a 2-0 record.

St. Vincent's charging Mustangs will be meeting a Calistoga team which is 1-9 overall and 0-1 in NCL II play The Mustangs are 8-3 for the season and 1-0 in league

Tomales, which is in a rebuilding year, will be facing the champions of the NCL for the past three years in Kelseyville The Indians are in first place again this year with a 2-0 record The Braves are 0-1

SCORING

Stewart Is League's No. 1 Man

Byron Stewart of San Rafael High School, who scored 28 and 24 points in two games last week, has emerged as the leading scorer among Marin County Athletic League basketball players.

According to statistics compiled by the Independent-Journal, Stewart had 60 points in his first three games for a 20.0 average, three points a game ahead of another junior, Eddie Joe Chavez of Drake. Games yesterday and Tuesday are not included in the latest figures.

Hoza Wright of San Marin, a senior and the leading returning scorer, ranks third at 16.3 a game, and heads a contingent of three Mustangs in the top ten. Fred Doar (13.7) is seventh and John Tait (12.0) ninth.

Drake leads the league in scoring at 66.0, and is the only team averaging more than 60 The Pirates rank a close fifth in defense at 51.3 and have the biggest spread between points scored and points surrendered, an average of 14.7 a game.

Redwood is the league's defensive leader at 48.7, but five other teams were within four points of that figure.

Sanderson Gains Release In WHA

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The strange career of Derek Sanderson with the Philadelphia Blazers of the World Hockey Association is over

It started with a $2.6 million bang and went out with a whimper

Sanderson signed a multiyear pact making him the highest paid player in professional sports—and that includes Pele, the famed Brazilian soccer star But Tuesday the Blazers paid the flashy center off for a reported $1 million.

With his client playing golf in Jamaica, attorney Bob Woolf of Boston said he had reached agreement with the Blazers for "an immediate settlement giving Sanderson his unconditional release

"The team thought it had undertaken an economic burden that it could not justify in the future," said Woolf as explanation for Sanderson's departure The last-place Blazers have been drawing poorly while the National Hockey League Flyers are playing to packed houses.

There were reports earlier in the season that Blazers' owner Bernie Brown wanted to dump Sanderson, but no team wanted to be saddled with the expensive contract.

Sanderson is now free to negotiate with any team in the WHA, or return to his former club in the NHL the Stanley Cup champion Boston Bruins.

"I don't know where we'd play him," Bruins' Managing Director Harry Sinden said in Boston. "We're very satisfied with our three centers. We'd have to make an adjustment some place. I don't feel we need help at center right now."

Sanderson, one of the big name catches the WHA made when it raided the NHL, reported late to the Blazers because of legal battles between the two leagues After several games he suffered a back injury that eventually required hospitalization.

When Sanderson was discharged he claimed he was ready to play but by that time the team was looking for someone to buy his contract. He wasn't allowed to play during that period even though he claimed the team doctor had given him a clean bill of health.

In reflection, Woolf said, "Derek did not act as I would have wanted him to act when he first came down here."

Market's Showing Is Mixed

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market closed mixed today as investors continued to show their concern over the possible inflationary effects of Phase III on the economy. Trading was moderate on the New York Stock Exchange.

Investors virtually ignored some positive peace news and a report the gross national product may be revised upward for 1972.

The market managed to hang on to a small gain throughout most of the session, but near the close, selling eroded earlier gains. The early gain was built up on the positive news presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger would return to Paris on Tuesday to complete the text of an agreement with Le Duc Tho, North Vietnamese negotiator.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were slightly lower in moderate trading.

Record Earnings For Levi Strauss

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Levi Strauss & Co. has reported sales of $504 million and earnings of $25 million for the year 1972.

Both were company records, according to Walter Haas Jr., chairman and chief executive officer.

Haas said Tuesday the performance in 1972 reflected continuing strong demand for jeans and consumer acceptance of Levi's expansion into other apparel lines.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Three Stocks Called Recommended Buys

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Would you please send me the names of some companies that have a bright future. I would like to invest in some stocks. — A.H.

Q. I am interested in investing in common stock. Would you list a few good prospects? — G.C.

A. Three promising buy candidates for long-term appreciation — American Express (OTC), Pitney-Bowes (NYSE) and VF Corp. (NYSE) — represent three diverse industry groups. American Express, personal services; Pitney-Bowes, office equipment and VF, apparel. In the past five years American and V.F. Corp. have compiled outstanding growth records with earnings increasing at an average annual rate of 18 per cent and 15 per cent respectively.

Pitney, which is recommended for its turnaround potential, reported downtrending earnings in 1970 and 1971. For the year ended December, a 15 per cent to 20 per cent rebound in profits is anticipated. Demand for the company's mailing equipment has been gaining momentum and Pitney's copier business has expanded significantly since 1967 when the firm entered this market. A meaningful profit contribution is looked for from the copier division this year. However, it is the company's 50 per cent-owned Pitney-Bowes-Alpex affiliate that should materially boost earnings over the next three to five years. PBA has developed a point-of-sale computerized cash register system for retailers which has been very well received by the industry and as of September 1972, order backlog stood at $28 million.

American Express, best known for its comprehensive blanketing of the entire field of travel, also owns six mutual funds, an insurance company, an underwriting and securities firm and an international banking operation. For 1973, earnings should reach $2 a share versus an estimated $1.75 for the year just ended. Although shares command a rich 32 times multiple, earnings growth justifies the premium.

VF, through the acquisition of H.D. Lee in 1969 and Kay Windsor in 1971, broadened its product base and improved its growth potential. VF should continue to turn in above-average results aided by aggressive management, a strong marketing organization and integrated operations.

Mortgages Up

SAN JOSE — James P. Alger, president, United California Mortgage Co., a division of United California Bank, reports that company production of mortgage loans reached a new high totalling $430,168,200 in 1972. This represents a 63 per cent increase compared to 1971 production of $263,000,000.

OPEN SPACE — Marinwood residents will vote on a $600,000 bond issue aimed at acquiring 350 acres of open space in a special election scheduled for Tuesday. The bulk of the land eyed for acquisition by the district is in the northwestern corner of the community, with other parcels located near the community center and at the end of Limestone Grade.

Marinwood Residents To Vote On Bond Issue For Open Space

By NELS JOHNSON

Marinwood residents in a special election on Tuesday will vote on a $600,000 bond issue aimed at preserving 350 acres of open space.

The measure would cost taxpayers 36 cents per $100 of assessed valuation, hiking the Marinwood Community Services District's current tax levy of $1.23 per $100 of assessed valuation to $1.59.

The cost to the owner of a home assessed at $40,000 — including exemption allowances provided by the state's new tax-shift law — would be $30 annually over a 25-year period.

A two-thirds majority of the vote cast is needed to pass the bond issue. Some 2,334 registered voters are eligible to cast ballots in the election.

Acquisition of Marinwood open space — much of it wooded hillside — had been under study since last July, when a study showed that 89 per cent of 824 residents polled in the 1,400 dwelling-unit community favored buying open lands. The poll also showed that 61 per cent of those polled were willing to pay $20 or more a year to preserve open space.

Twelve parcels have been recommended for purchase through bond monies by the open space committee of the Marinwood Homeowners Association. The community services district board has endorsed purchase of the parcels and has appraised the total value at about $600,000, according to Ellis D. Jaquette, a member of the services district board.

Nine of the parcels are clustered in a 328-acre package filling the community's undeveloped northwestern corner. Two parcels, totaling about 21 acres, are located near the community center while another is at the end of Limestone Grade, adjoining Highway 101.

Jaquette, who noted that the board has been negotiating with owners of all 350 acres involved, said that "there is no doubt that the properties can be delivered."

The district board already has come to terms with the owner of one parcel being eyed by the community for acquisition, Jaquette said.

Should the land be acquired through bond monies, it will become the property of the community services district with district directors acting as trustees. Public access will allow recreational uses such as hiking, horseback riding and picnicking.

Jacquette, saying that there has been no organized opposition to the bond issue, predicted the measure will pass with a 75 per cent favorable vote.

Open-space bond issues in other communities have passed handily in recent months, he noted. Last April, Lucas Valley residents approved a $315,000 open-space bond by an overwhelming ratio of 22 to 1.

More recently, San Rafael citizens passed by a 3 to 1 margin a $2.25-million open-space bond, and Tiburon residents embraced a $1.25-million open-space measure by about the same ratio. Citizens countywide approved creation of a regional park district in a 2 to 1 tally last Nov. 7.

The Marinwood Homeowners Association will hold a community meeting at 1 p.m. Saturday in the community center to discuss the bond issue.

Polls in Marinwood — located at the community center, Miller Creek School and Mary Silveira School — will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Vineyards May Be Enriched By 'Old Money'

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Meier's Wine Cellars, Inc. hopes to enrich its vineyards with money.

Henry Sonneman, president of the winery, has acquired 600 bales of chopped-up money from the Federal Reserve Bank branch here. The Federal Reserve shreds and tightly packs the worn-out money it has taken out of circulation and the bales are free for the asking.

Sonneman wants to get his hands on several thousand more of the 70-pound bales to fill erosion ditches at the vineyards in nearby New Richmond.

"We can pound it down and put a layer of topsoil over it," he said. "If we're lucky, it will solidify and act as drain tile that will also let the water sink in instead of run off."

The bales each measure two feet square by four feet long and contain up to $500,000 in destroyed currency.

Miner Killed

CARLSBAD, N.M. (UPI) — Zane Gallaway, 28, of Carlsbad, a miner, was struck on the head and killed by a 600-pound rock that fell from the ceiling of the Potash Mine Wednesday, his birthday.
